DUKE OF ORLEANS, FRENCH PRETENDER, DIES IN PALERMO

Louis Philippe, Ill Only Few Days, Succumbs to Pneumonia.

40 YEARS AN EXILE FROM FRANCE'S SOIL

Prince of Spendthrifts, Last Years Are Darkened; Was Barred From Army.

Palermo, Sicily, March 28 (By A. P.).—Louis Philippe, Duke of Orleans and pretender to the throne of France, died of pneumonia today at his villa here. He had been ill only a few days. His sister, former Queen Amelie, of Portugal, was at the bedside.

Other sisters of the Duke, Princess Isabelle and Princess Helen, Duchess of Aoste, will reach here tomorrow, and his uncle, the Duke of Guise, on Tuesday.

The Duke of Orleans arrived here March 13 on one of his frequent visits and intended to remain for a time at his villa, which he inherited.

Driven Out of Belgium.

The Duke of Orleans, who was one of the two pretenders to the French throne, was great grandson of the last king of France, Louis Philippe, and son of the late Comte de Paris. He was born in Twickenham, England, in 1869. In 1896 he married the archduchess Maria Dorothea Amelia of Austria, a distant relative of Emperor Francis Joseph. Subsequently she sued the Duke for maintenance and reimbursement of large sums she had advanced to him.

Louis Philippe was driven out of Belgium in 1903, on the charge of having "abused the hospitality of the Belgian nation by using its soil as a base for his attacks on the friendly government of France."

Shortly after that he was active in an attempt to fit out an expedition to the north pole. At the beginning of the great war he appeared in the limelight in the role of the prince of spendthrifts. He already had spent several fortunes, and, finding himself short of money, offered the forest of Dreux, a part of his estates, for sale to the republic for $2,400,000.

Kept Out of War

The French government refused his request that he be granted permission to enlist in the foreign legion under an assumed name early in the European war. He then sought to enlist in the British, Belgian and Russian armies, but the

Phone Users to Save $3,000,000 a Year

New York, March 28 (By A. P.). A potential annual saving of more than $3,000,000 to telephone users in the United States was announced today by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. The saving is made possible through a financial arrangement reducing the charges levied on associated companies for telephone rentals and services, which last year afforded the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. a revenue of $34,354,400.

This reduction is the first ever made by the parent company. No reason for the reduction was given at the offices of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. except that it was "good business."

Riff Chieftain Ill; Refuses Operation

Melilla, Spanish Morocco, March 28 (By A. P.).—Abd-el-Krim, Riffian war chieftain, is seriously ill at Targuist, his headquarters, according to news brought to Tangier by natives from the rebel country.

Krim, said to be suffering from a gastric ulcer, is being attended by a Russian surgeon, who wants to operate. Abd-el-Krim refuses to submit to an operation.

Bishop Anton Bast Asks King for Pardon

Copenhagen, Denmark, March 28 (By A. P.).—The Right Rev. Dr. Anton Bast, Methodist Episcopal bishop for Scandinavia, recently convicted of misuse of charity funds and sentenced to three monts' imprisonment, has solicited the king for a pardon.

He asserts he is suffering from diabetes and is unable to stand the prison fare. He also says he intends to return to the United States.

MEXICO HOPES OIL NOTE WILL BE END OF SERIES

STAND IS LITTLE CHANGED

Mexico City, March 28 (By A. P.).—Terminating many months of uncertainty and speculation, the Mexican government will publish at an early date, possibly tomorrow, the regulations governing both the alien land law and the petroleum law. The foreign offices today sent to Senor Tellez, Mexican Ambassador at Washington, for delivery to the Department of State, Mexico's reply to the latest American note on these questions. Simultaneously the foreign office sent a copy to the American Ambassador, James R. Sheffield. The foreign office has expressed the hope that this will bring the correspondence to a conclusion and that an understanding will be reached.

It is learned on good authority that the regulations covering these laws do not deviate materially from the fundamental principles of the original measures, although they are supposed to embody some concessions to foreign interests.

The representatives of American oil companies, who have been in Mexico City conferring with the Mexican authorities, are preparing to return to the United States. It is believed they failed to obtain any vital modification of the proposals, although they decline to discuss the matter.

3 Runaway Boys Die In Wreck of Freight

Houston, Tex., March 28 (By A. P.).—What is believed to have been a runaway exploit of three Eureka, Tex., youths ended in death early today when their bodies were found in wreckage of International & Great Northern freight train No. 56, which was derailed at Malone, Tex. The youths were: Arnett Freeman, 15; Riley Hunt, 15, and Jesse Gidden, 17.

The youths are believed to have been caught underneath a car as it turned over. The train was running between Houston and Fort Worth.

COMMUNISTS ELECT 2 DEPUTIES IN PARIS

Ballot May Prevent the Right From Supporting Fiscal Bill of Government.

Paris, March 28 (By A. P.).—The communists won two seats in the chamber of deputies today on the balloting in the second district of Paris for the election of successors of the two members recently deceased.

In the first balloting on March 14, no absolute majority was obtained although the nationalists polled the largest vote, followed respectively by the communists, socialists and radicals. Today the communists, thanks to votes of radicals and socialists obtained a small majority over the nationalists. Stay-at-home electors, alarmed over the prospect of a communist victory, voted today, but their number was insufficient to offset the vote of the cartel.

The election of the communists is considered as certain to have a considerable effect on the general political situation. For one thing, it will tend to kill any disposition of the right moderate parties to support the government on its financial measures.

REPORTED MEXICAN GRANT TO JAPANESE STIRS U.S. OFFICIALS

Borah to Seek Details of 3,000,000-Acre Concessions.

DEVELOPMENT OF OIL AND RUBBER SOUGHT

Senate Resolution in 1912, Protesting Magdalena Bay Proposal, Recalled.

Indications that the Senate committee on foreign relations may give consideration to the reported concession by the Mexican government of a land grant involving more than 2,000,000 acres on the Pacific coast near the California border to a Japanese syndicate, seemed certain yesterday following announcement by Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, chairman of the committee, that he intends to ascertain complete details of the reported concession.

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, chairman of the Senate committee on foreign relations, indicated that he regarded the matter as of the utmost importance. He said he would take steps at once to ascertain the facts. If it is true that Japanese interests are to gain a foothold on the shores of Magdalena bay, long regarded as an immensely valuable base, Senator Borah said it is a development to which his committee should give serious consideration.

Officials Had No Information.

State Department officials have had no information relative to the concession. High officials of the department declined to comment, but indicated that they would lose no time in learning the exact situation. They were fully cognizant that reports of Japanese invasions of Lower California have threatened difficulties in the past and that the granting of the concession as just announced might easily shatter the plans of the administration for smoothing out the controversies which have arisen over Mexican land and petroleum laws.

Information as to the concession also was lacking at the Mexican embassy. Senor Antonio Castro-Leal, counselor of the embassy, said that no advices had been received from his government either as to this particular concession or as to previous activities of the same Japanese syndicate.

The San Diego dispatches indicated that besides the 2,000,000 acres extending to the shores of Magdalena bay involved in this grant the same syndicate previously acquired control of 1,000,000 acres along the Pacific side of Lower California, only 135 miles distant from the United States border.

Impressed by Dispatches.

Washington officials were impressed by the apparent authenticity of the dispatches from San Diego. According to the press reports, Roberto Farfan, a former office holder in the government of Lower California, announced that a Daughter Is Born To Duchess of Alba

Madrid, March 28 (By A. P.).—A daughter was born today to the Duke and Duchess of Alba, both well known in the United States. As first-born, the child will enjoy in later years 20 grandeeships and 60 other Spanish titles.

Santiago, tenth Duke of Berwick and seventeenth Duke of Alba de Tormes, Spain's most democratic, as well as highest grandee, married Maria Del Rosario, Marquise de San Vicente Del Barco in London in 1920. The duke is 48 years old and the duchess 26.

Girl Swims in Icy Bay for 37 Minutes

Boston, Mass., March 28 (By A. P.).—Eva Morrison, of Pictou, N. S., where her father is chief of police, today swam about the icy waters of Dorchester bay for 37 minutes to show her imperviousness to cold. The temperature of the water was 32 degrees. Jimmy Wild, one of the many who take a daily plunge at the beach throughout the year, was forced out of the water by the cold after 15 minutes.

Miss Morrison scorned the protection of grease and took no stimulants while in the water. She will attempt to swim the English channel next summer.

Greenland Base Urged To Blow Up Icebergs

Copenhagen, Denmark, March 28 (By A. P.).—Through the American legation a group of American and Canadian scientists headed by Professor William H. Hobbs, of the University of Michigan, have applied for permission from the Danish authorities to employ Greenland as a base for attempts to free North Atlantic trade routes from icebergs by exploding these while still in Greenland waters.

The Danish explorer, Peter Freuchen, plans to dig himself in 100 miles from the Greenland coast and from that point to advise by wireless his fellow scientists on climatic disturbances and the movements of inland ice. Exploration circles here are somewhat skeptical as to the possibility of this plan.

REVENGE OF KIDNAPERS IS SEEN IN 4 MURDERS

FIFTH MAN IS WOUNDED

Havana, March 28 (By A. P.).—Reports of two additional murders and the wounding of a third man in connection with kidnaping plots were received here today from the Province of Camaguey. Manuel Mesa was found dead from wounds early this morning near Central Velasco and Vicente Pascual was shot and killed and Juan Perez was seriously wounded last night twelve miles from Camaguey city. The shooting was done by three men, who escaped into the hills.

As in the cases of Jose Maria Abreu and Jose Acosta, who were killed last week, Mesa, Pascual and Perez were shot because it was believed that they had given information to the police concerning the recent kidnaping of Col. Enrique Pina, three weeks ago.

Pina was released by the kidnapers on payment of a ransom.

Dispatches from Camaguey say that Dr. Antonio Fernandez narrowly escaped kidnaping yesterday on his farm. He had been warned of the plot and gone to Havana. The plotter captured Dr. Enrique Moussett, whose place adjoins the Fernandez farm, but let him go when he established his identity.

3,000 See Parachute Jumper's Fatal Fall

Stockton, Calif., March 28 (By A. P.).—Jacques Fisheur, 43, of Hollywood, parachute jumper, fell to his death here today when he jumped from an airplane at an elevation of 1,500 feet and his parachute failed to open. A crowd of 3,000 witnessed the fall.

Minister H. S. Gibson Guest on Mayflower

When the Mayflower sailed on an overnight cruise down the Potomac yesterday, Hugh S. Gibson, Minister to Switzerland, who will head the American delegation to the Geneva preliminary disarmament discussion, and Rear Admiral Andrew T. Long, who will be one of his advisers, were on board as the guests of President and Mrs. Coolidge.

Others in the party were Senator and Mrs. Lawrence D. Tyson, of Tennessee; Ira E. Bennett, of The Washington Post, and Mrs. Bennett and their daughter, Mme. Langlais; Mrs. Gibson and Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns, of Boston.

BOYS CLING TO ROCK 15 HOURS; ONE DIES

Richmond Lads Pray Through the Night Trying to Hold Perilous Perch.

Richmond, Va., March 28 (By A. P.).—Clinging fearfully to a big rock in the James river for 15 hours after a small row boat had capsized in the middle of a treacherous stream, three little Richmond boys, their bodies numb from bitter cold, prayed throughout last night only to see one of their number slip from the bowlder and drown.

Becoming delirious, Wesley Ellis, 13, met his death when he lost his grip shortly before 5 o'clock this morning. His two companions, Edward Poh, 12 and Horace Crosby, 13, their legs locked to prevent them from falling off the rock, were rescued a short while later by a searching party. When they failed to return to their homes last night the parties were sent out.

COUNCIL CANDIDATES PREPARE ENERGETIC CAMPAIGN FOR VOTE

SOUTHWEST MAKING PARTICULAR EFFORT

Plans Against Northwest Obtaining Majority This Year Are Uncertain.

As candidates for the citizens' advisory council enter this morning the last week of the campaign for election preparations are being made for strenuous solicitation of votes. The week promises to be one in which the political pot will boil and in which both political and sectional advantage will make their bids.

Sectional advantage, however, by no means looms as important a consideration as it was last year. The experience of the council in working together for a year seems to have banished sectionalism. Expressions from members have invariably been that the council is inclined to work for the city as a whole.

The Southwest section, which last year refused to put a candidate into the field, is making a vigorous effort to obtain representation now.

Strobel Seeks Office.

Robert Strobel, nominated by the Southwest Citizens association, is the candidate there. The disposition of the Federation of Citizens Associations, it was declared by several prominent members yesterday, is to give the Southwest representation.

Mr. Strobel avowed his candidacy yesterday. He said: "I would be very much gratified if I win. I would give to the work my best attention, and would strive toward a broad policy. More particularly I would like to see the Southwest represented. We should be represented. Our community is one of the oldest, and to a large extent isolated."

Whether the effort made last year by the Eastern sections to prevent the Northwest obtaining a majority representation will be repeated this year is uncertain.

Robert R. Faulkner, candidate from the Michigan Park Citizens association, and Harry N. Stull, candidate for reelection from the Stanton Park Citizens association, both stated yesterday that to their knowledge no such action is being taken.

Woman Has Chance.

Mrs. Frank Hiram Snell, the only woman candidate, is believed to have a good chance for election. The District League of Women Voters, who nominated Mrs. Snell, is making an active campaign for her. The statement of Senator Capper that the council should have a

Measles Antitoxin Is Found in Detroit

New York, March 28 (By A. P.). Discovery of a measles toxin and development of an antitoxin, effective in combating the disease is claimed by Dr. N. S. Ferry and L. W. Fisher, a chemist, both of Detroit, in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical association.

Detailing their experiments, they tell of the isolation of a microorganism, "a small streptococcus appearing both in pairs and in turn, which produces the measles toxin in the body." They named the organism "streptococcus mobilli."

A skin test, by which they checked their discovery, led to the finding of antitoxin.

Pola Negri's Driver Accused of Fraud

Los Angeles, Calif., March 28 (By A. P.).—A two-year search for Frank P. Estrade, wanted on charges of using the mails to defraud, ended here with his arrest by postal inspectors from Atlanta, Ga. Estrade has been employed as a chauffeur by Pola Negri, motion picture actress. The film star appeared astonished at the charges against Estrade.

"Oh there is some mistake," she said. "He is such a nice chauffeur. He has taken thousands of dollars worth of jewels to the bank for me." Estrade is alleged to have sold $20,000 in stock in the California-Arizona Cane Sugar Co.

PRINCE OF WALES HAS OPERATION ON ONE EAR

Pain, Sequel to Influenza, Compels Doctors to Incise the Drum.

PATIENT IS DOING WELL

London, March 29 (Monday) (By A. P.).—The Prince of Wales underwent a slight operation today for a recurrent ear trouble. It was this ailment that kept the prince from attending the running of the Grand National steeplechase last week.

The announcement was made in the following bulletin, issued at St. James palace:

"H. R. H. the Prince of Wales had a return of the pain in the ear, the condition being a sequel to the influenza. It was accordingly decided that a small operation to incise the drum was necessary. This has been done and relief has followed."

The bulletin was signed by Drs. G. J. Jenkins, Arthur H. Cheatle, John Weir and Baron Dawson.

The necessity for the operation seems to have arisen somewhat suddenly in consequence of an unexpected recurrence of pain after a period of improvement.

Friday, when he had to cancel his proposed visit to Aintree for the grand national, the prince was not feeling well. He had a high temperature from the influenza from which he was suffering, but quickly recovered. His temperature was normal today.

Inquirers at the palace after the operation this morning were authoritatively assured that the operation was a very slight one and that the prince was progressing splendidly.

Magnus Johnson To Have Opposition

St. Paul, March 28 (By A. P.). The nonpartisan league convention meeting here indorsed Tom Davis, of Minneapolis, for the governorship and he will oppose former Senator Magnus Johnson, nominated yesterday by the farm-labor convention.

On all other candidates for State offices in the June primaries the nonpartisans and farmer-labor groups were in agreement.

THIEVES GET JEWELS OF BARBARA BENNETT

Actress' Apartment Robbed While She Is Treated at Hospital.

Los Angeles, Calif., March 28 (By A. P.).—Barbara Bennett, former partner of Maurice Mouvet, French dancer, and daughter of Richard Bennett, well known actor, had completely recovered today from the effects of a poison which she swallowed yesterday by mistake. Apparently considering the poison incident closed, police today centered their attention on efforts to determine the whereabouts of some $3,000 in cash and jewels which Miss Bennett declared had been stolen from her apartment while she was being treated at the hospital. Occupants of adjoining apartment reported that several strangers had been seen near the dancer's apartment following her removal in an automobile.

Miss Bennett declared last night that stories yesterday to the effect that she had swallowed the poison with suicidal intent were ridiculous. She particularly emphasized a denial that a disappointment in love had prompted her to attempt suicide.

"There is no man in my life," she said.

PLEA TO SUSPEND TACNA PLEBISCITE DECLINED BY CHILE

HOPES TO WELCOME SUGGESTION LATER

Commission at Arica Adjourns Till Tomorrow; Peruvians Abstain From Registering.

(By the Associated Press.)

The Chilean government has declined to concur in the suggestion of Secretary Kellogg that the plebiscite to settle the Tacna-Arica dispute be suspended during the proposed conference of representatives of the two countries in Washington.

The position of Chile was disclosed last night in a memorandum from the minister of foreign affairs to American Ambassador Collier at Santiago, and made public by the embassy here. The memorandum, in reply to one submitted by Secretary Kellogg suggesting that the plebiscite be suspended for a time, declard "the government of Chile greatly deplores that it is not in a position to receive the suggestion to suspend immediately the plebiscitary proceedings."

Such suspension, it added, "would mean a reversion to the uncertain and dangerous situation which was ended by the recent resolutions of the plebiscitary commission."

Solution Held Indicated.

The memorandum argued that continuance of the proceedings, "which can in no way impair the negotiation of good offices, will favor a solution, which once it is reached even in principle, will mark the moment to consider the suggestion which your excellency has transmitted, without the difficulties it offers at the present time."

The memorandum reiterated that Chile will accept the good offices offer of the American government to negotiate for settlement of the dispute only in the event the plebiscite is permitted to continue. Peru, on the other hand, has contended for suspension of the plebiscite, holding that it has accepted the good offices offer on that condition. Secretary Kellogg has declared that this government has not been a party to any understanding that the plebiscite would be nonoperative while direct negotiations were in progress.

Chile, in the note, expressed satisfaction with Peru's acceptance of the American offer as recognition of "its sincere desire to look for a friendly adjustment of the existing differences."

Chileans Alone Registering.

Arica, Chile, March 28 (By A. P.).—The Tacna-Arica plebiscite commission held a brief session this morning. The commission adjourned after approving a minor resolution but without discussing the subject of registration because neither the American nor the Chilean delegation has received late instructions. Another meeting has been called for Tuesday.

The first day of registration, Saturday, passed quietly in Arica. The Peruvians abstained from taking part, in accordance with orders from the head of their delegation. One hundred and fifty natives, all Chileans, registered on the first day.

Again today the work of registration was being carried on, with

Lieut. D. S. Holbrook Slain by Pistol Shot

Manila, March 28 (By A. P.). Lieut. David S. Holbrook, of the Twenty-sixth cavalry, was shot and killed at Fort Stotsenberg today by a revolver he was handling. Whether the shooting was accidental or intentional has not been determined, the authorities announced. Lieut. Holbrook was the son of Maj. Gen. Willard Holbrook.

Belgian Princess May Be Humbert's Bride

Rome, March 28 (By A. P.).—A Brussels dispatch says that Princess Marie of Belgium, who is expected to visit the Italian monarchs at San Rossore at an early date, is likely soon to be betrothed to Crown Prince Humbert.

Last year, when Princess Marie was at Bordighera, her name was linked with that of the Italian crown prince in betrothal rumors. Some months later it was reported that Humbert might wed Princess Beatrice of Spain.

CALLAGHAN DENIES CHURCH IS MEDDLING IN MEXICAN POLITICS

Priest Replies to Assertions Made in Interview by Ambassador Tellez.

EXPULSION OF CLERGY DISCUSSED IN SERMON

People Lost a Teacher and Friend When the Catholics Were Restricted, He Says.

Before diplomats attending the Palm Sunday services at St. Matthew's church yesterday morning the Rev. John Callaghan, assistant pastor, called attention to an interview with Ambassador Teller in yesterdays' edition of The Washington Post. The Ambassador had exonerated his government from charges growing out of the recent expulsion of nuns and priests from Mexico.

During his remarks Father Callaghan said:

"I wish to call your attention to a statement which appeared in Sunday's edition of The Washington Post, alleged to have been made by Senor Don Manuel Tellez, the Mexican Ambassador to this country. His excellency is most unfortunate in his remarks. On a former occasion he issued a statement in defense of his government's action in deporting religious and in closing of Catholic churches. Archbishop Curley quickly pointed out that authenticated facts completely discredited the Ambassador's statement.

Fails Again, He Says.

Again he fails, and fails miserably in his efforts to justify the actions of the despots whom he represents. He is reported to have said that he sees no reason why any one should get excited about the situation which now exists in Mexico. Liberty-loving Americans are not getting excited, but they are righteously indignant at the harsh and brutal treatment meted out to Mexican priests and nuns by the plundering bolshevistic tyrants now leading Mexico to destruction.

"Mr. Tellez says that the Catholic Church is responsible for the lack of educational advancement in his country. This is untrue and he knows it. Whatever progress attained in popular education in Mexico was made, in the main, up to two generations ago, and it was made under the auspices of the Catholic Church.

"Since the material establishment of the church was swept away in 1857, relatively little advance has been achieved. To be sure, a few model school buildings have been constructed in the capital (to be frequently photographed in the Bulletin of the Pan American Union), and an enormous building has been erected for the secretariat of public instruction, costing 4,000,000 pesos, with beautiful gold leaf ornaments on the patio walls, but the school system is far worse managed than it was even in the dayss of Porfirio Diaz, the teachers wait longer than ever for their arrears of salary, and the children of the rural and small town population are no nearer a prospect of getting the most rudimentary education under the constitution of 1917 than they were under that of 1857. When the Catholic Church was proscribed, the Mexican people whom she had served and uplifted for centuries, lost their teacher as well as their friend.

Political Activities Denied.

"Mr. Tellez also takes rare liberties with the truth when he talks about the political activities of the Catholic Church. Categorical assertions may be categorically denied. Mexican clergy have taken an honorable part in the public life of their country, and contributed to the epic struggle for Mexican independence one of the most heroic figures of the nineteenth century, Hidalgo. But since the so-called liberal regime entrenched itself in power, 70 years ago, and vented its wrath on its conservative opponents by every sort of oppression, the leaders of the church, ecclesiastical and lay, have been unable to defend their most elementary rights, let alone meddling in politics as such.

"And since the pretended labor regime succeeded the radical crowd of 1917, in 1921 and 1925, the Catholic Church has been unable even to appear in the courts, its corporate and individual rights have been trampled upon, and the incarnate diabolism of Cabrera and Calles has clearly nothing less in view than the utter extermination of the church. Let the crew of evangelical proselytizers in Calles' cabinet, salaried clergymen formerly—and maybe now—on the payrolls of organizations in this country, get out of politics in Mexico before Mr. Tellez presumes to tell us anything about the Catholic Church in politics."

WHEELER RIDICULES IDEA OF LIQUOR REFERENDUM

Antisaloonist Calls Proposal for National Prohibition Vote Meaningless.

CODMAN IS HOPEFUL

The national referendum on prohibition proposed by Senator Edge, of New Jersey, was ridiculed in a statement yesterday by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Antisaloon League of America, as a "vain attempt to wring booze from a bone-dry Constitution." He added that the proposal was "unauthorized, impractical, unprecedented and meaningless."

"Senator Bruce's proposal to repeal the eighteenth amendment and substittute an unprecedented government ownership and control of liquor will not be taken any more seriously," Mr. Wheeler asserted. "It would make Uncle Sam the greatest brewer and bartender in the world."

Mr. Wheeler branded the Bruce proposal as a legislative monstrosity.

Julian Codman, of Boston, counsel for the joint legislative committee, who will discuss the legal side of prohibition at the coming hearing in the Senate committee on modification, also issued a statement last night. Although witnesses on modification have not yet been chosen by Mr. Codman, he said that his associates were preparing a very strong case. "I am sure that we can propose changes that will be, if adopted, a long step in the right direction," he said.

American People Eating Less Bread

(By Associated Press.)

The American people are eating less bread, it is indicated in a Department of Agriculture report showing per capita consumption of flour is 24 per cent lower than in 1879, and that the rate of decline is increasing.

Substitution of other grains for wheat during the war; the decrease in home baking; the change in composition of a loaf of bread, and the inclusion of a number of new items of food in the American diet at the expense of wheat were mentioned as reasons for the decrease.

12 INJURED IS TOLL OF AUTO ACCIDENTS; 2 FIREMEN HURT

Truck and Engine Company No. 3 in Collision on Way to Blaze.

HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER SOUGHT BY POLICE

Motorists Are Arrested on Charges of Intoxication, Following Crashes.

Twelve persons were injured, two seriously, in traffic accidents in and near Washington yesterday. Two motorists were arrested and two "hit-and-run" drivers were being sought.

Two firemen of engine company No. 3 were injured, one seriously, when the hose wagon and pump engine of the company crashed at Sixth and D streets northeast, while responding to an alarm. Private John E. Webb, 26 years old, suffered a fracture of the left leg and possible internal injuries, while Private George D. Pickett, 29 years old, suffered injuries to his leg and shock.

Webb was riding on the rear step on the hose wagon, which was driven by Private John P. Damskey, and Pickett was riding on the front seat of the engine driven by Private Asa H. Crosley. Sergt. J. J. Sweeney, in charge of both apparatus, drove the hose wagon. The hose wagon was making a turn north into Sixth street, when the engine crashed into it.

Webb was thrown to the street, while Pickett was forced against the large searchlight in front of the engine and fell to the ground. The impact could be heard for blocks, police say, and a crowd of approximately 600 persons soon gathered at the scene. Police reserves were summoned from the Ninth precinct, and commanded by Lieut. Sidney Marks. The alarm was pulled for a supposed fire in the home of Chauncey E. Cassidy, 426 C street northeast, where two children were playing with lighted paper. Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, chief of police, and Chief George Watson, of the fire department, conferred at Casualty hospital, where the injured were taken, about the accident.

Auto and Car Collide.

Albert S. Donnelly, 31 years old, of 1328 V street southeast, was seriously injured when his automobile was in collision with a Washington Railway and Electric Co. one-man street car at the south end of the Anacostia bridge, last night. The street car was in charge of J. McKeller, of 618 Hobart place northwest. Donnelly was taken to Gallinger and then to Providence hospital suffering from severe cuts and loss of blood.

Mrs. Esther Slothe, 45 years old, and Miss Thelma Smith, 19 years old, both of 209 Ninth street southwest, were thrown to the street, suffering body bruises and shock, when the automobile in which they were riding was in collision with another car at Fourth and B streets southeast.

The two were riding in an automobile driven by Jesse M. Hart, 36 years old, 209 Eleventh street southwest, which, police say, crashed into a car operated by Claude R. Brown, 22 years old, 1351 Emerson street northeast.

Twin brothers, Daniel T. and Bondbee Cameron, 21 years old, 1700 Thirteenth street northeast, were taken to Casualty hispital and treated by Dr. J. H. McNeal, after the motorcycle they were riding hit another motorcycle in nearby Maryland.

In Hospital Under Guard.

Daniel M. Weaver, 25 Fourteenth place northeast, is in Gallinger hospital, under police guard, charged with driving while under the influence of intoxicants. Weaver was driving an automobile, police say, which crashed into a Washington Railway & Electric Co. street car at Sixth and D streets northeast, damaging the automobile. Weaver was taken from the wreckage and taken to Casualty hospital, where he was treated for lacerations of the head.

Seven-year-old Joseph Greenfield, colored, 1631 C street southeast, was slightly bruised when hit in Eighteenth between S and T streets northwest, by an automobile driven by Robert C. Dunlay, 638 Lexington place northeast.

Percy H. Keller, a salesman, 30 years old, of 2700 Connecticut avenue northwest, was arrested by Park Policeman B. J. Beckman, and charged with driving while drunk, after he is alleged to have struck two automobiles in Sixteenth street near Florida avenue northwest.

After he is alleged to have hit three cars at Sixteenth and R streets northwest, a "hit-and-run" driver sped away. Park Policeman F. T. Cain pursued him to Seventh street and Rhode Island avenue northwest, but lost him in a maze of traffic.

Shock Prostrates Woman.

Mrs. Vera E. Snyder, 22 years old, of Baltimore, Md., was prostrated from shock when the automobile driven by her husband, Ernest Snyder, was struck at Fourteenth and F streets northwest, police say, by a Washington Railway & Electric Co. street car. Mrs. Snyder was treated at Emergency hospital.

William Hill, colored, 42 years old, was run down in front of his home, 2202 M street northwest, by a "hit-and-run" driver, and suffered shock. He was taken to Emergency hospital in a police patrol. Police are searching for the driver.

Frank E. Swing, 15 years old, 463 H street southwest, suffered a fractured right leg when he fell off his bicycle while trying to avoid being run down by an automobile on the Speedway yesterday. Policeman R. Kesselring, of the Fourth precinct, observed an automobile about to strike the boy from the rear. He shouted at the lad, who saw his danger and fell to one side of the roadway. He was treated at Emergency hospital.

CAPITAL TO START ITS ANNUAL SPRING CLEANING PROCESS

Survey of Sanitary Conditions in the District Will Be Opened Today.

STREET IMPROVEMENT PROJECTS TO BE PUSHED

Tourists Are Expected to Appear by Thousands in Washington Soon.

The city's shivering population can not reconcile the cold winds now prevalent with spring, but the calendar says it is here, so the city heads today will keep company with the housewives and start an annual spring clean-up.

During the next two weeks the advance guard of the annual spring tourists, convention delegates and visitors who come to Washington each year by the thousands are expected to appear.

A survey of sanitary conditions all over the District will begin today in connection with the health department's annual spring clean-up campaign. Health Officer William C. Fowler has ordered all available sanitary inspectors to give close scrutiny to all highways, byways, and alleys, with orders for his men to see that all unsanitary conditions are immediately corrected.

Street Work to Start.

The city's first spring street project will be started today with the resurfacing of Sixth street between M and O streets northwest. The work has been awarded to the Malony Paving Co., according to an announcement by C. B. Hunt, engineer of highways.

Following completion of this work, the same company will begin work on laying new asphalt paving on all unpaved portions of Kentucky avenue southeast and on G street, between Twelfth and Fifteenth streets southeast.

Work will shortly begin on laying concrete on about 25 roads in the city's suburbs, by the G. B. Mullin Co., according to an announcement at the District building. The cost of this work will approximate $150,000.

As soon as this work is under way, bids will be opened for the widening of E street, from Fifth to Thirteenth street northwest. Eleventh street from Pennsylvania to New York avenue, and Connecticut avenue from K street to the intersection of Eighteenth street northwest.

The trees on some of these streets have already been removed, but Mr. Hunt announced that the actual widening will not commence until early summer.

Many Tourists Expected.

The tourist camp, with additional accommodations, is expected to set a new record in visitors this year. Last year more than 70,000 tourists were accommodated between the first of March and the first of December, with the largest number of visitors staying at the camp during April and October.

Hotel proprietors are making preparations to accommodate the 38,000 delegates expected to attend the sixteen conventions booked here during April and May. Easter visitors, of whom about 25,000 are expected, will also tax the capacity of local hotels, according to reports.

MAN, SEEKING WIFE, SHOOTS SELF IN HEAD

A. Stanley Beckwith Wanted Reconciliation, the Police Ascertain.

A. Stanley Beckwith, 57 years old, a roomer at 508 H street northwest, is in a serious condition in Casualty hospital, police say, as the result of attempting to end his life last night by shooting himself in the ear while standing on the rear porch of his wife's home, 232 V street northwest.

Beckwith, a retired tobacco merchant, police aver, went to the V street house to bring about a reconciliation with his wife, Mrs. Blanche Beckwith, from whom he has been separated more than a year. Friends at the house told him Mrs. Beckwith was not at home.

Mrs. Beckwith was visiting her daughter, Margaret Beckwith, 18 years old, confined to Homeopathic hospital with appendicitis. Beckwith went to the rear porch of the house and shot himself, police say, with a .22-caliber revolver. Harry T. Kendrick, 1451 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, who was visiting at the V street house, took him to the hospital. Detectives John Fowler and John Flaherty, of the central office, and Lieut. Joseph W. Pierson, of the Twelfth precinct, investigated.

Madden in Church Lectures on Success

Adherence to a sound ethical ideal is the only sure road to success, Representative Martin B. Madden, of Illinois, told members of the Calvary Methodist church, in Columbia road between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets northwest, in an address which was the feature of the church services last night.

Representative Madden chose for the subject of his talk "Success." He told his audience that he could vouch for his statements with lessons of his own experience.

Three Washington Autoists Are Jailed

Three Washington men were sent to jail at Bladensburg, Md., in default of fines imposed by Justice of the Peace Hugh O'Neil, at Bladensburg, and Justice of the Peace Phillips, at Berwyn, Md., for alleged traffic violations yesterday.

Harry M. Wood, of 1611 Thirty-first street northwest, was fined $100 and costs on a charge of driving while drunk; Roger Horton, of 206 Ninth street southeast, was fined $125 on charges of driving while drunk and reckless driving, and Stanley Gordon, of 4109 Canal road northwest, was fined $15 when he was convicted of driving with dead tags. Sergt. Frank T. Price, of the Maryland State police, made all the arrests on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard.

JEWS CALLED VICTIMS OF INTERNATIONAL SINS

Driven Far From Palestine by Racial Bigotry, National Council Is Told.

WORK OF BODY DEFINED

The Jews have been driven far from Palestine and have become the plaything of prejudice and racial bigotry, Mrs. Estelle M. Sternberger, of New York, executive secretary of the National Council of Jewish Women, declared in a speech before the local chapter of that organization at the Jewish Community center last night. Nations use the Jew as a scapegoat for their international sins, she maintained.

Mrs. Sternberger then pointed out that the work of the council was to prevent Jewish families from being obliterated. They do not wait until a family is on the verge of ruin, she said, but offer aid when it is of real use to settle Jewish families on the farms of this country. The council has field workers in California, Michigan, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania and New York, she added, who have done much to do away with the farmer's wife's discontent with rural conditions.

Films were shown illustrating work of the council with immigrants, farmers and those physically incapacitated. Mrs. Sternberger closed her address with a plea for peace.

The purpose of the meeting was to stimulate interest of the community in the large scope of activities of the council. Mrs. Leonard B. Schloss, president of the local organization, presided. Other speakers were Representative Florence B. Kahn, of California, and Mrs. Alexander Wolf, second national vice president. Julia Culbreth Gray gave a song recital in costume. In November the eleventh triennial of the National Council of Jewish Women will be held here. Representatives from 275 sections will be present.

Woodlock Opposition May Yet Be Known

(By Associated Press.)

Senators who object to letting the country know how they voted on the nomination of Thomas F. Woodlock, of New York, as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission are not yet out of the woods.

Although they blocked several moves Saturday in the Senate to make the vote public, Senator Pittman, of Nevada, a Democratic member of the interstate commerce committee, now gives notice that at the next executive session he will launch all over again his fight to have the ballot on confirmation printed.

BROOKHART CONTEST, ENGLISH CASE, WEEK ISSUES IN CONGRESS

Impeachment of Illinois Federal Judge to Go Before House Tomorrow.

ELECTION DISPUTE DUE IN THE SENATE TODAY

Italian Debt Settlement, Tariff Commission Inquiry Among Current Matters.

(By Associated Press.)

Spectacular dramas are destined to be written around two issues which finally will reach the floors of Congress this week.

These issues are impeachment of Federal District Judge George W. English, of the Eastern district of Illinois, and the election contest between Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, and his Democratic opponent, Daniel F. Steck.

The English case is to be taken up by the House tomorrow under a program calling for a final vote by Wednesday. If impeachment is voted that fact will be certified to the Senate which will hold a special early summer session for the trial

Senate to Get Report Today.

Majority and minority reports on the Steck-Brookhart contest are to be submitted to the Senate today, and since the case is one of the highest privilege, Chairman Ernst, of the Senate elections committee, is expected to call it up for debate soon after his return from the Kentucky Republican State convention, which is to be held tomorrow.

The elections committee stands overwhelmingly for the ousting of Senator Brookhart, but Senator Stephens, Democrat, Mississippi, will file a minority report and lead the spirited fight that is to be waged to have Senator Brookhart confirmed in his right to a Senate seat.

Before this election contest case comes up the Senate will resume debate on the Italian debt settlement, with Senator Howell, Republican, Nebraska, opening the argument for the opposition with a long prepared speech.

Last Supply Bill Up Thursday

Today will be given over by the House to consideration of miscellaneous bills. Thursday the House will take up the last of the annual supply measures, that for the legislative department of the government, with a vote coming probably Friday.

Congressional committees are to be fairly active during the week, with the special Senate committee resuming the tariff commission investigation tomorrow. The Muscle Shoals joint committee will continue to wrestle with its problem of leasing the big Tennessee river plant, and the joint postal committee will resume its hearings tomorrow with a view to recommending permanent postal rates.

93-YEAR-OLD MAN'S FRIENDS OPEN FIGHT TO BAR EXTRADITION

Bears No Animosity Toward Those Who Demand His Conviction, He Says.

AGED DEPUTY INSISTS PENALTY MUST BE PAID

Wants Soldier and Doctor Punished as Lesson to Wrongdoers.

Asbury Park, N. J., March 28 (By A. P.).—Dr. Edwin P. Osbaldeston, 93-year-old physician and soldier, and son of a British earl, arrested Friday on a warrant 46 years old, charging him with horsestealing and breaking jail at Binghamton, N. Y., today summed up his attitude toward Deputy Sheriff Black, aged 91, of Binghamton, the arresting officer and U. I. Lions, Broome county district attorney, in these words:

"I bear no animosity toward the people who are trying to get me into prison. My conscience is clear and I am going to forget the whole thing. I am an old soldier and I harbor hatred toward none."

The children of the block where the aged physician lives staged a little reunion today. A dozen youngsters greeted him and hoped "the bad man won't put you in jail."

"They will never do that," he answered confidently.

Although Dr. Osbaldeston and all others here do not believe extradition proceedings will be undertaken, plans were made by citizens and civic organizations to intercede in his behalf. Mayor C. E. F. Hetrick, prominent citizens and leading clubs in the city will ask Gov. Moore to refuse extradition.

Dr. Osbaldeston said he had had a half brother, also named Osbaldeston, who was "constantly getting me into trouble." It is thought that the half brother may have been the man sought by Black. He died a violent death several years ago.

Aged Deputy Insistant.

Binghamton, N. Y., March 28 (By A. P.).—Because he believes that crime does not pay and the law pursues criminals relentlessly, S. Foster Black, nonogenarian deputy sheriff, caused the arrest of Dr. Edwin P. Osbaldeston, 93-year-old physician in Asbury Park, N. J., for an alleged horse theft committed nearly a half century ago.

"I don't care if he is 93 years old and I don't particularly care what sentence he may get, if he is convicted," the deputy sheriff said tonight, after his return from the New Jersey city, "but I want Dr. E. Turner Osbaldeston brought back here to answer the charge as a warning to other people."

Black claims that under the name of Edwin Turner, Dr. Osbaldeston escaped from Broome county jail in December, 1880, while the former was a deputy sheriff.

He declared that a news picture appearing in a local newspaper last Wednesday was that of the fugitive and immediately started proceedings for his rearrest.

Indictments against the fugitive charge two offenses—"horse stealing," a serious offense 50 years ago, and jail breaking. The jail in those days was surrounded by a high wall.

"I am absolutely positive that I have my man," Deputy Sheriff Black said. "If I had heard him speak four words without seeing him, I could have told him from his voice. Back in 1880, this man had red hair, sandy mustache and whiskers. He looks about the same today except older."

Carol Not an Issue In Roumanian Crisis

Bucharest, Roumania, March 28 (By A. P.).—The status of former Crown Prince Carol is not considered an issue in the present governmental crisis which has had its climax in the resignation of Premier Bratiano and his ministry.

It is thought that the nationalist party, if necessary, would support Carol's restoration as crown prince, but there is nothing definite yet to indicate that Carol desires to return to Roumania or that the King and Queen wish to have him restored.

WOMEN BEING SOUGHT AS WHITTEMORE AIDS

Conspired With Members of Gang in Jewelry Theft, It Is Alleged.

"SPOT MAN" IS HUNTED

New York, March 28 (By A. P.).—The final coup of the holdup gang headed by Richard Reese Whittemore, before their retirement, was to have been staged in the theatrical district last Thursday. Details of the robbery were learned today by the police investigating the various confessions of the gang members. The Manhattan jewelry store which had been spoted for the final bold holdup was said to be that of M. Rosenthal & Sons on Broadway near Fiftieth street. According to information obtained by the gangsters, the store would have had $750,000 in uncut diamonds and diamond jewelry in sotck on that day.

The gang planned to make a quick raid on the store when the safe was opened in the morning.

As a result of the confessions police are searching for the "spot man" who picked out the robberies to be plotted by Jacob Kraemer.

It was reported today that New York city detectives who have been working in Cleveland and Toledo all last week, have found in Cleveland two well-known New York receivers of stolen goods, who have been in communication with Joseph Trop, the Second avenue jeweler, who had admitted friendship with Leon and Jacob Kraemer, members of Whittemore's gang.

Others whose custody is needed to complete the entire roundup include several women said to have conspired with members of the gang and the driver of the loot car in the Fifth avenue jewel robbery in January.

Leon Kraemer, it was said, will probably be sent to Erie county to face charges in connection with the murder of two men in the Buffalo armored car holdup, in which $93,000 was stolen.

Trop was released in $5,000 bail furnished by a bonding company.

B. N. Duke Presents $10,000 to a Church

AMUNDSEN POLAR EXPEDITION PLANS NEAR COMPLETION

Mooring Mast for Dirigible Norge Erected on Hill Just Outside Oslo.

ANOTHER TO BE RAISED AT KING'S BAY BASE

L. Ellsworth, American, Who Shares Command, Keeps Fit by Wrestling.

Oslo, Norway, March 28 (By A. P.).—Preparations for the Amundsen-Ellsworth polar flight in May are nearing the final stage. On a hill just outside Oslo a mooring mast nearly 100 feet high has been erected for the airship Norge, in which the flight is to be made. The dirigible, constructed in Italy, now is being inspected by Capt. Roald Amundsen, who arrived in Rome for that purpose last Friday. It soon will be brought to Oslo.

The auxiliary vessel Hobby, which was used in the polar flight of 1925, has left Trondhjem for Svalbardi, (the new Norwegian name for Spitzbergen) with equipment for the expedition, consisting of material for the mooring mast at King's bay and hydrogen for the airship. A hangar already has been completed at King's bay.

American Tries Wrestling.

Lincoln Ellsworth arrived from the United States some time ago, and has taken up wrestling in order to be in good shape physically for the expedition. He also is studying navigation and meteorology daily at the nautical school. The American explorers will leave for Svalbardi early next month, going thence to King's bay to receive the airship when it arrives.

Ellsworth shares leadership of the expedition on equal terms with Amundsen. The expedition will be under the Norwegian flag, a point on which Amundsen has insisted from the beginning, and accepted by Ellsworth and the Italian members of the expedition. This year's expedition will include several Norwegians who had a part in the 1925 expedition — Lieut. Riiser-Larsen, Lieut. Dietrichson and Lieut. Omdahl.

The leaders expect to cover the distance from Svalbardi over the pole to Point Barrow in two and a half days, and, if possible, they will proceed with the airship to Seattle by way of Nome, Alaska.

Will Indicate Drift.

When emptied, the benzine tanks will be dropped from the dirigible with an enclosed statement in each, giving the position of the ship at the time. If these tanks are picked up they will show to what extent they have drifted with the polar currents.

The Norge is to be equipped with Marconi sending and receiving apparatus, the power being derived from a 3,000-volt generator operated by a benzine motor or by wind propellers. It will be capable of receiving messages on wave lengths from 300 to 25,000 meters.

Prince of Wales Airs His American Slang

London, March 28 (By A. P.) The Prince of Wales never loses an opportunity of using Americanisms. On his recent visit to Ayr, in Scotland, to dine with the Royal Scots Fusiliers officers, Isley Gale was bowing as he stepped from the train. His first words were, "Swell weather you keep up here."

Returning to London, he attended the annual dinner of the Institute of Civil Engineers. In his speech the prince said he would like to "emphasize the importance of development of what are often called labor-saving, but what I would rather call labor-aiding appliances."

14 Race Horses Die In Victoria Park Fire

Calgary, Alta., March 28 (By A. P.).—Fourteen race horses died today in a fire which destroyed the barn of Robert Emmert at Victoria Park.

Jimmy Rags, trainer, and Jockey J. O'Bee were slightly injured.

Snow in Denver Area Falling for Five Days

Denver, Colo., March 28 (By A. P.).—A snowstorm, which in the Denver region and many other parts of the Rocky mountain section has lasted almost without interruption since last Wednesday, was still in progress tonight.

There has been little snow left on the ground, as most of it has melted as it fell, but tonight the flakes came down at a much more rapid rate than in the past few days, and drifts began to pile up.

MUSSOLINI SCORNS ATTACKS DELIVERED BY FOREIGN PRESS

Our Motto Is Still Fight, Premier Tells Followers on Anniversary Day.

PROMISES TO LEAD TO GREATER VICTORY

Duce Warns Other Parties to Be Less Talkative if They Would Live.

Rome, March 28 (By A. P.).—Fascism's seventh birthday was enthusiastically celebrated today throughout the nation with imposing ceremonies attended by hundreds and thousands of "black shirts." Premier Mussolini and other members of the cabinet reviewed one of the great parades, and heard with approval the pledges of the fascists to continue making fascism all powerful.

In Rome 50,000 black shirts marched to the strains of the hymn, "Youth," and saluted the Duce.

Premier Reviews Battle.

Premier Mussolini delivered a speech at the Villaglori hippodrome. He told of the fateful meeting in Milan in 1919 and of those who had followed him in the struggle for intervention in the early days and during the war, a meeting which brought about the organization of the fighting Italian fascisti.

In that name, Mussolini declared, was embodied the program of fascism, as he had wanted it, and this program still remained the same—fight.

The duce recalled how the newspapers of that time wanted to ignore his name, and he was defeated in the elections just at the moment when representatives of the old political parties began the process of decomposition.

"In the face of such demoralization and decomposition," said the premier, "the state, which could not much longer resist the exploitation and parasitism of the old parties, did not have the courage or was not capable of overcoming these political classes which had brought us into the war.

Needed New Revolt.

"These politicians, who during the war often trembled with cowardice and who did not give the glorious troops of Italy either triumph abroad or triumph at home; these political classes which spoiled in unworthy fashion the marvelous treasures of an Italian victory, had to be dispersed and annihilated by another revolution.

"That is what we have done by organizing and realizing the march on Rome, which already for some years past has assumed the aspect of a legend."

"The counter-revolution which we have crushed at home and which was vainly organized abroad, is the best proof that we have accomplished a revolution. To the responsible elements of the nation we say: 'You must also pass through the same process as we. If you want to live you must do away with loquacious parliamentarism; you must give authority to the legislative powers.

Must Face Issue.

If you want to live you must face the most serious problem of this century, that of the relations between capital and labor—the problem which fascism has solved by plainly placing capital and labor on the same level in the face of a common goal—the prosperity and grandeur of the nation."

"You are absolutely impatient in the expectation of something (cries of "yes, yes"). I promised you last year that we would have a fine opportunity and I have kept my word. Will you believe me if I tell you that your impatience will be appeased some day? ("yes! yes").

"Before I say one word about this victory which also is mine, it is necessary you become disciplined to the very limit in your daily work. The great hour does not strike every moment, and not on all clocks. The wheel of destiny turns; wise is the man who watches and knows the moment to grasp it as it passes by.

"It is necessary that our divine and adorable fascist Italy be vigilant and firm in the work of peace, and that she adapt herself to the needs of work and become systematic, tenacious and persevering.

"I want to correct Italians of some of their faults," their optimistism, and their negligence, their letting go after the first try, in the belief that all has been accomplished despite the fact that much that should be accomplished has not even been begun.

Matteotti Affair Paper.

"Comrades in the shadow of our flags which were blessed here by a priest of the religion of our fathers, in which we believe it is beautiful to live, but it will be still more beautiful if it is necessary to die."

Speaking of the campaign unloosed by his adversaries after the Matteotti affair Mussolini asserted that all this had been reduced to a few tons of paper, printed for a calumnious campaign, which only hastened the annihilation of the opposition.

"Within one year," he continued, "we have given to the Italian people laws of revolutions, laws of social reconstruction, reorganization of the army, the navy and the air service. All this in a single year.

"I am happy to tell you, comrades that we all, and in the first place I myself attach no importance to what is said and printed abroad. It is quite logical that the international world of democracy, liberalism and Masonry, and plutocracy, without a country, should be against us."

FRENCH PRETENDER DIES AT PALERMO

military authorities of those countries, out of courtesy to the French government,, refused to accept him.

In the later years of his life he was reported to be suffering from various affections, even mental incompetency. Last year the duke, in a letter, expressed his sorrow at the thought of his forty years of exile, and protested against the injustice of allowing common malefactors to recross the frontier under amnesty while he was inexorably barred by the sheer accident of birth. Of that forty-year exile period the duke passed most of the time in England.

King's Career Dramatic.

The death of the Duke of Orleans brings back to memory the glories of the Kings of France, of Louis Philippe I, who was great grandfather of the duke. He had eight children and his eldest son Ferdinand Philippe, also bearing the title of Duke of Orleans was killed in a carriage accident in 1842. The Comte de Paris, then only four years old became heir-apparent to the French throne.

It was in 1830 that Louis Philippe ascended the throne, and his coming was as dramatic as his abdication and the flight in 1848. Lafayette and Thiers were the prime movers in his elevation. The Bourbons had held power since 1814, except for the hundred days of Napoleon. Then came the revolution in July 1830, and the accession of the Orleans family.

Louis Philippe had accepted the throne, promising to meet the wishes of his supporters—a popular monarchy surrounded by republican institutions.

Abdicated and Fled

He soon began to swerve from this and exiled Louis Napoleon to the United States. The final act that brought about his abdication was the killing or wounding of 50 Parisians in revolutionary disturbances in 1848. When, after this incident, the crowds pressed on to the Tuileries, the king, terrified, signed his abdication in favor of his grandson, the Comte de Paris, and fled to England under an assumed name.

The second republic was proclaimed. Cavaignac assumed the dictatorship until Louis Napoleon, returning to France, was elected to the presidency of the Republic in 1851. Soon afterward came a coup d'etat which triumphed against the second republic and in its place came the second empire, with Napoleon III as emperor. There followed the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, and the abdication of Napoleon after the defeat of his armies. The empire collapsed and a government of national defense was set up. Since then France has been under a republican form of government, confirmed by a constitutional law in 1875.

MEDICAL INSPECTION OF PUPILS IS SOUGHT FOR SCHOOLS HERE

Transfer of Service From Health Department Will Be Asked.

M'CARL RULING UPSET FORMER CONTROL PLAN

Monday Evening Club Survey Shows District Lags Behind Other Cities.

Effort to have Congress enact legislation specifically and clearly placing school medical inspection service under administration of school authorities, instead of under direction of the District health department, is being urged by school officials and members of the board of education.

Originally placed under control of school authorities by Congress this arrangement was upset by a ruling by Comptroller General McCarl that the work must come under control of the health officer. There is no disposition on the part of school officials to find fault with the conduct of the work by Dr. William C. Fowler, health officer, but they profess to see in it danger of a serious limitation of the work.

Behind Other Cities.

The matter has come before the Monday Evening club, which is sponsoring an enlarged medical inspection program, based on a detailed survey of work done here, which has been contrasted to the needs of District school children and the work done among school children by other cities throughout the country. The survey, Walter Hatch, chairman of the health committee of the club, declared, shows Washington lagging far behind other cities.

Favorable action on the proposed increased appropriations for the work for next year was defeated, partially, at least, by the belief among House committee members that the Washington public was not interested in expenditure of more money for medical work among school children.

"There is probably no one thing which has received such widespread and continuous support from the people of Washington as has been given the medical inspection work," Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, declared.

Money Well Spent.

"Expenditure of a few thousand dollars is going to bring back to us, through the prevention of disease, correction of unsuspected ailments and minor defects, with resultant better health, many times the amount spent in actual money, to say nothing of the economic gain of general improvement in health and ability of our future generations," Mr. Hatch said.

"There must not be permitted to develop a situation which will bring about a restriction of this important work, of which we are not now doing nearly enough."

Supporters of the work have not determined what action will be taken toward putting the work back under direction of the schools. They are anxious to do nothing which will interfere at this time with pending appropriations and are exerting every effort to persuade members of the Senate to increase the House appropriation.

COUNCIL CANDIDATES PREPARE CAMPAIGN

woman member is said to be an influence in her behalf.

The present members of the council who are candidates for reelection stand the best chance, according to the general opinion. These are Mr. Stull, Dr. George C. Havenner, nominated by six associations of Anacostia, and the sections across the river; George R. Wales, of the Cathedral Heights Citizens association, and W. I. Swanton, nominated by the Columbia Heights and Mount Pleasant associations.

William S. Torbert, a retiring member of the council from the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens association, states that he will make a special effort this week in behalf of the reelection of these candidates.

The circulation of literature is a feature of the campaign. Friends of Proctor L. Dougherty, nominated by the Chevy Chase Citizens association, are distributing literature boosting him.

The greater part of the campaigning, however, will be the buttonhole method. Some will vary their efforts. Ernest H. Pullman, nominated by the Manor Park Citizens association, is one of the outstanding new candidates, and his friends are making an earnest fight for him. Friends of Mr. Faulkner are pressing his campaign. F. M. Cannon, nominated by the Washington Highlands Citizens' association, announces that his campaign will be both by literature and the personal efforts of his friends.

be reelected, there will be but two. Should all the former members additional places to be filled. This will place the more interesting part of the contest between Mr. Strobel, of the Southwest; Mrs. Snell and the other candidates from the Northwest and East.

BODY OF DOWAGER QUEEN OF DENMARK IS PLACED IN TOMB

Raskilde Cathedral a Scene of Beauty as Royal Cortege Arrives.

COFFIN IS FOLLOWED BY KINGS AND PRINCES

Scandinavian Rulers Join the Danish People in Last Honors to Louise.

Copenhagen, Denmark, March 28 (By A. P.).—The Danish people today paid last honors to the late Queen Mother Louise, who was laid to rest in Glucksburg chapel of the Roskilde cathedral, ancient burial place of Danish royalties. A great gathering of the Scandinavian royal families and representatives of foreign countries, including the members of the American legation, attended the ceremony.

The funeral cortege, escorted by military detachments, left Amalienborg castle and proceeded to railway station for the journey to Roskilde, about 31 miles from Copenhagen. Great crowds had gathered and all the houses were draped with black.

Services at Castle.

Brief religious ceremonies were held just before the start, a more eleborate ceremony for the royal family having been conducted at the castle the previous night, with leading opera singers forming the choir.

The kings and crown princes of Denmark and Norway, with the Crown Prince of Sweden, Prince Arthur of Connaught, and other princes followed the hearse afoot while the royal ladies, including the queens of Denmark and Norway were in carriages. Beautiful wreaths surrounded the coffin. On arrival at Roskilde the body of the dowager queen was received in a scene of solemn beauty by the whole chapter of the cathedral in official robes, but, at the king's special request, the cathedral was not draped.

Royal Chaplain Preaches.

The funeral sermon by the royal chaplain, Dr. Fenger, gave a touching picture of the late dowager queen's solemn joy at having lived to welcome back to Denmark that Danish section of Schlesvig, which by a plebiscite in 1920 elected to come under the Danish flag.

At the conclusion of the impressive service the body was deposited beside the tomb of Queen Louise's husband, King Frederick VIII.

Prince Axel of Denmark swooned in the chapel after the burial.

Countess of Cathcart Withdraws Her Play

New York, March 28 (By A. P.) The Countess of Cathcart has withdrawn her play, "Ashes of Love," from Broadway after a week of scanty audiences.

"I'm closing 'Ashes of Love' because it is bad," she said. "The play, however, was not the same that I had written—it was changed so much. I shall have another shot at writing one and hope to do better."

The play had its American premiere in Washington. The countess brought the piece to New York after repurchasing the rights to it from Earl Carroll, with what she said was the last of her jewels, a $20,000 pearl necklace.

Crowds in a Panic As 2 Are Shot Dead

Lawrence, Mass., March 28 (By A. P.).—An argument that ended in gunplay cost the lives of two men here last night. A man believed to be Sam Manzio, of Providence, R. I., was shot dead by a man who escaped, and a stray bullet, shattering the glass of a passing automobile, penetrated the head of its driver, Harold W. Trumbull, of this city.

Manzio and his assailant "fought it out" in a thickly settled district, which was thrown into a panic by the shooting. Angelo di Gloria, who was talking with the two men before the shooting, was grazed by another bullet. He said he did not know what caused the shooting.

Youth, 20, Convicted Of Killing His Bride

Hartsville, Tenn., March 28 (By A. P.).—Noel Lynnville, 20 years old, was found guilty of first degree murder in connection with the death of his bride and sentenced to 20 years and one day in prison. His mother, Mrs. Jasper Lynnville, tried jointly with him, was acquitted.

On the witness stand Mrs. Lynnville assumed full responsibility for a sandwich in which the State contended a fatal quantity of poison was administered to Mrs. Lethia Gregory Lynnville, 18. Noel Lynnville, who had eloped with the girl, denied any connection with the poisoning.

Gen. Bramwell Booth Soon Will Visit U. S.

New York, March 28 (By A. P.). Gen. Bramwell Booth, world leader of Salvation Army forces, and son of William Booth, the founder, will come to this country to conduct territorial congresses in Chicago and New York city next month, the army headquarters here announced today.

Gen. Booth is expected to arrive from England about April 14. He will proceed immediately to Chicago for the first congress of representatives of central and Western States. The New York congress will be in session from April 24 to 29.

Tim Murphy, Facing Jail, Avoids Chicago

Chicago, March 28 (By A. P.).—The "homecoming" planned for "Big Tim" Murphy's return after serving three years in the Leavenworth penitentiary for complicity in the Dearbon Station $385,000 mail robbery in 1921, fell through when Mrs. Murphy arrived alone in Chicago today. She disappointed a throng of Murphy's friends with the information that he had remained in Kansas City until a difficulty over payment of a $10,000 fine, levied in connection with his prison sentence, could be straightened out.

A celebration planned by the Gas House Workers union was upset when Murphy was informed that he would be met in Chicago by United States deputy marshals with a writ demanding payment of the fine.

218,217 NAMES ERASED OFF CHICAGO POLL LIST

Voters Fail to Respond to "Suspect" Notices Sent Through the Mails.

CONTEMPT CASE HINTED

Chicago, Ill., March 28 (By A. P.).—The names of 218,217 voters were erased from the city registration lists last night after that number had failed to respond to "suspect" notices sent out after Tuesday's registration and subsequent charges of fraudulent addition on names, it was announced tonight by the election commissioner. Last night was set aside to give persons named on the "suspect" list opportunity to qualify, and the removal of names was ordered when no one responded to verify names on the registration lists. Earlier in the day the postoffice had announced that more than 100,000 of the notices mailed had been returned because addresses could not be located.

Charges that the lists were "stuffed" were made by the faction headed by United States Senator Deneen and intense interest was incident to the revision of last night. Police were on guard at the polls, but made no arrests. Three precinct election officials were arrested under orders of an assistant State's attorney, but were later released on habeas corpus writs.

Intimation of contempt of court proceedings against State's Attorney Crowe and police officials were made by County Judge Jarrecki, who asserted that the city officers stepped beyond the limits of their authority in the matter, which he said was in the jurisdiction of his court. Judge Jarrecki announced his action would be guided by investigation into the statute.

APPEAL TO SUSPEND PLEBISCITE DECLINED

Holds Peru Not Responsible.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In an article published in this (Saturday) morning's Washington Post, regarding the actual state of affairs existing between Chile and Peru, there appear two statements in regard to certain facts which I can not let pass by without making the proper rectification, being sure that you will accept it with the spirit of justice which you always possess.

In the first place I wish to state that Peru, far from placing any obstacles to the celebration of the arbitral award and the proposed plebiscite intended to determine the final status of the provinces of Tacna and Arica, has always done everything in her power to cooperate toward the realization of the terms as expressed in the mentioned award and also in the agreements adopted by the plebiscitary commission, therefore has not the slightest responsibility in a situation created only and exclusively by the nonfulfillment of said arrangements.

It is also inexact that the Peruvians living in those provinces had ever "attacked the Chileans." On the contrary, they have always acted in the most correct manner, to such an extent that during the entire time elapsed since the award was issued there has never been recognized any act of hostility on the part of the Peruvians.

The above rectification is supported by the public opinion and also by official authentic documents issued mostly by the American commissioners.

I would appreciate very much the publicity of this letter, kindly requesting you to accept the sentiments of my highest consideration.

Yours very respectfully,
HERNAN VELARDE,
Ambassador of Peru.

Spain to Teach All Mendicants a Trade

Madrid, March 28 (By A. P.).—Mendicants and vagrants must get down to do useful work, the Spanish government has decided, says La Nacion, the government press organ today.

All beggars and vagrants will be rounded up and sent to a trade school to be taught a useful trade. The alternative is the workhouse. Minors will be sent to charitable institutions to learn to read and write and to become artisans.

Grandmother at 32; Said to Hold Record

Martinsburg, W. Va., March 28.—In the last few weeks there has been considerable rivalry in certain sections of West Virginia as to who is the State's youngest grandmother. Three or four communities have presented candidates, but the records show the honor belongs to Mrs. J. A. Mathnae, of Martinsburg, who is but 35 and who became a grandmother at 32, when a son was born to her daughter, Mrs. Robert Zirkle.

KINGDOM OF CHRIST IS POWER IN WORLD, DR. CANDLER HOLDS

Preaching at Conference of Baltimore District, He Shows Its Strength.

DEACONS AND ELDERS ORDAINED TO OFFICE

Bishop Will Read List of Appointments Today; Many Changes Expected.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., March 28.—Bright spring weather and a sermon by Bishop Warren A. Candler, of Atlanta, Ga., attracted Southern Methodists from a 100-mile radius today to Braddock Street Methodist Episcopal Church South, where the 140d Baltimore annual conference is drawing to a close. Hundreds from northern Virginia and nearby States came early and remained late tonight.

Seven services were held in the conference church, starting with Sunday school, Bible classes, love feasts and morning worship, at which Bishop Candler preached, afternoon evangelistic services, Epworth league sessions and evening preaching.

Methodist clergymen occupied all Protestant pulpits in Winchester and surrounding cities and towns morning and evening and immense congregations attended.

Bishop Candler Ordains.

Following his sermon Bishop Candler ordained these deacons: Claude A. Larrick, David R. Cleckner, Harry W. Fowler, William Clews, Harold H. Hoyt, Charles R. Curtis, James H. Brown, William Preston Good, Edward Bryon Cook, Richard R. Neese and John Saunders Schwartz. The scripture lesson was read by the Rev. Dr. Harry M. Canter, presiding elder of Winchester district, and prayer offered by the Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, presiding elder, of Washington district.

Following the sermon by the Rev. Dr. Frank H. Parker, of Emory university, Atlanta, tonight, Bishop Candler ordained as elders John B. Grimes, John Wesley Seay, Elmer Allen Wiltshire, Arthur W. Groscup, Newton C. Rice, John Knox, Clarence E. Kirby and Obed L. Gochenour.

The Rev. Dr. Henry W. Bromley, general conference evangelist, preached this afternoon on "The Supremacy of Christ."

Bishop Candler will read appointments for the coming year tomorrow. Nearly 40 of the 250 active pastors have served four years or longer, and all but a few are to be transferred, while it is expected quite a number who have served three years will be given new charges. The bishop and his cabinet were working on the final draft late tonight.

"The kingdom of heaven, its nature and permanency," formed the keynote of Bishop Candler's sermon this morning from John xviii:36. In a discourse of more than an hour he traced the history of the Kingdom of God through the life and thought of the world. He declared vigorously that Jesus was not using a metaphor when he spoke of the kingdom of heaven.

"Although it is not a visible kingdom," he said, "it is no less powerful for that reason. A man has a sorry kingdom when he has to keep his crown pinned on his head with a bayonet."

Permanency of Ideas.

To show how the kingdom of ideas gained permanency by sheer force of their content, he said the teachings of Plato were more permanent than the conquests of Alexander. The highest moral ideas were religious, he said, citing the history of Mohammedism, Buddhism, and the like. "People will pay for these. In Japan a temple is built out of the hair of the women."

"Religious ideas," he declared, have their greatest expression in Christianity. It is manifest in commanding of the world's resources expressed by money. With all its stinginess, the church of Jesus Christ can raise more revenue on the face of the earth today than any other institution. It began with the mite of the widow, the alabaster box of the woman and the extraction of a coin from the mouth of a fish, and we can command money now.

"You will never have a warless world until you have a righteous world under the dominion of the Prince of Peace. The Master does not need the chief of police to run His kingdom. He did not need the Roman government."

The bishop concluded with an application of the Gospel for all the ages, declaring that "the glory of the Kingdom of Heaven shall be realized only when kingdoms of this world shall become the Kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ."

2 STATE WITNESSES AGAINST SCOTT GONE

Robbery, Not Murder, Charge to Be Tried; Defense Loses Ruling.

Special to The Washington Post.

Chicago, March 27.—Two of the State's important witnesses against Robert Scott, brother of Russell Scott, who was saved from the gallows by a last minute insanity plea, have disappeared, it became known today. This is the reason for the persistent effort on the part of the State to force the bandit to trial on the robbery charges rather than for the murder of Ralph Maurer, drug clerk in the city hall pharmacy.

John Douglas, a bell boy, and Elizabeth (Billy) Davis, both eyewitnesses to the crime, are the missing witnesses.

Attorney William Scott Stewart, who successfully saved Russell Scott from the gallows, lost in his fight to force the State to trial in the murder case. Judge William N. Gemmill in the criminal court yesterday ruled that the prosecution might proceed to trial with Scott for the robbery of John M. Flynn on April 1, 1924, the night before the murder.

BEACH RAID TRIAL IS SET FOR TODAY

Case to Be Heard by Judge Isaac D. Arnold at Brentwood, Md.

The trial of Mrs. Mary Beach and sixteen young men arrested in her home at Daniels Park, Md., March 13, will be held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock before Judge Isaac D. Arnold at Brentwood, Md. Mrs. Beach is charged with conducting a disorderly house, and the men face various charges.

The defendants requested a change of venue from the court of justice of the peace Retta D. Morris, of Hyattsville. They claimed they would not get a fair trial before the woman magistrate. A large crowd is expected to jam the office of the mayor and town council, where the trial will be held.

Two of the men arrested, George Walsh and John Dugan, of Hyattsville, are charged with assault and battery as the result of their alleged resistance of arrest. Walsh recently swore out a warrant against Constable Guy Robey and Special Officer Bernard Rowe, charging them with assault and battery in connection with the raid. The policemen are under bond to appear before the grand jury next month.

Virginia Man Kills 3 After Wife Departs

Harlan, Ky., March 28 (By A. P.).—Less than 24 hours after he is alleged to have slain Joe Jenkins, 28; his wife, 25, and Mrs. Esther Howard, 27, Haske Dockey, 20 years old, Ocanita, Va., was arrested and indicted on three counts of murder. Sheriff J. S. Green said Dockey admitted the slayings, which occurred Friday night at the Howard home, where Dockey's estranged wife was staying.

"I went to the house to kill them all," the sheriff quoted Dockey as saying in his confession. "After I had killed Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. Howard my wife agreed to flee with me. I had intended to kill my wife and then myself."

CRUSHING OF SPIRIT NO LONGER SOUGHT AT ATLANTA PRISON

Institution Has Become Real Reformatory, Observer of Conditions Holds.

OVERCROWDING MAIN PROBLEM TO BE MET

Greater Opportunity to Give the Inmates Employment Is Considered Necessity.

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.

Atlanta, Ga., March 28.—Atlanta has a reorganized Federal penitentiary. The old order has passed. Where the prison in years gone had a reputation as a spirit crusher, today there is a new note sounded by the inmates. The old gray prison has been transformed into a reformatory, in fact as well as in name, and the discontent which has been so marked, and which resulted in many outbreaks against control, today is gone.

Like all other Federal prisons Atlanta is overcrowded. Today there are 2,912 persons confined within the walls. The result is, of course, that the cells are overflowing and those designed for four persons now house eight, while those intended for two contain four. In order to relieve the congestion Warden John W. Snook, who was brought from Idaho to take charge of the prison, has transformed certain sections of the main prison formerly used as storerooms into dormitories. This relief is only temporary, however, and if the courts are to continue sending prisoners here additional buildings must be constructed.

Dope Prisoners in Majority.

Analysis of the records of the prison show that the claim made generally that the overcrowding of the Federal prisons is due to the increasing severity of the courts in cases for violation of the prohibition law is not based on facts. Of the total of 2,912 inmates of Atlanta today 1,017, or slightly more than 31 per cent of the total, are serving time for violation of the Harrison narcotic law. And most of these are themselves drug users, according to the records. Nearly 400 additional are held on sentences for violation of the prohibition law, so that the two classes represent more than 42 per cent of the total prison population. The remainder, according to statements of the officials in charge, are for the most part bankrupt business men convicted of using the mails to defraud and quite a number who violated the Mann act.

The total population of the prison includes 2,153 whites, 736 negroes, 8 Indians, 3 Mexicans, and 12 Orientals. As an indication of the manner in which they are living up to the rules it was pointed out by Warden Snook that there are 2,831 in the first class, which carries with it all privileges, 76 trusties in the main prison, and 140 trusties on the prison farm. Only 31 prisoners are carried on the third-class role, which compares with some 300 at the time the present administration took over the prison.

The pressing necessity today, the officials say, is more work for the inmates. They all want to work, but it is impossible to find employment for more than one-third of those who are confined here. This is a one-industry prison. It houses a duck mill in which as many men as possible are given work and, incidentally, afforded an opportunity to earn money for their dependents. Under direction of the prison authorities a survey of the families of the inmates has just been completed. It revealed that many are in dire want and are being supported either in part or entirely by charity either from relatives or quasi public organizations.

Prisoners Are Paid.

It is to relieve this pressure that the policy of paying a wage to the mill workers was instituted. Under it there was paid to the dependents of prisoners last year $70,158.58. The duck manufactured is used entirely by government departments. The Postoffice Department gets all of the material for its mail sacks from this source, while the navy and the army are furnished with goods from which underwear is manufactured. Acording to the latest balance sheet of the mill, it showed a net profit for the government last year of $93,982.75. The total value of the goods manufactured last year was $1,682,200.

The inmate earns only a pittance, the average being about $8 a month. But this small amount, the records indicate, is of material benefit to the dependents. The warden has urged the officials in Washington to authorize the establishment of a yarn mill, which would be conducted along the lines of the duck mill and would give work to between 700 and 1,000 additional men.

"It is a hardship for the men to be denied work," explained Warden Snook today. "We do the best we can for them. We have, of course, the usual minor industries of an institution of this sort to do the work for the place itself. But always there are many more men for each possible job than there is for employment. And it is hard to deny a man an opportunity to keep himself occupied."

The warden is a great believer in the outdoors and has so arranged matters that plenty of outdoor recreation can be had. There is a baseball diamond, a basketball and volley ball court and tennis courts laid out under the shadow of the main wall which surrounds the prison. Tennis is one of the most popular sports and five new courts now are being laid out. It is because of the latitude which is given in these sports that the list of first-class prisoners is so large. The men in the second and third grades are all anxious to enjoy the sports and they are given opportunity to earn the coveted grade.

Entrants in First Grade.

Under the rules each prisoner is entered in the first grade upon arrival and after he has passed the doctor and been assigned to a cell. The loss of the first grade comes with violation of the prison rules, copies of which are furnished to each man. As a general thing minor violations are overlooked, but there is a certain percentage of men who do not take kindly to discipline at all and it is from this class that the second and third grades are recruited. However, it has been the experience of the prison authorities that after men have been deprived of luxuries and privileges they soon determine to earn their right to reinstatement and they work hard to attain that end. In this they are encouraged by the warden as much as possible.

The routine of the prisoner is not difficult. On arrival all prisoners are examined by the prison physician or his assistant for evidences of ill health. They are bathed and kept segregated for a few days.

After being passed by the doctor the prisoner is instructed in the rules of conduct by the deputy warden. He also is furnished with a copy of the rules he is expected to obey and which are the same in all of the Federal prisons. Each prisoner then signs an order authorizing the warden or his agent to open and read all mail. The rules for the most part are simple in character and designed especially to insure complete discipline at all times. The privileges of the first-grade prisoners include:

One ration of chewing tobacco and one of smoking tobacco each week to those prisoners who have the habit, to write once every two weeks to relatives, to receive all proper letters directly through the warden's office, to receive one daily or weekly newspaper direct from the publishers (this rule is enforced because in the past it has been found that prisoners have received narcotics smuggled in newspapers, so it is insisted that such papers come direct from the publishers in the usual mailing form), to receive visits from relatives and friends every two weeks in the presence of an officer, to receive from relatives or friends family photographs, plain white towels, horn comb, hair brush, tooth paste, tooth brush, small hand mirror, suspenders, plain white handkerchiefs and plain black ties; permission to write special letters when authorized by the warden or deputy warden when urgent and important.

Privileges of Other Grades.

Second-grade prisoners enjoy the same privileges as first-grade, except that they can write only once in four weeks and receive visits from relatives only once in four weeks.

The third grade carries no privileges whatever.

The punishments include reprimand, loss of one or more privileges, reduction in grade, loss of part or all good time, confinement in solitary cells and confinement in dark cells on restricted diet. The punishment cells in Atlanta, however, are much different than they formerly were. The so-called dark cells have been done away with. They were a hole in the ground in which the convict neither saw a person or the light of day. The present punishment cells are roomy, being 21 feet long by 8 feet wide and 14 feet high. It is the solitude which is most dreaded, and there are very few prisoners who stay there long. It is up to the man himself, as he must indicate contrition before he is sent back to the main prison. When prisoners abuse guards they are ironed to the cell door, but this form of punishment has not been resorted to in months.

Prisoners desiring tobacco, cigars and cigarettes have the privilege of purchasing these commodities when they have the money on deposit with the warden's office to pay for them. Purchases are made from the chief clerk on a special form provided for that purpose.

EASTER COATS

Elaborateness has established its vogue, and except for strictly tailored or sports wear, Coats show this new note of chic. In Charmeens, Satins, Failles, Twills, Bengalines or Taffetas, we note the peasant sleeve, so delightfully feminine.

It puffs out from the elbow or just below and is caught in again at the wrist. Sometimes it is pleated, and frequently, in the more dressy wraps, it is gaily embroidered. One feels so smartly garbed, wearing a clever new Coat with peasant sleeves.

WIFE OF SURGEON HELD IN $30,000 CHECK CASE

Arrested With Brother and Man She Is Alleged to Have Eloped With.

FORGIVEN, SAYS HUSBAND

New York, March 28 (By A. P.). Charged with defrauding Florida banks of $30,000 through bad checks and violation of the Mann act, Mrs. Doris Berne, wife of a plastic surgeon, Dr. Louis P. Berne, was arrested today with two men, one of them the man with whom she is said to have eloped to Florida a year ago, leaving her 6-year-old son, Allison Berne, ill with pneumonia.

Dr. Berne, who said he had forgiven his wife after her return to him, accompanied her to the police station, where she was held with Eliott Jaffe, 21 years old, her brother, and Paul Rosenthal, 32 years old, with whom Dr. Berne said she had eloped.

Dr. Berne said Rosenthal was the son of a "very wealthy shirt manufacturer." Mrs. Berne eloped with Rosenthal in February, 1925, Dr. Berne said, taking $45,000 from a safe deposit vault. She was gone two months, and then he learned that Rosenthal had deserted her. He sent her money in Florida and she returned to him.

"I forgave her because I knew she was a good woman," Dr. Berne said. "I don't know what kind of influence Rosenthal had over her and her brother."

The arrests were made in cooperation with Federal agents, who said all three had been identified by bank officials here. The arrests were made on a warrant issued by Judge Ramsay, Miami, Fla., charging them with defrauding the American Bank & Trust Co., the Central National Bank and the First National Bank of St. Petersburg, Fla., of $30,000.

Mrs. Berne and Rosenthal were charged with violation of the Mann act, as a result of Dr. Berne's story of the elopement to Florida.

Dr. Berne and Herman Jaffe, who conferred with the surgeon at the police station, were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct on the compaint of a newspaper photographer who charged that they smashed his camera. Dr. Berne and Mr. Jaffe are said to have engaged in a free-for-all fight with photographers and reporters when a photographer took their picture as they were talking together. Mr. Jaffe, who is 67, gave his address as Hoboken, N. J.

Citizenship Topic Of Recorder Free

Arthur G. Free, recorder of deeds, was the principal speaker at a meeting of the Women's Political Study club yesterday at the residence of Mrs. F. J. Hall, 1646 Third street northwest He discussed the fundamentals of citizenship, advising his hearers to begin politics at the bottom rather than at the top, to study and gain practical experience in the precinct and ward before undertaking solution of national and international problems.

He advised a special study of primaries and their origin and purpose, and indicated his belief that women carefully trained in politics would mean eventually America's redemption. J. F. Blackburn responded. Musical numbers were rendered by Mrs. W. M. Lomack, Mrs. Creed Parker and W. E. Lew, Miss Jeanette Carter presided.

Hardy, of the United States coast and geodetic survey, which is to take place Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the clubhouse of George Washington Post No. 1, the American Legion, 1829 I street northwest.

Tariff Session Postponed.

The meeting of the special tariff committee of the Senate scheduled to take place at 10 o'clock this morning has been postponed until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning on account of the inability of Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Senator Wadsworth, of New York, to be present.

AT THE LOCAL THEATERS

METROPOLITAN

For the mere sum of 55 cents one may join the ranks of the sophisticated Arlen fans and see his first (may we be preserved from a second) screen masterpiece on view at the Metropolitan this week, "The Dancer of Paris."

The picture is a doggy, Arlenesque bit of hokum, designed, obviously for the rustic hometown trade. The plot is negligible, and the acting, if any, is carried on by Dorothy Mackaill, Conway Tearle and Robert Cain.

"The Dancer of Paris" endeavors to bring out the differences in the natures of two men, psychologically. There is Sir Roy, remember this is an Arlen story, who is described as a dope fancier and, in consequence, a lewd fellow; there is Conway Tearle, the eternally rich boy friend, and there is Dorothy Mackaill in all her blonde slenderness.

The story originates beneath a florid Florida moon, where Robert Cain is discovered necking Dot. Things do not go on smothly and there is the inevitable "bust-up" in which his lordship is denounced as a dishonorable fellow, and Dorothy informs him that though he doesn't love her she'll haunt him, and follow him, the rest of his days. From this promising start, the plot takes a swerve Pariswards and Dot is pictured as doing well in the terpsichorean line, while his nibs is successful as the gay boulevardier. A Parisian version of Earl Carroll's party, minus the tub, is shown to the awe-struck fans. Meanwhile Dorothy has all Paris at her feet, and at this interesting period she meets Conway. From this point the picture is more or less hokum, although one or two scenes wherein the Arlen element was stressed brought a variety of chortles from the paid customers in the balcony. The climax and denouement concern the way in which the nobleman sought to bring discredit upon his former love. But everything is finally righted—the duke dies and Conway takes the fragile Dorothy back to Florida, the Land of Opportunity.

Supplementing the main feature is a very clever Helen and Warren comedy, "His Own Lawyer," a Pathe News, a cornet solo by the gentleman on the right, and the usual house numbers round out the bill.

STRAND

The feature attraction of the Strand season is there this week, with Harry B. Watson, Reb. B. Merville and Olga Woods in a miniature revue, entitled "Fifty Miles From Broadway." There are some snappy dancing scenes, and every member of the company plays some musical instrument, from a bass drum to a saxophone.

Carson and Willard, in "Meet the Doctor," show a little bit of everything. Fortune telling, joke cracking, dancing, singing and a good line of chatter keep the audience in a good mood.

Wayne Beeman and Grace Alma present "You'll Be Surprised," a go-getting scene of two acts. The first act is musical, while the second deals in some fancy roller skating. The Ja Da trio received a good hand from the audience in "Three Sailors and a Piano." Washington's own champion old-time fiddler, Morgan Kelly, does his bit. Johnny Francis and Rene Wilson appear in "Acromedians."

The photoplay feature is a melodrama of love, tears, terror and joy, entitled "Bride of the Storm," starring Dolores Costello. It is a stirring picture, laid in a lighthouse on the coast of far-off China.

The program closes with orchestra pieces, "Chinky Butterfly," by David, and an exit march, "Behind the Clouds," by De Sylva.

GAYETY

Lewis Talbot presents his all new 1926 edition, "Wine, Women and Song," with Harry LeVan and Nate Busby, at the Gayety this week. Again the Columbia circuit sends a good, all-around entertainment, topped by the capable "Shuffle" LeVan as the only plumber in town, in Hebrew make-up, and seconded by comic Nate Busby, an excellent comedian in blackface. This team is hard to beat in easy, natural humor.

Miss Helen Kennedy, prima donna and leading woman, gives an enviable performance, singing jazz classical numbers with a soprano of startling clearness. William DeGray was the dramatic hit of the show in a melodramatic sketch of the Tenderloin. Arthur Putnam played a variety of parts, but was best in a comedy scene laid in the attic of a haunted inn. George Kinnear used his pleasing voice with good results. Edgar Rand and Charles Dodson were additions to the line-up. Dottie Bates, about as big as 30 seconds, and blonde, danced and sang a la Pennington. Alma Montague, a brunette, showed versatility in her musical numbers. Pearl Smith led the peppy chorus a merry chase in two song and dance hits.

KEITH'S

If there be such a thing as the average vaudeville bill to which the well-known mythical average man and his wife can repair for light entertainment, that bill is on the boards at Keith's this week. And, apparently the average audience was on hand last night to welcome it; notwithstanding the advent of holy week.

Honors are divided between Blossom Seeley and Charles Withers in his justly famous "Withers Op'ry," two acts poles apart in character but the outstanding bits of a program somewhat above mediocrity.

Last night Miss Seeley did what Miss Seeley always does; sings a few jazzy songs, dances somewhat, and displays the latest in gowns and hats to good advantage. She has an able assistant in Benny Fields, and the two youthful pianists who operate the twin pianos are by no means nonessential elements to the success of her act.

The "Withers Op'ry," as any vaudeville fan knows, is the stage version of the earlier Chaplin comedies on the movie screen. There are no custard pies thrown but every other mechanical means of provoking the mirth of those whose tastes run to such things is invoked. And it must be said the audience liked it.

Tom Bryan and Lillian Fairchild in "Billboard Steps" sing a few songs and dance a few dances and advertise a very much advertised brand of hosiery and a very much more advertised line of men's clothing. They do rather well by the act. And "Gentleman Jim" Corbett with Bobby Barry as a foil utilizes a rather snappy dialogue to illustrate some of the elements of the art of self-defense as he expounded it in the ring.

The Pathe News pictorial this week would be unusually good if the management could devise some legal form of homicide to control the polite ladies and gentlemen who arise immediately after the acrobats finish and stand in the seats and aisles until the motion picture part of the program is 90 per cent completed.

COLUMBIA

"The Untamed Lady" opened its second consecutive week at the Columbia yesterday. Frequent applause indicated that Gloria Swanson was glorifying the role of Joan to the complete satisfaction of the audience.

The theme of "The Untamed Lady" is strongly reminiscent of Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," but, of course, Gloria's starring vehicle is presented with all the trimmings and trappings of the "Jazz Age."

Plenty of action is apparent in "The Untamed Lady," which opens with a whiz-bang flourish and continues on its way to the finis with ever-increasing intensity of heart throbs and high spots.

Gloria Swanson appears in the role of Joan, a grown-up edition of a very selfish and willful girl. She proceeds gayly on her irresponsible paths of existence, heedless of anyone's opinion, until she meets her heart's affinity, Lawrence Grey, a two-fisted he-man of the ruthless caveman type. Mr. Grey attempts to conquer the spirit and personality of Joan, but meets with little success. In fact, the conflict of opinion involving the love affairs of Joan and Lawrence Grey creates an unusual background for the interesting sequence of the film play, and causes much mental anguish and heart throbs for ladies of the audience.

However, true love conquers in the end and everything looks lovely when the final fade-out takes place. But, the ecstatic finis is retarded by many unlooked for incidents, including a cruise aboard a yacht, a terrific storm at sea, a broken engagement, Joan's flight to the lonely pine forest, seeking solace for her broken heart; the pursuit by Lawrence, his injury, and the pathetic scene in the hospital, which plays a vital part in the happy finale.

A Lige Conley comedy, "Light Housekeeping," the International Newsreel pictures and Thomas Gannon's orchestral contributions enliven the bill.

MUTUAL

Erin Jackson, the star, who is Friends" played before a capacity house at the Mutual last night.

Erin Jackson, the star, who is young, and making her first appearance in Washington, has one of the best figures in burlesque.

Mabelle Gerard's dancing is among the many features of the show. Roy Mapes came in for a great deal of applause featuring his song entitled "Left Hand Run." The show is well balanced, with a well trained chorus. Miss Jackson's ukelele number is the hit of the show, taking no less than ten encores.

PALACE

Money, the great magnet, is the dominant figure in "Miss Brewster's Millions," the film version of the stage success, which opened at the Palace yesterday to an enthusiastic, capacity audience. It is a Clarence Badger production for Paramount, of the famous novel of the same name by George Barr McCutcheon.

"Miss Brewster's Millions" went fast and furious from opening to closing, in one of the season's best comedy films. It is certainly a good cure for the blues, and is a review of the latest creations in New York and Paris gowns, coats, bathing suits and other feminine apparel.

To suddenly become the recipient of a million dollars to be disposed of, by investments only, within 30 days in order to gain five million more promised by "Uncle Eddie," is the great ordeal thrust upon Polly Brewster. Al Frisbee is the friend who helps her to spend, and Tom, the conscientious lawyer who has a difficult time saving some of her money and winning her heart.

"Miss Brewster's Millions" is starring Bebe Daniels as Polly Brewster, ably supported by Warner Baxter as Tom Barrington, Ford Sterling as Al Frisbee, and Andre Beranger as Brent, the director in the studio.

Supporting the feature picture is a good Mack Sennett comedy from "Rags to Breeches;" Pathe newsreel and Topics of the Day. In addition to these Bille Godney, barytone, is pleasing in the rendition of several selections. As usual Prof. Gannon and his orchestra delight the audience with splendid music.

EARLE

The Millionaire Jazz band, in a pretentious program, is the headline act at the Earle this week, opening yesterday afternoon. This popular organization of banker, broker and financier musicians is playing its return engagement at the Thirteenth street house, and does not seem to lose in popularity by repetition. The surprise is still there.

Chester Spencer and Lola Williams appear in a nut act of merit called "Putting It Over." They proved themselves to be the comedy hit of the show with material which through long familiarity suited them to a "T." Joy brothers and Gloom, three comedians, singers, and dancers, presenting "Frivolities of 1926," showed versatility and talent in difficult steps and characterizations. "Willie's Reception," a fast-moving, miniature revue with a quintet of singers, dancers and comedians, lacked a little in comic material, while it had an overweight of excellent dancing and singing. Dale and Fuller, two pulchritudinous "Imps in Satin," played many instruments and sang a number of songs with beauty and daintiness. The Powell troupe were the thrill sensation with dangerous feats on the tight-rope, including the inevitable "Charleston" on a wire.

Rod La Rocque with Marguerite De La Motte in Producer's melodramatic romance, "Red Dice," is this week's photoplay feature. This one gives the popular Rod a chance to figure in a number of exciting incidents and wear the latest in men's clothing. A news feature, Alex Aron's organ recital and Floyd Wheeler's orchestra in a short number complete an average bill.

Effective today, and continuously hereafter, the box seats for daily matinees, the orchestra and loge state, for evening performances, Monday to Friday, inclusive, and the orchestra seats for Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, at the Earle theater, will be reduced from 85 to 75 cents, according to announcement made last night.

RIALTO

"Combat," the House Peters film at the Rialto this week, is one of those kind of things that will appeal to that portion of the populace who have a kindly feeling toward the well-known wide open spaces where "rolling your own" refers to the manipulation of bull and cigaret paper rather than the manufacture of synthetic garters.

Every once in a while there comes along one of those pictures about the aforesaid wide open spaces and the men who are not cake-eaters, that is not spoiled in the direction or by the writer of subtitles. "Combat" is one of these pictures. It makes the grade as good clean entertainment for those whose tastes still harbor a sneaking sympathy for the adventures of Frank Merriwell and Nick Carter.

Getting down to details, the story is all about the adventures of a bold, handsome and virtuous but not insipid lumberjack who is hired to drive out the bad, wicked poachers who have been stealing logs from the lumber territory. But the manner in which he does it should, perhaps, be better left to the screen for revelation. And, of course, there is a love story with a happy ending.

FRIENDSHIP WITH SOVIET ADVOCATED BY IVY LEE

Standard Oil Publicity Man Writes to Elihu Root Favoring Inquiry.

SCOTT NEARING FAVORS

New York, March 28 (By A. P.). Ivy Lee, publicity agent for the Standard Oil Co. of New York and other corporations, made public today letters to Elihu Root, former Secretary of State, and to the Chamber of Commerce of New York, in which he advocated an investigation by the chamber of conditions in Russia with a view of restoring her "to a friendly and cooperative basis with the United States."

Declaring that he did not propose to aid a communist or socialist idea, Mr. Lee wrote to Mr. Root that he would like to see "a condition brought about under which you—and men like you—would think it wise to accord such recognition" to Russia. He added that his views were "wholly personal," and were not set forth as representing the opinions of his employers.

Mr. Lee said the letter to the chamber of commerce was a result of their action on January 7 in adopting a resolution urging that the United States should never accord recognition to Russia as long as the communistic party was dominant. Mr. Root replied that he considered the chamber's action right, and added: "For the United States to recognize Russia would be to acknowledge publicly that the avowed purpose of the present Russian government to overthrow by force our system of government is consistent with international friendship."

Recognition of the Russian soviet government by the United States was advocated by Scott Nearing, and opposed by J. Robert O'Brien, representing the National Security league, today, at a public debate in the Manhattan opera house.

Mr. O'Brien was heckled and occasionally jeered by the audience, of about 1,500 persons, and had difficulty in completing his final arguments in rebuttal. No vote was taken on the debate, which was sponsored by the Masses, a radical publication.

Mr. Nearing, formerly professor of economics at the University of Pennsylvania, declared that relations between American business men and the soviet indicated that the United States is ready to recognize that government. He also argued the need for social change, admitting "the aim of the soviet government is to organize the proletariat of the world and overthrow the capitalistic system."

Mr. O'Brien, granting that Russia had the privilege of choosing her own form of government, objected to soviet tactics in spreading propaganda.

GRANT TO JAPANESE STIRS U. S. OFFICIALS

syndicate headed by Dr. K. O. Osawa, a resident of San Pedro, Calif., had obtained permission to develop oil, rubber and vegetable dye resources in the 2,000,000-acre tract, the deal being arranged by Col. R. A. Vasquez, a Mexican army officer, who obtained the grant from the Mexican government. On the basis of this announcement officials were inclined to the opinion that the acquiring of this valuable foothold on Mexican soil by Japanese commercial interests would be in conflict with the Lodge resolution as adopted by the Senate on August 2, 1912.

This resolution was adopted by the Senate on the motion of the late Senator Lodge, Republican, Massachusetts, by a vote of 51 to 4, after it had been brought to the attention of the Senate that negotiations were in progress for the sale of about 4,000,000 acres of land by an American syndicate to a syndicate in which Japanese interests would be largely represented. This situation also involved Magdalena bay.

Text of Lodge Resolution.

Text of the Lodge resolution was as follows:

"Resolved, That when any harbor or other place in the American continents is so situated that the occupation thereof for naval or military purposes might threaten the communications or the safety of the United States, the government of the United States could not see without grave concern the possession of such harbor or other place by any corporation or association which has such a relation to another government, not American, as to give that government practical power of control for naval or military purposes."

At the time of the 1912 incident the Senate adopted a resolution on April 2 calling on President Taft to transmit any information in his possession relating to the purchase of land at Magdalena by the Japanese government or by a Japanese company.

On April 30 following President Taft sent to the Senate a communication from Secretary of State Knox stating that the department had no knowledge that the Japanese government had acquired or desired to acquire land in Mexico. Mr. Knox further said that an American syndicate had entered into negotiations for the sale of Magdalena bay lands to a Japanese syndicate and that when the attorney for this syndicate took up the matter with the State Department Mr. Knox had replied:

"That the fact ought not to be disguised that such a transfer would be quite certain to be interpreted in some quarters in a manner to cause a great outcry and that such a result would be so obviously a cause of regret to the government of the United States that it would appear unnecessary further to comment upon the disposition of the Federal government in the premises."

With this information in its possession the Senate committee on foreign relations reported the Lodge resolution to the Senate which, with amendments, was adopted on August 2.

The Lodge resolution and the Knox letter have been considered as defining the policy of the United States government. They have been referred to by the State Department at different times when new reports have arisen as to efforts by Japanese interests to acquire control of lands in Mexico. The State Department issued a warning in 1919 to American interests which contemplated the sale of a tract of land in Lower California to a Japanese group, citing at that time the Lodge resolution and the Knox letter.

SEARCHING FOR AN ISSUE.

Democratic leaders directing the congressional campaign are hard put to find a national issue upon which the party can go before the people. Representative Oldfield, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, last week told the delegates to the State convention in Maine that the tariff should be one of the dominant questions discussed by candidates. Imagine the tariff as an issue in Maine! How many times have the Democrats won an election on the tariff? It can not be denied that in Western agricultural States, in some Southern States and in New England the tariff will be discussed, but there is no national demand for tariff revision.

Some of the Democratic prophets have indicated that the tax-reduction law passed by this session of Congress should provide ammunition for an attack on the Republicans. Certainly the wiser heads in the Democratic party can not accept this seriously.

Down in Florida, where numerous Democrats have been sojourning during the cold months, Norman Mack, member of the national committee for New York, declared that the next campaign would be and should be fought out on the question of repealing the prohibition law, while out in Illinois George Brennan has hoisted the wet flag in his campaign for the senatorship. The Democrats of Pennsylvania, scenting possible victory by reason of the bitter fight among the Republicans, are to make a desperate effort to elect a United States senator, and, because Representative Vare has made the Volstead act his principal point of argument, they are to stand firmly on a dry platform.

Such men as Tom Taggart, of Indiana, old in service, ripe in experience and as shrewd as they make 'em, warns his party against the danger of even considering prohibition in the campaign. William Gibbs McAdoo, twice a formidable candidate for the presidential nomination, would oppose any suggestion to place the Democratic party on record as favoring modification of the Volstead law. How then, with the party divided, can the Democrats make an issue of prohibition?

The truth is that none of the leaders of the Democratic party know what to do. They can not hope to get anywhere by attacking the administration. Some of them persist in their efforts to "hammer out" an issue. Issues are not made by hammering them out. They arise out of conditions. The Democrats will have the advantage in the coming congressional elections, not because they stand as the champions of any great question, but because of local conditions.

Should they win a victory in November that will give them control of the Senate, they may by their actions and the record they make be able to go to the voters in 1928 with some hope of electing a President.

What France really needs isn't a new cabinet, but a miracle.

PUNISHING RECKLESS DRIVERS.

There seems to be a sharp difference of opinion among traffic experts and others as to the best method of dealing with reckless drivers of motor cars. Here we have a Minneapolis jurist, Judge Levi Hall, who declares that motorists charged with reckless driving, or driving while intoxicated, which, under the law, is a crime that may be punished by a penitentiary sentence, should not have the right of trial by jury. Perhaps such a thing as the Constitution should not make any difference "in a matter between friends," but in a court of law the judges can not so easily dismiss the clause which provides that "in all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed." How, therefore, can the Minnesota judge say that alleged violators of the traffic laws be denied the right guaranteed them by the Constitution? It can't be done.

No doubt it is true, as Judge Hall says, that many motorists charged with operating cars while intoxicated are found not guilty by juries. But these are not the only instances in which juries fail in their duty. In every community murderers are allowed to go free because there are weaklings on the juries.

It is generally agreed that some more drastic means of dealing with persons guilty of endangering human life by operating cars while under the influence of liquor, or by speeding or reckless driving, must be found. Here in Washington there are more than 200 such cases awaiting hearing. It is said it will take a year or two to dispose of them. Meanwhile the offenders are permitted to retain their drivers' licenses and continue to be a menace to public safety, because the authorities are denied the right to revoke their permits. Director of Traffic Eldridge has asked for the authority to take away drivers' licenses or suspend them pending trial whenever the circumstances warrant such action. This appears to be an effective means of minimizing reckless driving. Revocation of a permit is a far greater punishment than a heavy fine or a jail sentence. There is ample proof of this in the numerous applications that have been made for restoration of drivers' permits.

The charming little poem, "Sassafras," appearing in The Post on March 26, should have been credited to Mr. Folger McKinsey, of the Baltimore Sun.

WHAT IS THE REMEDY?

Many politicians are fond of picturing the distress among the farmers and of telling of the prosperity of one class in the East and the adversity of another class in the West; but they cannot agree as to the remedy they would like to see applied. What is the remedy, assuming that the distress pictured is not exaggerated?

Many bills have been introduced in Congress seeking to equalize prosperity. All or nearly all are based on the idea that "the government is to blame" and that Congress can relieve agriculture.

Has it been forgotten that as far back as 1880 a similar distress was attributed to the failure of Congress to give relief, and the Greenback and Populist parties were born? While these political organizations were getting noisy the situation was curing itself.

Has it been forgotten that in 1895 and 1896 a similar distress was attributed to prevailing laws in regard to money, and that more and cheaper money was held to be the cure? Another political agitation was started and a President almost elected on an unsound money platform. While this was going on the situation cured itself.

The whole truth is bad enough; but it is a political crime to exaggerate and tell only half of the truth. Low prices for some farm products are due to natural economic causes. Depreciation in the value of farms and farm property since 1920 is due to natural economic causes.

Why not tell the farmers that high taxes are the result of State, county and local laws? Why not tell them that land mortgages and interest are the result of purchases of too much land at high war values?

Instead of arousing the prejudice and jealousy of the farmers against Congress and against the industrial sections of the country, why not tell them that if they insist upon impracticable legislation they will aggravate the situation?

Too many men in and out of Congress are fond of making political capital out of economic reverses, by proposing laws which they know to be unsound. Let these calamity howlers cease their wails and offer a rational and sensible remedy.

What is it?

The four great destructive agencies are wind, water, fire and boys.

SPRING IS HERE.

Spring is here. There is that "soupcon" of allium sativum in the milk from Maryland and the eggs from Virginia, which always tells the Washington housewife that the backbone of winter is broken and that the cows and the hens are joyously devouring the first "greens" of the vernal season. Then she takes the youngsters out with a bag of peanuts to the Capitol grounds, where Bushy-tail and all his brothers, sisters and cousins are sure to be found frisking under the trees.

The green grass is not necessary to prove that spring is here. The tufts of allium sativum are everywhere in evidence. If you fail to recognize the harbinger of nature's awakening under that Latin name, try to find it under its more common cognomen and you will find it everywhere. Wild garlic is a surer sign that spring is here than 50 bluebirds or a Willis Moore flareback.

Now what about a poll in Chicago to determine what degree of crime the majority favors.

THE PERUVIAN-CHILEAN DISPUTE.

The correspondence between the Secretary of State and the Chilean government in regard to the tender of good offices by the United States to Chile and Peru discloses that Mr. Kellogg had in mind a "suspension of the plebiscitary proceedings, without prejudice to their resumption if it should later appear that the differences between the two countries are not susceptible of adjustment other than by celebration of a plebiscite." The parties had already agreed that pending the consideration of an adjustment other than by a plebiscite the authority of the plebiscitary commission and the general arrangement made by it for the holding of the plebiscite should be maintained unimpaired.

Thus, while the parties are in negotiation at Washington the plebiscitary proceedings are to be suspended, and if the negotiations should fail the parties will not have lost any of the advantages they may now enjoy under the arbitral award. Mr. Kellogg's note conveys the impression that he has in mind an adjustment which will make a plebiscite unnecessary. The nature of the adjustment in contemplation is not disclosed, and the attitude of Peru is left somewhat in doubt in the public mind pending publication of the correspondence between that government and Mr. Kellogg.

In view of the failure of repeated efforts to adjust this difficulty by direct negotiation the success of the forthcoming conference might seem to be remote, but perhaps in the calm atmosphere of Washington a final solution may be found. At any rate Peru and Chile have better ground upon which to build an understanding than they had when they conferred here in 1922. They have had the experience of the plebiscitary proceedings and are now fully aware of the obstacles that stand in the way of a satisfactory plebiscite. If they could agree in 1922 upon a plebiscite, it seems reasonable to presume that they can now agree upon the removal of the obstacles in question. Unless a solution more satisfactory than the plebiscite should be found, they can at least obtain from Secretary Kellogg impartial suggestions for facilitating the work of the plebiscitary commission.

It will probably be found that the neutralization of the plebiscite area is an indispensable requisite to an orderly and fair plebiscite. Contrary to the view generally held, the supplementary act to the protocol of 1922 contemplated that the arbitrator, if he should order a plebiscite, should have power to neutralize the territory; but that if a plebiscite were not ordered, the administration of the territory should "not be disturbed" while the parties were negotiating further. It was also stipulated that if no agreement should ensue from such negotiations, the parties would solicit the good offices of the United States.

Unless an entirely new arrangement has been conceived which is acceptable to both parties, the forthcoming conference may result in an agreement for the interpretation of the arbitral award according to the plain intent of the parties as expressed in the supplementary act of 1922—that is, that the arbitrator, in exercising his complete power "to determine the conditions" of the plebiscite, should require that the territory be placed under neutral control during the plebiscitary period.

The arbitrator would not be possessed of full power to determine the conditions of the plebiscite if he did not have authority to neutralize the territory; and the provision that the administration of the territory was not to be disturbed if a plebiscite were not to be held is a clear indication that the administration could be "disturbed" if a plebiscite were to be held.

Chile and Peru in 1922, in other words, agreed that the President of the United States could order a plebiscite in Tacna and Arica, and that, if he should declare a plebiscite in order, he should have full power to determine the conditions thereof, to the end that the plebiscite should be a full and free expression of the will of the voters. This settlement of the dispute is still available and practicable, by neutralizing the disputed territory during the time of the plebiscite.

A one-armed man with a suitcase has an advantage. They know he can't reach for a tip.

PUBLIC WORKS IN HAITI.

The report of the department of public works of Haiti, recently issued, graphically demonstrates the rapid progress of that republic in the construction of public schools, irrigation works, highways, lighthouses, public buildings, bridges, wharves, telephone and telegraph lines, hospitals, drainage works, &c. Illustrations which accompany the report show that the public schools, both urban and rural, are modern in every respect, suitably designed for the Haitian climate, and appropriately surrounded by improved grounds. The highways run through a beautiful territory, and are aiding in the development of valuable lands and markets. The bridges, made of concrete, are substantial. The water supply of important towns has been made safe from contamination by catchment basins and is carried in solid cement aqueducts. The improvements made during the four years of President Borno's administration make a most impressive showing. Although the work has been accomplished under the general guidance of the American authorities, the native government and people have borne the heavier burden and are entitled to full credit for the results achieved. What has been done is an earnest of what is to come. The program of works under way and projected is carefully adjusted to the means at hand, having in view the prior construction of the most urgently needed works.

Some of the birds that won't appear in the spring are those that were eliminated in spring training.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

A Florida senator complains of excessive freight charges by the railroads on fruits and vegetables and other perishable commodities. He wants an investigation made with a view of having the charges reduced.

It would appear that such a charge is a complaint against the judgment of the Interstate Commerce Commission and an indictment against the entire plan of turning over to a commission the power or discretion of adjusting rates for transportation.

It is interesting to know that the Class I railroads of the country during the calendar year 1924 carried more than 25,000,000 tons of fruit, vegetables and other agricultural products, nearly all perishable, of which about 6,700,000 tons were citrus and other fruits, not including dry fruits.

In 1924 it required approximately 950,000 refrigerator cars to transport perishable freight. This is one of the most difficult problems of the entire freight transportation service, for the reason that refrigerator cars are held by shippers and are scarce when most needed.

In 1924 the railroads (Class I) transported more than 116,586,000 tons of agricultural commodities, including fruits and vegetables, which was slightly more than 9 per cent of the total tonnage originated.

The situation isn't so bad. With the coal bills paid we have three months to save up for brides and graduates.

The world grows better. Modern kids aren't required to take anything to thin their blood in the spring.

The Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By Will Rogers

The Worst Joke I heard today was told to me by Morris L. Jones, of Johnson City, Ill. He is Editor of the Johnson City Progress. I always like the name of a paper called the Progress, as that is the name of Claremore's principal Daily, and if it's printed in Claremore that means it is just about the best in the West. This Johnson City is right down in the Southern Illinois Coal Belt. It's right near Herrin, the town where they had all the trouble in. Well, Mr. Jones has a real newsy paper. He had a yarn that run something like this.

The last State election things was a getting pretty close, and they were hustling around trying to get all the voters they could. They come to an old Illinois Farmer's wife and wanted her to go and vote. They couldn't hardly get to speak to her. She was hurrying from milking the cows, rushing into the kitchen, from the kitchen to the churn, from the churn to the woodshed, and back to the kitchen stove, then over to pick up the baby, then back to the churning. She was finally asked if she wanted to vote. She replied, "No, I certainly do not. I say now, if there is one little thing that the men folks can do alone, for Heaven's sake let 'em do it."

Pay of Judges.

Philadelphia Ledger: The last Congress raised the pay of its members from $7,500 to $10,000 a year. While the Sixty-eighth Congress was not much of a Congress, and some of its members were grievously overpaid at $7,500 a year, the country did not object very much. So a Congressman now gets $10,000 a year. A Federal circuit judge gets $8,500 and a district judge $7,500. They, too, are entitled to an increase. A bill in Congress raising the circuit judges to $15,000 and the district judges to $12,500 seemed reasonable and right. Not, however, to Congress. That would mean a judge would get more money than a congressman. Therefore the salary bill died the death. A new one was drafted that will give the circuit judge $12,500 and the district judge $10,000. Since Congress raised its own pay last year, something will have to be done for the judges, but not too much.

Fashions in Memorials.

New York World: The Federal Commission on Fine Arts declined to approve a proposed memorial to Woodrow Wilson in the form of a statue which residents from Poland, Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia wished to erect in Washington; and while one may regret the suggestion of a rebuff that hangs over the episode, it must be conceded that the decision was sound. The commission took the position that Congress itself may one day provide a memorial to President Wilson; and pending the verdict of history, statues of dubious merit should not be permitted. Thus, in regard to Washington, we veer toward what might be called a policy of concentration of memorials. Instead of having many small, inartistic and often ridiculous statues scattered over the city, we wait, and when we honor our dead, do it well. We have now three great memorials—the Washington and Lincoln in the city itself, and the Arlington memorial to our war dead across the river—and all of these are adequate graudeur. If we adhere to our present policy we shall build; slowly perhaps but surely, a capital which will rank in beauty with the greatest in the world.

The Adding Machine Soul

By GLENN FRANK

THE great American game is not baseball, but addition.

We have a positive passion for measurement; our national coat of arms might well carry a statistician caressing an adding machine.

"Some men," said Daniel Coit Gilman, the distinguished first president and spiritual architect of Johns Hopkins university, "are possessed of a statistical devil. They can only think in figures; they will ask, in respect of a new acquaintance, how much is he worth; of a library, how many volumes there are; of an orchestra, how many pieces; of a college, how many students." And he adds two wise observations, viz:

It is important to count.

It is better to weigh.

Our passion for measurement is a dangerous disease, and nowhere does its tell-tale feverish flush become more obvious than in our thinking about our schools. The way we think about our schools and colleges and universities is as good an illustration as any of our shallow habit of thinking in terms of the adding machine instead of in terms of a pair of scales.

As I read the promotion literature of many schools I am almost led to believe that great schools are the creatures of architects and landscape gardeners and educational recruiting officers.

Our worship of bigness may cause us to lose the purpose of education in the paraphernalia of education.

Against this disease of mere quantity-measurement of our schools, Dr. Gilman sought to provide an antitoxin years ago when he framed a series of questions by which he thought a university should be tested. Merely to repeat some of them is an effective illustration of the sort of quality-test that this quantity-intoxicated generation needs to learn. Here are some of his questions:

Are the youth who are trained within its walls honest lovers of the truth?

When they leave the academic classes, do they soon find a demand for their services?

Do they rise in professional life? Are they sought for as teachers? Do they show aptitude for mercantile, administrative, or editorial life?

Do they acquit themselves with credit in the public service?

Do the books they write find publishers?

Have they the power of enjoying literature, music, and art?

Can they apply the lessons of history to the problems of our day?

Are they always eager to enlarge their knowledge?

Do they become conservative members of society, seeking for progress by steady improvements rather than by the powers of destruction and death?

Are they useful, courteous, cooperative citizens, in all the relations of life?

Do the charities, the churches, the schools, the public affairs of the community, receive their constant consideration?

Are there frequent manifestations among them of unusual ability in literature, in oratory, in administration?

As the roll of the alumni increases, does it appear that a large proportion are men of honorable, faithful, learned, and public-spirited character?

Do they win repute among those who have added to the sum of human knowledge?

These, I submit, are the sort of questions by which we should judge all the institutions and policies and procedures of American life.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Wants Forward-Looking Buses.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A comment in connection with the question of the double-deck buses: If the company could be required to equip the upper decks of these vehicles with forward-facing seats after the manner of buses of this type in Chicago and New York, the enjoyment and convenience of passengers would be greatly increased, and the tendency to gaze into second-story windows would be much lessened, if not obviated. As one of the large number of working people not provided with private automobiles, I should greatly appreciate an increase in the number of these public conveyances, with forward-facing seats, giving a view forward on the line of travel and covering both sides of the street. Perhaps if patrons would emphasize this point to the public utilities commission the improvement might be effected. MISS X.

Washington, March 26.

Reasons for Belt Line.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: During the last several months there has been quite a lot of discussion of the proposed Loughborough belt line, and in this connection I desire to say that while I have no interest in this project one way or the other, the problem has been a very interesting one from an economic and transportation point of view. The writer in his professional career has had occasion to plan two different belt-line projects, one of which was 56 miles long. There comes a time in the economic and industrial life of a city or a district when the establishment of one or more belt lines is an absolute necessity. Chicago, for instance, would be in a simply hopeless condition were it not for its belt lines. I do not believe I know of a single city where the necessity of a belt line is greater than that of Washington, as the immense amount of traffic between the North and South has to pass through a very constricted funnel as it is now, and as time goes along the situation will get much worse than at present and, in my opinion, a belt line is inevitable.

With only a precursory examination of the proposed project, the indications are that the Loughborough belt line as proposed is the most economical one that can be devised, inasmuch as it would make use of considerable trackage now in use. The use of the existing trackage brings the proposed belt line in fairly close to the city, but I can not see the soundness of the objections made to this. It would certainly be a great improvement over existing conditions where every train, whether passenger or freight, must cut right through the heart of the city.

In spite of everything else, we must remember that Washington is no longer a country village, but a city of nearly half a million. The argument that such a belt line would cause industries to spring up along the route is quite true; but what of it? Industries have come close to the District and will continue to come; it is inevitable. A majority of the arguments against the establishment of a belt line, so far as they have come under my observation, have been of the sentimental, sob-story type, by people who are quite sincere and mean well, but do not understand the subject. To look ahead into the future, the probabilities are that a second outer belt line must come. J. EDWARD CASSIDY, M, Am. Soc. C. E.

Stanfield Deplores Tenant Life in U. S.

New York, March 28 (By A. P.). Terming the constantly decreasing ranks of home owners in the United States in the face of its increasing wealth as cause for concern, United States Senator Robert N. Stanfield, of Oregon, last night emphasized the need of putting the American home on a firmer basis.

He spoke before the Oregon state society of New York. He pleaded for support of the National home loan bill, pending in congress, which provides the machinery for the creation and operation of National home loan banks.

Clyde B. Aitchison, interstate commerce commissioner of Washington, also spoke praising Oregon's pioneer spirit.

Painting on Burlap Thought by Rubens

San Francisco, Calif., March 28 (By A. P.).—A time-worn painting, which Michael J. Berdnikoff, a restorer of art objects, believes may be an original Rubens of the Sixteenth century, has been found in a club storeroom here, Berdnikoff announced today.

The painting, Berdnikoff said, is on aged burlap, 46 by 73 inches, in size, and depicts a sleeping woman covered by a blue drapery upheld by cupids, with a satyr in the foreground. "Venus and the Satyr" is the name of the painting which had been disfigured by artists other than the original painter, who had daubed several pictures on the canvas.

New Studio Can Stage Wars, Quakes, Floods

New York, March 28 (By A. P.).—Tornadoes, fires, earthquakes, floods and even war all may be manufactured within the confines of the new First National studios here when construction work is completed in June.

Designed to include many novel features, the plant will embrace 40 buildings and will cost approximately $1,500,000. Spanish architecture is being followed.

Ten stages, each occupying 35,000 square feet, will accommodate an enormous amount of production work.

The stars will have bungalows of Spanish design, while furnished duplex buildings of the same architecture will house other players.

Subsidies for History Criticized by Moore

New York, March 28 (By A. P.). Government subsidies for historians are likely to sap the independence and integrity of historical writers and constitute a menace to free institutions, John Bassett Moore, judge of the world court, said at a meeting at Columbia university, in support of a movement to raise an endowment fund for $1,000,000 for the American Historical association.

To safeguard political independence, Judge Moore said, the writing of history must be financed from private sources. It is not desirable, even when possible, to appeal for government funds.

Bobbed Locks Bar May Queen Aspirants

Knutsford, England, March 28 (By A. P.).—Scarcity of unshorn maidens has threatened the continuity of Knutsford's 60-year-old May festivals, the most picturesque in England, for the May queen must have long hair. All but one of the aspirants for the honor appeared with either bobbed or shingled locks. The throne will go to the girl whose tresses never have been touched by scissors.

RELIGIOUS BOOKS RISE TO BEST-SELLER RANK

Demands Show Interest Is Extending Far Beyond Church Boundaries.

SOME LEADING VOLUMES

New York, March 28 (By A. P.).—Religious books have increased their position within the ranks of best sellers to a conspicuous degree during the last several years, the gain being attributed by publishers to a greater demand not only from church members, but from persons without definite ecclesiastical affiliations.

A glance over the list of the ten best sellers in nonfiction last year shows Bruce Barton's "The Man Nobody Knows" and Giovanni Papini's "The Life of Christ" well toward the top. Demand for these and other books on religion is reported even greater than in 1925.

"When some one refers to the greatest book in the world the book trade thinks 'Bible' as quickly as do churchmen," said Frederic G. Melcher, editor of the Publishers' Weekly. "Its sale beggars all other totals of production and has since printing began.

"But though the field of religious books has always supplied the book stores with their best sellers this seldom has been as conspicuously so as during the last two or three years. Just now the high peak of church activity emphasizes this interest. Another interesting feature is it has been characteristic of recent demands that they have spread far beyond the church boundaries."

In addition to the books by Barton and Papini Mary Austin's "The Small Town Man" and Robert Lynde Hartt's "The Man Himself" have attracted wide reading. Much interest is being shown in William Lyon Phelp's "The Carpenter of Nazareth." Sales on a series of the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick's sermons have gone beyond the million marks.

BLACK CAT STEW FED FRAT MEN ONLY RABBIT

Cleveland College Students Tell of Hoax Played at Initiations.

SOCIETY MEMBERS SILENT

Cleveland, Ohio, March 28 (By A. P.).—"Black cat stew" is something fed to freshmen candidates to fraternities of a Cleveland college, investigation by Dr. L. J. Dunn of the humane society revealed today.

Dr. Dunn was trying to trace down rumored cruelty to cats on the part of students which came to his attention following the discovery of a dead black cat which appeared to have been skinned alive.

Representatives of fraternities, some of which were reported to use cats in their ceremonies were unable to confirm a communication he had received. This was to the effect that a student organization demands each freshman initiate to bring a cat, and kill it with a hatchet or axe.

Several students, however, had heard of a "stunt" in which the candidate is told: "Get a black cat and bring it here at 10 o'clock tomorrow night." There follows a search of alleys for any cat that will permit itself to be caught. It can be painted black, under protest.

At 10 the candidate appears with his cat. "Very well" he is told, "such cruelty (for either capturing or painting the creature reaps its own reward. You shall eat this cat stewed."

The cat is taken from him and he is shut in a dark room, "to meditate and repent." The cat is released. A rabbit bought at a market is stewed and served to the trembling freshman. If he resists, he is coerced into yielding. If he still refuses he is returned to the "dungeon," to "bend that proud spirit."

ILLNESS TO BE DEFENSE OF ACCUSED COLONEL

Williams, Charged by Butler With Intoxication, Said to Have Been Sick.

TRIAL LIKELY ON APRIL 12

San Diego, Calif., March 28 (By A. P.).—Col. Alexander Williams will be represented by a civilian attorney when he faces charges of intoxication and conduct unbecoming an officer at a court-martial here. It was announced today that Lewis H. Kirby, former district attorney of San Diego county would represent the accused officer. It was understood from sources close to Col. Williams that his defense would be that he had been ill and had been at the Navy hospital here on the very day that he gave a dinner in honor of Brig. Gen. Smedley Butler of the marine corps.

Gen. Butler, who came here to relieve Col. Williams as commander of the marine base preferred the charges against the colonel. It was said that cocktails were served at the dinner and that after the dinner Col. Williams is alleged to have appeared at a hotel in an intoxicated condition. It was said that part of the defense is that Col. Williams' condition was due to his illness and not to liquor.

Owing to limited space available at the Fleet administration building, where the trial will be held, it is probable that not more than 25 civilians will be admitted to the trial.

Rear Admiral Thomas Washington, president of the court-martial, is expected to order the court convened the day the cruiser Seattle arrives from Central American waters April 6. It is stated, however, that the case may not actually get under way until April 12.

Burreway charged gross neglect. After 22 years of wedded life, he said, his wife left him to live with a daughter, and that she refused to return.

BLUE SERGES

We have made elaborate plans always to have on hand a complete stock of Sheldon Blue Serges. By which we mean a size for every build, whether it's a 37 regular or a 46 stout. Some men like them with loose, drapey coats, others semi-close; some like them double breasted, some don't. Some want 2-button coats, some 3. It really doesn't matter the sort of model you have in mind—you'll find we have it in stock. All at $37.50. We order so many Blue Serges from Sheldon that that splendid maker can help us keep the price down.

An Epoch-Making Innovation in Travel!

The Charm & Luxury of an Ocean Liner brought to Land Travel!

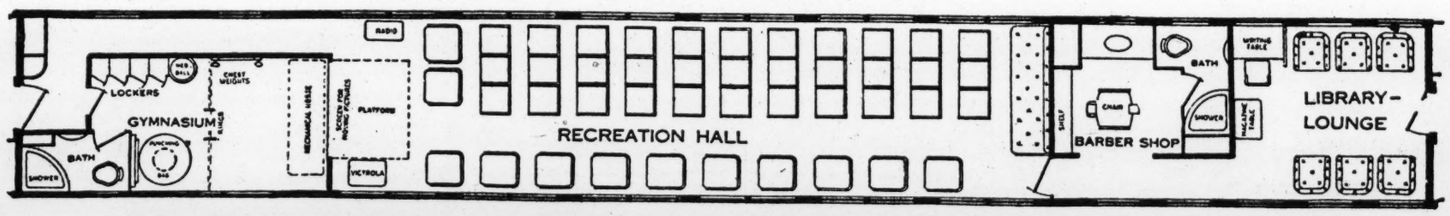
RAYMOND-WHITCOMB

LAND CRUISES

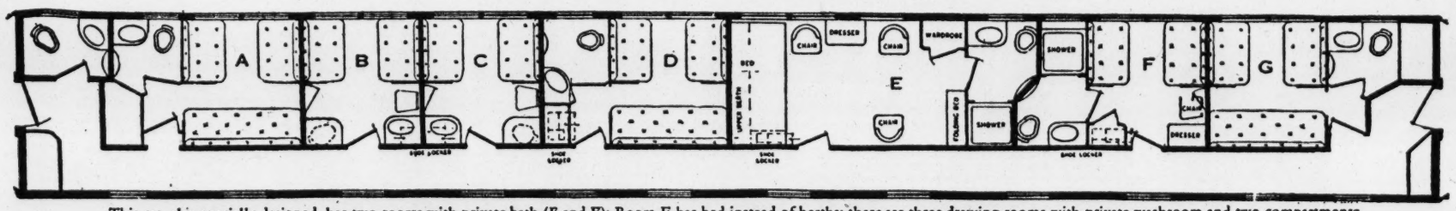
In America This Summer

on unsurpassed trains with cars especially built for us by the Pullman Company—bedrooms with private bath, gymnasium, lecture- & dance-hall, movies, etc.

Never in railroad history were there such luxurious trains—made up of cars of exclusive or uncommon design. Rooms for dancing, lectures and moving pictures; rooms with beds instead of berths; private baths; dressing tables; gymnasiums; libraries; card rooms; special lounges for women; extra showers; radio; valet-and maid-service; barbers and hair-dressers.



The Pullman Company designed this Recreation Car for Raymond-Whitcomb's exclusive use. The Recreation Hall can seat 49 people; the chairs can be removed for dancing. A regular ship's Gymnasium, a Library-Lounge, Barber Shop and two Showers complete the equipment.



This car, also specially designed, has two rooms with private bath (E and F); Room E has bed instead of berths; there are three drawing rooms with private washroom and two compartments with running water. Wardrobes, dressing-tables, shoe-lockers, extra chairs are additional conveniences.

On a Land Cruise you travel as though on an Ocean Liner. When you "book", you choose accommodations that will be exclusively yours throughout the trip. After each "Shore Excursion" you will return to your own room. Save for nights "ashore" at noted hotels, you will not constantly pack and re-pack. On one and the same train you will "circumnavigate" the nation.

Special Routes and Running-Schedules Set Land Cruises Above All Other Travel

Freed from the commercial restraints of railway time-tables, a Raymond-Whitcomb Land Cruise Liner speeds across America with the independence of a ship on an Ocean Cruise. A single purpose directs it:—to select only places of true sightseeing value. It rejects all other places, no matter how commercially important. By the same token it can stop at the most inconsequential stations, ordinarily served by a few scantily equipped trains—stations which, though commercially insignificant, are gateways to Regions of Romance. Nowhere else in the world are there trains like the Land Cruise Liners, so agreeably immune from ordinary transportation schedules.

EXPLORATIONS IN "HIDDEN AMERICA"

The cities of the West, the California resorts, the National Parks, the fjords of Alaska, the snow-peaks of the Canadian Rockies—all figure in the Land Cruise Routes. If you were planning a trip you would include them. But probably you would not include "Hidden America"—the fantastic Indian pueblos, the strange stone forests, the canyoned sources of great waterways, the gold countries, the cowboy lands. These are seldom comfortably accessible in journeys comprehensively national. On a Land Cruise pueblos are as accessible as Pasadena; the Bad Lands as comfortably visited as Banff.

SCENERY BY DAY; NIGHTS AT FAMOUS HOTELS

Two other points deserve mention. 1st:—Land Cruises traverse great scenic regions by day. When necessary the Liners "anchor" for the night, so that splendid scenery may not be missed. 2nd:—At the cities and famous resorts, the cruise-members spend the nights "ashore", with the best hotels as headquarters for sightseeing.

PIONEERS IN AMERICAN TRAVEL

Raymond-Whitcomb is the oldest and largest American travel company. Our success was first established in American fields. We were the first to announce the possibility of California as a winter resort; the first to run "through" vestibule trains with dining cars across the continent; the first to send organized parties to most of the National Parks. For forty-six years we have enjoyed almost a monopoly of the best class of western American travel. Our relations with railways, hotels and automobile companies are enviably cordial. We are glad—with their co-operation—once more to "pioneer" in America, the field of our earliest successes.

CALIFORNIA LAND CRUISES

THE SOUTHWEST (Santa Fe, the Indian Pueblo Towns, the Petrified Forest, the Painted Desert, the Grand Canyon). CALIFORNIA (Riverside, Pasadena, Los Angeles, Hollywood, Santa Barbara, Del Monte, the Big Trees, Yosemite Valley, San Francisco, Shasta Springs). The PACIFIC NORTHWEST (Portland, the Columbia Highway, Seattle, Vancouver) The CANADIAN ROCKIES (Fraser River Canyon and the Selkirks by daylight, Glacier, Field to Lake Louise and Banff by automobile, including Yoho Valley), Minneapolis, Saint Paul.

The first Land Cruise "sails" June 1—28 days from New York to New York. Rates, including meals, sightseeing, hotel accommodations, railroad fares and exclusive train accommodations from $650 for an upper berth to $1265 for half a bedroom and bath. Same reservations from Philadelphia, $644 to $1255. Other California Land Cruises sail July 1, August 10 and September 8.

The Barbarian Lover

By Margaret Pedler

THE STORY THUS FAR.

Patricia Luttrell, daughter of a resident British commissioner in India, meets Kerry Lorimer, her father's "man of mystery," and a few days later he saves her from the charge of a wounded, maddened tiger. Her father killed on the polo field. Lorimer escorts Pat to England to make her home with her godfather, the Earl of Marchdale. She meets the earl, his sister and his nephew and heir, Kit Wynsborough, and learns that Kerry is also a nephew, but in disgrace because of a supposed theft. She finds that Kit is in love with the rector's daughter, but afraid to tell his uncle. She later meets Kerry "caravanning" nearby, and he forces her to dismount from her horse. She admits her love for him, but he says he cannot marry because of the blight on his name. He catches her as a bolt of lightning stuns her. On her return an auto frightens her horse, and Pat is taken to the home of Peggy Bethune, a rich widow, whose brother, Mark Strown, owns the auto which caused the accident. Strown falls in love with Pat only to learn that another holds her heart. The earl discovers the love affair between Kit and the rector's daughter and forbids Kit to marry a "village girl." Kit prepares to leave. Pat boards the earl in his den, reproaches him with attempting to dominate the lives of his whole family, particularly that of Kit. He tells her Kerry was charged with theft which he never denied. Patricia discusses Kerry with the earl's sister, and the confidential secretary of the earl is stricken with influenza, casting a gloom over the castle. While decorating the church, Mark Strown proposes to Pat and is told she can be nothing but friends with him. The confidential secretary dies, and it is disclosed that he took the money, for which Kerry was blamed.

CHAPTER XXVI.

"WHEN he found the money had been taken, I didn't dare to confess that it was I who had taken it. I knew it would have meant instant dismissal, and I could not face being sent away from Strangways. Over 30 years I'd served you, my lady, and Strangways was just my life. A woman will do wrong to save her child because it is everything in the world to her. And I did wrong because Strangways was everything in the world to me. Will your ladyship try to understand, and perhaps—some day—forgive me? I couldn't have borne to be sent away.

"Even when his lordship suspected Master Kerry and accused him, I never anticipated that it would bring about the result it did. I didn't dream that it would be looked upon as a theft for Master Kerry to have taken the money. His lordship was so fond of him that I thought he would just be very angry with him for having helped himself to the £50 and that then the whole matter would blow over, just as other disagreements had done.

"But it didn't. And when Master Kerry wasn't able to explain how he had got possession of £50 with which to pay what he owed, I was in a worse case than ever. I couldn't confess then. It was too late. It would have turned you all against me, and I felt I couldn't endure that. So I said nothing.

"I've never known a really happy moment since, but I should have known still more unhappy ones if I'd confessed and been sent away. It was dreadful to me to see your ladyship crying about Master Kerry, as you sometimes did. It hurt. But it would have hurt more never to see you at all.

"I am writing this letter so that, in case of my death, Master Kerry's name will be cleared. I know I've sinned, but I couldn't face his lordship's anger. He would have sent me away, and it would have been like tearing up an old tree by the roots. In all else, I have served him faithfully, and shall so serve both him and you, my lady, to the day of my death."

The confession was an amazing mixture of selfishness and devotion—a poignant commentary on the strange bunch of good and bad impulses which go to make up human nature. And through it all ran that appealing iteration: "I couldn't bear to be sent away!" For Jonathan Mathers that had been the crux of the whole matter.

Strangways was a part of him—bone of his bone—and he of Strangways, and life to him was inconceivable—a thing not to be faced—apart from the place to which every fiber of his being was indissolubly knit. Nor could he have endured to lose the good opinion of the earl and Lady Mary. Their approbation, their complete trust and confidence in him, formed an integral part of all that Strangways signified to him. To retain this, so that he might live and die at Strangways, he had sinned. In all other ways a scrupulously faithful and loyal nature—he would have given his life willingly at any moment if by his death he could have served "the family"—on this point his moral rectitude had foundered utterly.

To Patricia the whole thing seemed unbearably sad—and unnecessary. With that ruthless logic of youth she traced it remorselessly back to its source, and laid the principal blame for the whole catastrophe on her godfather's shoulders. Fear—fear of Lord Marchdale's violent, unforgiving temper—had been at the root of the matter. If Jonathan had served a different master—a master who might have been trusted to set 30 years of devoted service against a single slip and give the sinner a second chance, a chance to redeem himself and make good again—he would probably have confessed to the fact that he had taken the money, although without any actual intention of stealing it, and Kerry would have been saved ten hard, embittering years. But, knowing the earl as he did, Jonathan had been afraid—and the fact that Marchdale had instantly cut Kerry out of his life for that same sin had terribly justified the old man's fear. If there had been such scant mercy for one of his own blood, for Lynette's son, there would have been none at all for the humble librarian.

It was all part and parcel of an old and wornout system—of that despotic method by which the lords of Strangways had ever governed their households. Their word was law. Scarcely modified at all by the increasing freedom of the present age, her godfather's rule had remained a rule of old-fashioned tyranny. It was high time, as Kit had once suggested, that some one effected a reformation. Still brooding over the matter, Patricia was startled out of her thoughts by the entrance of the earl himself.

The last two or three days had made their mark on him. His face wore a strained expression, as of a man who had suddenly come up against something in life that was new to him—new and bewildering. He crossed the room and joined Patricia in the window embrasure, and she felt her heart go out to him in the pain and trouble which she knew he was experiencing. She slipped her arm into his affectionately. In spite of all his faults—faults which were the outcome of his age and generation—he had somehow contrived to win her love. For a few moments he stood beside her in silence. Then he asked abruptly:

"How soon do you think you will get an answer to your letter?"

He had asked the same question several times before with the reiteration of intense anxiety. It had fallen to Patricia's lot to write to Kerry, telling him of Jonathan's confession and asking him to come at once to Strangways. As the earl had bitterly remarked: "No letter from me would bring him. He's as proud as Lucifer, and would probably return it through the post unopened. I should do the same myself, in his place." So that finally Patricia had undertaken to write to him. In her inmost heart she had doubted very much whether he would answer the summons if it were to be based solely on the discovery of his innocence. She knew his indomitable pride. Having been ruthlessly blamed and distrusted all these years, he was not the type of man to forgive and forget immediately he was proved innocent. That it would go far to break the hearts of the earl and Lady Mary if he did not come, he would perhaps hardly realize after so long a separation. But Patricia realized it, and she was determined that, at any cost, he must be induced to return. Swallowing her pride, therefore, she had scribbled a postscript to her letter: "You said you would come if ever I needed you. I do need you, Kerry." She addressed the letter to Brihou island, as he had bidden her.

"I couldn't possibly hear for a day or two," she said in answer to Lord Marchdale's anxious inquiry. "You see, there is no regular post at Brihou island. I don't quite know how Kerry gets his letters, but probably they keep them for him at the postoffice on one of the bigger islands until he calls for them. So, you see, it might be several days yet before we get his answer."

"Do you think he'll come?" demanded the Earl, his fingers working restlessly on the head of his walking-stick.

And Patricia, remembering the postscript she had added to the letter, answered quietly:

"I'm sure he will."

Again silence fell between them—so long and so heavy a silence that presently she glanced up curiously at the tall old man beside her. But she could read nothing from his face. It was mask-like in its impassivity, the fierce gray eyes staring out toward the shrouded hills. When at last he spoke it was with an odd abruptness and as though he were answering something she had said.

"I believe you're right, Pat. I'm beginning to think I've been a damned old fool."

Her hand tightened a little on his arm. She knew quite well whither his thoughts had wandered—to that interview which had taken place between them in the South Room, when she had interceded unavailingly for Kit and Nancy and had talked to her godfather with a simple directness which probably no one had ever dared before. She had put new views and angles of thought in front of him, and swiftly on the top of that had come Jonathan's enlightening confession, emphasizing the consequences of the Earl's accustomed tryanny so tragically that he had at last begun to realize it.

"A damned old fool," he repeated. "Then if you think that, why not make a fresh start?" said Patricia impulsively.

"Make a fresh start?" he echoed, regarding her curiously. "How would you propose I should begin, eh?"

CHRISTMAS SAVINGS CLUBS ARE GROWING

D. C. Bankers Report Shows Increased Savings of More Than $1,000,000.

Some interesting facts on the results of the Christmas Savings club campaign for 1926 were submitted to the council of administration of the District Bankers association with the report of the advertising committee.

The report shows the number of banks carrying Christmas Savings clubs for 1926 is 26, with total membership of 71,860, an increase of 5,581 over 1925. The total sum which will be saved, if all accounts are maintained, will total $5,496,900, an increase of $1,050,000 over 1925. It is interesting to note that the average for each club member has increased from $68 to $80, and the banks report that a large number of their members are now using the Christmas club for accumulating funds for other purposes besides the original intention for Christmas gifts.

The popularity of the Christmas club is further indicated by the fact that about one in every five adults in the District are now members.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

A GOLFER'S HEAVEN.

A golfer's dream of heaven is a rolling course, I think,
Where all his 20-footer putts roll to the cup and sink;
There may be bunkers on it, and there may be pits of sand,
But in them, as he plays the game,
his good shots never land.
A golfer's dream of heaven is a drive without a slice,
An iron shot that holds the line and lies forever nice.

Yet if there's golf in heaven, and all golfers good arrive,
And each one is rewarded with that blessed perfect drive;
If no one shanks a mashie and no spirit ever peeks,
If the golf balls fly from brassies and from jiggers and from cleeks,
And they carry pits and bunkers and drop stony at the cup,
There will never be an angel who can boast that he's one up.

Then the other sainted golfer will be good as you and I;
He will drive as far as we do and he'll find as nice a lie,
And we'll never see him bunkered and we'll never see him slice,
And he'll sink his 20-footers, which will not be very nice.
So a golfer's dream of heaven isn't one that I would choose,
For there'd be no fun in playing if there's no one there to lose.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Do Words Matter?

MY dear Miss McDonald: You have helped so many and made so many happy that I'm sure you can help and comfort me too, for I have a heartache.

I am 15 years old now and mother has been dead ever since I was but 22 months old. When she died my aunt, who was then as old as I am now, took me under her care. She treated me in every way as she thought her dear sister would have done, had she lived. When I was 9 years old mother (I always called her "mother") became very ill and it was soon found to be tuberculosis. She had to go away and then grandma tried to take her place. But father saw that she was too old to take care of me properly and so had to remarry. I was then ten years old and have been with my new mother ever since. Now this is what I want to ask you about—from the first day that I saw my new mother she seemed to want me to forget my dear aunt whom I considered my real mother. Whenever I speak of my beloved aunt as "mother" my step-mother gets peeved and says that no one can have more than one mother. But dear Miss McDonald, when I think of mother so many miles away from me, fighting for dear life so that she can be with me again, my heart just breaks. Why I'd give the world just to get one little peek at her through a keyhole. Do you see any reason for my step-mother getting angry when I speak of mother? Well I suppose she does love me, I love her too, but is it fair for her to ask me to forget her whom I love so dearly? Especially when I call my step-mother "mother" too.

Oh, Miss McDonald, I'm counting on being comforted by your sincere advice since there is no one else to comfort me. Father of course would give his life for me if need be. I'm his only child and I wonder what he wouldn't do for me. But even he doesn't realize how much I love mother, as I don't speak of her as often as I used to do.

I will be waiting patiently for your answer. BETSY.

Betsy, darling, do you think it matters what words we use when our thoughts are deep and our feelings sure? I am certain, dear, that your wonderful aunt would not care what you call the love that you have for her. And that love is going to be with you always dear for it is not only part of you, but it is you. You know it is the things that come to life in us that make us what we are. Some of the people we meet inspire some things others inspire other things—and that is why we select our friends so carefully. We want a collection of only the best—to be us. Your aunt, and her love, have created something beautiful—and the something is you, Betsy—a tender, sensitive and lovely thing that she created—and no woman could ask much more of life. Your aunt may grow stronger—or she may even leave you, Betsy, but what you have will be yours forever, her gift to you and it will be always like walking at her side. Just as the scent of hyacinths in spring makes me see my mother's eyes smiling from a window. On some spring day when I was a little girl she must have smiled upon me so, as the hyacinths were opening their little hearts to the world. Anyway I see her so. And when I am very lonely—and I am so at times Betsy—just as all sensitive souls are in so strange a world as this—do you know what I do? I go to the florist's and buy a hyacinth, and take it home to my hotel. And I close my eyes and I am not a grown-up any more; nor weary any more, but a tense little girl in a garden with her mother very near and smiling. And you have something like that in this love you feel for your dear young aunt. And if I were you, I should be glad both for aunt and me—I shouldn't even think about what it was called—this thing that I had. And I should even think that because I had found an aunt so wonderful, I might almost want to call her aunt—to prove that she didn't have to be a mother to be an angel. What do you think Betsy? Will you write and tell me? I think you are a dear little thing.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

COUGHING IN PUBLIC PLACES.

A BLIZZARD was on last night and in consequence we decided to go to church over the radio. We tuned in on the Sunday Evening club. During every lull in the proceedings we could hear the staccato barking, such as any indoor congregation indulges in during meetings held in March. Coughs to the right of them. Coughs to the left of them volleyed and thundered.

Mr. Stevens was making the announcements. He was telling of letters of appreciation from men and women who had listened-in at previous services. He said: "Here is a facetious letter about the coughing which our audiences indulge in. It reads in part: 'I was listening-in when you spoke to the audience about coughing. Just as you did, one man let loose a blast which blew out one of my tubes. Fortunately, I had an extra tube handy. I put it in, in time to hear the sermon, which I greatly enjoyed. I inclose one dollar as my contribution, etc.'"

In commenting, Mr. Stevens said: "My advice to those who listen-in on a performance held in March is that they always carry a spare tube."

The advice is good. When any large audience assembles in a large room in February and March, the air is filled with the sound of coughing. Radio listeners should be prepared with spare tubes. Theatrical performers long ago learned to to have some bit of stage business handy in case coughing by the audience spoiled some soft pedal melodrama or some fine point in comedy. That was the way they carried a spare tube.

Is there any way the audience can carry a spare tube? If they would consent to have the auditorium cooled down several degrees they would cough less. But probably they would not consent to that. If every cougher would cough into his handkerchief, the nuisance would be lessened. The sound would be muffled. Coughing throws sprays from 5 to 20 feet. That whoop which blew out the letter writer's tube, in all probability, threw spray for that distance.

These sprays carry bacteria. Among others carried are the bacteria which are responsible for colds and bronchitis. They are capable of giving colds and bronchitis to the people coughed on. In a March audience, probably every person present during a 2-hour session is sprayed by cough microbes more than once. If every cougher would hold his handkerchief in front of his mouth while coughing, he would protect those around him. If this could become the custom it would not be necessary for radio listeners in March to carry an extra tube.

HEREDITARY DISEASES.

A. J. writes: Some of the girls in our office had an argument about heredity. I believe that certain diseases can be inherited. I know any numbmer of cases where insanity seems to have been handed down through a family. I gave any number of examples to prove my point, but they laughed at the idea. It seems to me that in my course of biology at school I studied heredity, but I am unable to speak with any assurance that I am correct. Won't you please tell me if there is any such thing as heredity, and give me at least one example of it if it is so.

REPLY.

Heredity is a proved fact. I do not think any well-informed person denies certain diseases are inheritable. Most diseases are not.

YOU MAY SKATE.

S. M. writes: Is ice skating harmful for a woman who is three months pregnant? I do not skate more than 15 or 20 minutes.

REPLY.

No.

TO END INSOMNIA.

W. B. writes: Have heard and read a great deal about persons suffering with insomnia. If you will print the following it may help some who cannot go to a sanitarium:

I found nothing better for sleeplessness than getting physically tired. If mental workers will take walks after working hours outdoors, or do some physical work in or around the house, so as to get physically tired, they will find it not hard to get to sleep.

Eating a little (not much) before retiring also helps, or drinking milk. An apple eaten before retiring is also very good.

Love Confessions Of Famous Men

By JOSEPH KAR

The Love That Brought Death to Ferdinand Lassalle.

HELENE VON DONNIGES loved the great socialist labor organizer, Ferdinand Lassalle, and he loved her. But her father, a Bavarian diplomat, barred the match because Lassalle was of Jewish birth.

Many fathers see fit to impose their will upon their children but when it is obvious that the happiness of two human lives is at stake, they yield. Not so the obstinate, imperialistic Von Donniges. He said "no," and "no" it was to be, even though he had to grind his daughter's heart under his heel.

Tears, bitter quarrels, even scandals, could not move Von Donniges, and Helene, in desperation, ran away to Lassalle's hotel, begging that he compromise her in order to end the matter once and for all.

Here was the most crucial moment in Lassalle's life. As an honorable man, with the reputation of an innocent girl at stake, what should he do? Should he besmirch her name and make her an object for censure to the whole world in order to force the father's consent to their union?

Lassalle could not bring himself to do it. He sent Helene to a mutual woman friend. Meanwhile, her parents had discovered her absence and began a search. Eventually finding her at the friend's home, the mother was so enraged and apprehensive of what might have happened that she literally dragged the girl home through the streets by the hair.

That night something died in Helene's heart. She could not understand why Lassalle had not taken her in defiance of every one; she could not understand why he should have made her suffer such humiliation as she had undergone. Blindly, heedlessly, incapable of thinking normally, she branded Lassalle a coward. She agreed to write a letter at her father's dictation to her lover in which she coldly severed their relations and told him that she was marrying Yanco Racowitza, a gentle-natured young man, who was devoted to her.

Blinded by anger and despair in his turn, Lassalle sent a duel challenge to Von Donniges. The latter thought it wiser to leave town, and the challenge was taken up by Racowitza. The duel was fought, and so wayward is the god of love, that when it was over Lassalle was stretched out on the duelling ground, mortally wounded.

Thus ended one of the most pathetic tragedies that ever love created.

After Lassalle had received what he supposed was Helene's letter informing him of her forthcoming marriage to Racowitza, he wrote this dramatic declaration of his love to her:

"Helene—my heart is breaking * * * It is inconceivable that this can be your real, your abiding determination. You can not have thrown aside all shame, all love, all fidelity, all truth. * * * There can be no truth left in the world if you are false, if you are capable of descending to this depth of abandonment, of breaking such holy oaths, of crushing my heart. Then there is nothing more under the sun in which a man can still believe.

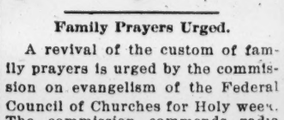
"Have you not filled me with a longing to possess you? * * * Have you not declared to me, even in your last letters, that you were nothing, nothing but my loving wife, and that no power on earth could stay your resolution? Helene—my fate is in your hands. But if you destroy me by this wicked treachery, from which I can not recover, then may evil fall upon you and my curse follow you to the grave. This is the curse of a true heart, of a heart that you wantonly break and with which you have cruelly trifled. * * * Yes, this curse will surely strike you. * * * Helene—our destinies are entwined."



Family Prayers Urged.

A revival of the custom of family prayers is urged by the commission on evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches for Holy week. The commission commends radio station WEAF for sending out each morning a religious service, and expresses the hope that other radio stations will do likewise.

MODISH MITZI

It's What They Call the Page Boy Silhouette

By Jay V. Jay

"Fascinating, isn't it?" asks Mitzi and Dad replies absent-mindedly, "quite mediaeval." It doesn't seem just the word, but Mitzi and Polly are too polite to contradict. It doesn't occur to them that Dad's interest in a piece of statuary is necessarily slight if there also happens to be a pretty girl in sight. The lady (extreme right) wears a dress that evidently derived its inspiration from some crusading gentleman's best fighting clothes. This is only one of the mediaeval phenomena that are appearing in the styles for spring and summer.

Polly and Mitzi themselves offer two notable examples of this tendency to glorify, not middle age, but the middle ages. They are both wearing dresses cut according to the new Page Boy silhouette—a trimyl fitted bodice, a waistline nearly normal, a short flaring peplum and a short straight skirt. Eleanor, who has joined the party, is doing her share of the proper thing by wearing another mediaeval frock—with a full sized shield emblazoned on the front—reminiscent of the days when stripes were not considered disgraceful. Even her hat is a helmet!

GROWING BUSINESS IN WEST INDICATED BY TIGHTER MONEY

Withdrawals, However, Are Factor in Sharp Reaction on Stock Market.

OILS LITTLE EFFECTED BY REPORTS OF INQUIRY

Latest Selling Deluge Laid to Speculators Distressed by Earlier Crash.

New York, March 29 (By the Associated Press).—Declining prices for both securities and commodities have marked the opening of spring business, creating fresh doubts as to the future trend of trade. Reports from the various industries last week disclosed a fairly even balance between favorable and unfavorable developments, which on the whole were disappointing because of the failure of a spring revival to develop.

With stock prices plunging downward, many of them to the lowest levels of the year, the inevitable question was raised as to whether the market's action foretold a severe curtailment of business activity.

In financial circles it was generally agreed that the latest deluge of selling orders represented forced liquidation by distressed speculators who were able to survive the first sharp crash earlier in the month in the desperate hope that a brisk rally would restore them to their feet. Heavy withdrawals of funds from the New York money market, while a contributing factor to the market reaction, were regarded on the other hand as a sign of expanding business in the West.

Earnings Rather Meager.

The maintenance of high production schedule in various industries, however, has not been accepted as prima facie evidence of continued prosperity. The meager earnings reports which have so far appeared for the first portion of the year have indicated that narrower margins of profits were prevailing and that favorable comparisons with last year's record demand and output could not be expected.

Steel trade reviews held scant promise of improvement and even hinted that April would see a letdown from the present high rate of operations. Automobile factories showed a tendency to expand their output in the face of reported cancellations of orders, apparently in the belief that the spring buying movement still has time to develop. Certain banking interests, however, undertook to warn the industry that a readjustment of schedules was in order and that the longer it was delayed the sharper would be the curtailment in employment and purchase of materials.

Wholesale Buying Delayed.

In wholesale trade channels falling commodity prices were said to be retarding purchases to some extent, offsetting the normal inflow of seasonal replacement orders. Freight car loadings, bank clearings and other measures of activity, nevertheless, testified to a large volume of business.

The oil industry displayed little concern over the announcement that recent consolidations would come under the scrutiny of the Department of Justice, their promoters maintaining that in no case had competing companies been brought together. Statistics made public during the week showed that the excess of petroleum production over consumption, which stood at 100,000,000 barrels in 1922, had declined to approximately 26,000,000 barrels in 1925.

Americans Swindled With German Bonds

New York, March 28 (By A. P.). Investors in the United States have paid as high as 200,000 times the actual market value for German mark securities in the past year, the Better Business bureau of New York city announced today. The bureau, said that the losses, suffered especially in the middle west, amounted to between $500,000 and $1,000,000. The investigation was undertaken with cooperation of the German consul's office.

One of the issues sold by unscrupulous dealers, the bureau alleged, was the Munich loan of 1923, which on March 11 had a value in Germany of approximately 43 cents for each billion marks of bonds. Bonds of this issue were said to have been sold in this country for as high as $40 per million marks. Frankfurt-on-the-Main bonds with a present value of 12 cents were said to have been offered to Americans for $45.

Apple Exports Less In 1925, Figures Show

(By the Associated Press.)

Exports of boxed apples from the United States, Commerce Department figures show, fell from 6,718,872 boxes in 1924 to 4,922,140 last year, while values declined from $15,739,601 to $12,787,495. Barreled apples also show decreased exports in 1925, amounting to 1,706,916 barrels worth $8,275,589, as against 1,880,715 valued at $8,547,442.

Commercial apple production increased, the 1925 figure being 31,909,000 barrels, as against 28,063,000 the year before. The State of Washington led all others, with New York second, Michigan and Idaho tied for third place, and Virginia, Oregon, Illinois, California, and Pennsylvania, following in order.

U. S. Steel's Book Value Placed at $280 a Share

By S. S. FONTAINE.

New York, March 28.—Wall street's students of market movements are wondering whether the stock exchange has lost its gift of prophecy. They say that if the great bull movement predicted a big business boom, it was wrong; and if the big smash, which Ben Talbot has described as an eight months' bear market compressed into four weeks, for in a month's time the gains of three-quarters of a year were wiped out, is forecasting a big depression, it is wrong. It is not true, of course, that for the long pull, the barometer has lost its accuracy. It is just as dependable as the judgment of the composite mind of the great American public that governs it, and while it makes mistakes, it is mostly right in its estimates of economic causes and effects as William Peter Hamilton has pointed out in his stock market barometer, which analyzes and expounds Dow's law, the decalogue of the street.

* * * *

And so far as minor swings go it is possible that the late market of 1925 over-discounted the business recovery, just as the current decline has given an exaggerated estimate of the industrial reaction's extent.

* * * *

As a rule, business changes first make their influence felt in industrial New England and work their way westward with the sun. This is not an infallible rule, for the first impulses of some great upheavals, as, for instance, the world-wide industrial depression that resulted from the San Francisco earthquake, have come from the home of the Sunset. But New England is a pretty good place to look for business signs, good or bad, and the First National Bank of Boston is one of the wisest interpreters of them. Hear its voice:

* * * *

"The seasonal slackness during February has perhaps obscured the real trend of industrial and commercial activity, but pospects are that under the stimulus of spring buying business for the first half of the year will compare favorably with the corresponding period of 1925. Although we have not reached the point where we can look for an indefinite period of prosperity, during the past four years, there have been definite indications that the fluctuations in industry are becoming less violent, with the result that operations and employment are on a steadier basis. This can be partly attributed to the fact that commercial and industrial operations are being performed on a more scientific basis. Production schedules and purchasing policies are more and more being adjusted to market requirements, as a result of which chronic overproduction and abnormally large inventories are being avoided.

* * * *

"Trade associations and governmental agencies are performing an indispensable service in the collection of data on the various lines of activity, upon which these management policies are being based. In some industries, such as wool, leather and paper, monthly reports on production are unfortunately much delayed, while reliable data for industry as a whole, on such important items as stocks, orders and sales are obtainable in but few lines. Comprehensive monthly and weekly data promptly available, intelligently interpreted and applied, would go a long way toward stabilizing commerce and industry and prolonging the periods of prosperity."

* * * *

And steel, like the stock market, has a pretty good average as a business compass, though magnetic attraction may cause its needle to deviate at times from the true course. The industry is now operating at more than 87 per cent of capacity and prices have advanced slightly, which seems to indicate that business men are planning well ahead.

* * * *

But steel common, the market bellwether, has recently touched the lowest point in months, indicating that there is something wrong temporarily with the public's perspective. Indeed, if it is true that the book value of steel as recently worked out by Charles A. Morse, of Clark, Childs & Co., is $280 a share, there is something very much wrong with its sense of proportion. This analysis was recently referred to briefly in this column, and there have been so many inquiries for the calculation in detail that it is given, through the courtesy of Mr. Morse, in full.

* * * *

"United States Steel Corporation common stock regularly occupies a dominating position in the market, so it has been our custom for years to prepare from the annual report an estimate of 'book value' of the issue, accepting the depreciation allowances of the corporation, which we have always considered liberal. The further increase in 1925 of the book figures would seem to emphasize the likelihood that some day the owners of United States Steel will realize, especially if federal taxation develops in future some suggested features, special benefit in shape of larger current distribution or some form of new stock issue to capitalize a portion of tangible surplus entering into book value of $280 per share, figured below as of December 31, 1925:

"Net property account after depreciation ($175,792,084 from earnings in 1925) and replacement	$1,602,197,704
Net advance mining royalties and real estate investment	51,530,930
Sinking funds, reserve funds and deferred charges	118,102,321
Inventories	$285,677,295
Receivables	83,414,384
Agents balances, &c.	1,315,348
Marketable securities	50,615,197
Cash and loans	131,985,880
Assets	$553,005,204
Total current liabilities, including Federal taxes	116,918,163
Net working capital	436,087,041
Total property and working capital	$2,297,917,996
Bonded debt and mortgages	509,479,577
Balance	$1,788,432,419
Preferred stock outstandind	360,281,100
Balance	$1,428,151,319
Equal per shares of common stock to	$280
Our same calculation end of 1924	278
Our same calculation end of 1923	269
Our same calculation end of 1922	257
Our same calculation end of 1921	260
Our same calculation end of 1920	261
Our same calculation end of 1919	245
Our same calculation end of 1918	233
Our same calculation end of 1917	201
Our same calculation end of 1916	196

And if Mr. Morse's appraisal is right, the gentle public's market estimate of Little Steel's value is shooting very wide of the mark.

SOUTHERN EXPORTS SHOW BIG INCREASE

Section Handles More Than Third of Foreign Commerce of Country.

(By Associated Press.)

Southern States handled more than one-third of the foreign commerce of this country last year with every coastal State from Virginia to Texas showing an increase in the volume of cargo tonnage movement, it was reported yesterday by the Shipping Board.

While Southern States increased their foreign traffic by 3,700,000 tons last year, the combined foreign trade of all other coastal States declined 2,450,000 tons.

Virginia's commerce increased by 18 per cent above the previous year as a result of coal exports and greater importations of pulpwood, fertilizers, paper and minerals.

Sown Winter Wheat Area Less This Year

(By the Associated Press.)

A decrease of 2.3 per cent in the area sown to winter wheat in 15 countries of the northern hemisphere as compared with the area sown last year is reported by the Department of Agriculture, giving the total 117,859,000 acres, compared with 120,608,000. The Russian winter cereal acreage was estimated as six-tenths of one per cent above the figure for last year.

Total gross exports of wheat, including flour, from the United States, Canada, Argentina, Australia, India and Black sea ports for the eight months ending last February 28, amounted to approximately 426,000,000 bushels as compared with 536,000,000 bushels for the corresponding period last year. The United States, Argentina, Australia and India showed decreases of about 218,000,000 bushels while Canada and Black sea ports showed an approximate increase of 106,000,000 bushels.

Salvador's Foremost Aviator Loses Life

San Salvador, Republic of Salvador, March 28 (By A. P.).—Salvador's foremost aviator, Lieut. Humberto Aberle, was killed today when his plane crashed while he was on a practice flight at the Ilopango aerodrom here. His machine turned turtle and fell.

He was practicing for a flight from Salvador to Spain for which funds were being raised by public subscriptions.

MORE CONCERNS PAY TAX; RETURNS LESS

Total of Taxable Incomes Is About Billion Below Last Year's Figures.

(By the Associated Press.)

More corporations paid taxes last year on 1924 incomes than in any year since the war, but the tax collections of $881,190,113 were $55,916,685 less than for the previous year.

The bureau of internal revenue reported yesterday that 415,703 corporations filed tax returns last year, compared to 398,933 the year previous, and 234,741 of these reported taxable incomes as compared with 233,339 a year ago.

The total of taxable income reported, however, was $7,580,289,689, as compared with $8,321,529,134 in 1924. Corporations reporting deficits totaled 180,962, while only 165,594 corporations declared deficits a year ago.

Radios on Farm Save Money for Owners

Chicago, March 28 (By A. P.). Importance of radio to the farmers is illustrated in a survey just completed, the National Farm Radio council reported today. Particularly is this noticeable in connection with markets, the council said.

A digest of the replies from 43 States showed that more than 46 per cent of them gave specific examples of cash savings effected by the use of radio for the reception of market reports. Practically all of the returns indicated the value to the farmer of having market reports from 24 to 48 hours earlier than heretofore.

Montgomery Ward Co. Plans New Subsidiary

Chicago, March 28 (By A. P.).—Montgomery Ward & Co. has sent a letter to its preferred and class A stockholders asking consent to the formation of a new subsidiary which will take over the most of the real estate interests of the mail order concern.

At present there are four such subsidiary companies, the Montgomery Ward Warehouse Corporation at Portland, Ore.; Montgomery Warehouse Co. at Baltimore, the Montgormery Ward & Co. of California at Oakland, Calif., and the Montgomery Ward Section C. associates at Kansas City.

By this step Montgomery Ward & Co. will be reimbursed for the large capital expenditures it has made in recent years for new plants and branch houses, thereby releasing for use in the merchandising business a considerable sum now tied up in real estate.

NEW BONDS ABSORBED, DESPITE WEAK MARKET

Foreign Developments Do but Little to Encourage the Investors.

SLIGHT CHANGE IN RAILS

New York, March 28 (By the Associated Press).—With the heavy calling of bank loans squeezing credit from the securities markets bond prices lost ground last week coincident with another violent reaction in stocks. These factors, however, exerted little effect on new bond offerings, which aggregated $96,000,000, and were well absorbed.

The familiar process of liquidating investment bond holdings to protect weakened speculative accounts was repeated, as a large volume of forced selling appeared in the stock market. While theorists have held that the check to speculative operations for the rise in stocks would divert funds to the calmer channels of bond trading, it was evident last week that the readjustment would have to be carried several steps further before such a transfer of interest could be effected.

Throughout the reactionary movement of the last month bond prices have closely followed the downward trend of stocks and even joined in occasional smypathetic rallies, although the changes have been less violent.

Foreign development last week held little promise of clearing the way for new financing or of reawakening investment interest in the outstanding obligations of these countries. French bonds sold at the lowest levels of the year simultaneously with the drop in the franc to a record low price, the decline in each instance being based on the seeming inability of the present government to find a remedy for the nation's financial ills.

Further negotiations for a Belgian stabilization loan apparently must await political developments at home. Temporary banking credits, which expire at the end of this month, probably will be extended until full support can be obtained for the projected financial program involving important monetary reforms designed to stabilize the franc on a gold basis.

One of the features of the week's trading was the selling of sugar company bonds, which followed the slump in the price of the commodity. Both producing and refining company liens were weak, although a few of these issues were able to resist attack.

Railroad obligations were less active than usual, the week's fluctuations generally being confined to variations of one or two points either way. The excitement which followed the upset of the Nickel Plate merger and the subsequent revision of ideas regarding consolidations subsided, leaving no ground on which to base speculative operations.

Oil company liens were temporarily unsettled by the government's move to investigate recent mergers, but the strong statistical position of the industry was a factor in steadying the situation.

Production of Basic Commodities Gains

(By the Associated Press.)

Manufacturing production covering 64 basic commodities, increased in February, the Commerce Department reported yesterday, placing the February index number at 130 as compared with 122 for January and 124 for February a year ago. The index number 180 is issued to represent 1919 production.

Compared with January, lumber showed a gain of six per cent while miscellaneous products, including automobiles, increased 10 per cent. Decreases were shown in production of foodstuffs, textiles, iron and steel, leather and tobacco.

WALL STREET GOSSIP

New York, March 28 (By A. P.). The consumption of rubber in the United States during 1926 was forecast as 360,000 tons in a review of the business made public today by F. R. Henderson, president of the Rubber Exchange of New York. Mr. Henderson asserted that, in spite of arguments to the contrary, "rubber will find its proper price level and the requirements of the country will largely influence the price level for this year at least.

J. P. Morgan & Co. and the Guaranty Trust Co. have received funds for the redemption of $2,000,000 principal amount of Belgian 25-year 7½ per cent bonds on June 1. Payment will be made at a price of 115 on the bonds which have been drawn for retirement.

A group of New York bankers headed by Shields & Co. has purchased an issue of 30,000 shares of preference stock of the Fanny Farmer Shops, Inc., which operates a chain of retail candy shops in 10 principal cities of the country. Public offering of the stock will be made soon and probably will be followed by the issuance of 100,000 shares of no par value common.

The annual reports of Gimbel Brothers, Inc., and subsidiary companies for the fiscal year ended January 31, 1926, shows net sales of $109,101,565, largest in the 83 years' history of the organization. Total profits after taxes were $5,156,950, which included payment of an insurance policy for $1,001,000 on the life of Horace A. Saks, who died during the year. Cash on hand at the close of the year was $6,072,738. Current assets were $39,315,127 compared with $37,307,511 a year ago.

Net earnings of the Sioux City Gas and Electric Co. for 1925 rose to $2,562,530, an increase of $266,000 over 1924. Dividends paid on the preferred stock were earned 5.48 times, amounting to $183,359. Operating revenues were $4,263,626.

LOREE PREDICTS GREAT RAIL CONSOLIDATIONS

Evils of Unwise Restriction Between 1890 and 1920 Will Be Overcome.

STRIKE INJURES D. & H.

New York, March 28 (By A. P.). Industrial and fiscal forces working toward the consolidation of railroads can be relied upon to make up in a relatively short time for the unwise restriction which held sway between 1890 and the passage of the transportation act in 1920, L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware & Hudson Co., told stockholders in his annual report today.

Mr. Loree is the sponsor of two great merger projects in the East and Southwest, built around the City Southern systems.

Discussing legislative measures affecting railway mergers, Mr. Loree said that "so far as these Delaware & Hudson and Kansas proposals tend to give relief from artificial restrictions that experience has shown to be detrimental, they are sound and encouraging. To the extent that they undertake to create new elements of artificial interference with normal economic development and to substitute compulsion for restraint and penalties, they find no support in experience and might easily lead to greater evils than those of the past."

Due to the anthracite strike, gross operating revenues of the Delaware & Hudson in 1925 fell below those of the preceding year, the total of $41,769,491 representing a decrease of $3,243,497, or 7 per cent. Without the cessation of the anthracite movement caused by the strike, Mr. Loree explained, the gross revenues probably would have been greater than in 1924. Net income of $4,907,708, after all charges, was $909,667 below that of 1924 and equivalent to $11.54 a share on the capital stock against $13.69 earned the year before.

CARLARIS WINS $75,000 HANDICAP IN RECORD

Detroit Bows To Palace Quintet

Washington Pros Win in Listless Game, by 48-21 Score.

Season Here Closed; Lynch Plays With Visiting Team.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

THE American Basketball league season made its exit here last night with a "waltz" at the Arcade in which the Palace quintet did all the leading. Detroit, a rather unwilling partner to the efforts of the locals to give the fans a little comedy, absorbed a 48-21 licking.

Neither club had anything to gain or lose in the game and confident of their ability to subdue their rivals, the Palace tossers appeared willing to let matters drift along for the first part of the game.

The Washington tossers passed and passed and passed some more. They showed all the tricks of the court trade but the Ford City boys just wouldn't play that way, taking the business at hand in a mighty serious light.

LACKING the cooperation of the Detroit team in their fun-making, Manager Kennedy and his mates evidently decided that if the visitors wouldn't play for fun then the game would be for keeps. And it was.

The boys who keep the running score were kept busy changing the cards, and at half time Palace had gained a lead of 23—12 proportions.

Ed Lynch, of Catholic university fame, played for the visitors, but failed to distinguish himself.

Palace.	Positions.	Detroit.
Saunders	R.F.	Lynch
Glasco	L.F.	Murphy
Grody	Center	Henderson
Kennedy	R.G.	Clark
Unger	L.G.	Kearns

Substitutions—Berner for Saunders, Conway for Kearns. Field goals—Lynch (2), Murphy, Henderson (3), Unger, Saunders (3), Glasco (3), Grody (2), Kennedy (5), Kearns (4), Conway (2). Foul goals—Lynch (2 of 4), Murphy (1 of 2), Henderson (3 of 5), Unger (1 of 1), Saunders (6 of 7), Glasco (3 of 4), Grody (0 of 1), Kennedy (1 of 3). Referee—Menton. Time of periods—20-minute halves.

Berlin Court Upholds Dempsey's Dog Claim

Berlin, March 28 (By A. P.). Jack Dempsey's right to the ownership of a $300 blue boar hound which he bought while on his tour of Europe last summer, has been established by a Berlin court.

The world's heavyweight champion bought the dog from Joe Edwards, former lightweight champion of England. But the police seized it on order of a Miss Hortung while Dempsey was leading it around Luna park.

Miss Hartung alleged that she had merely loaned the animal to Edwards, who had no right to sell it. Dempsey, Edwards, a lawyer and court bailiff, much to the amusement of Berlin, recaptured the hound. They smuggled it out of the country.

Miss Hartung sued Edwards, but he proved he had paid her $150 for the dog and had a right to sell it.

C. U. SCORES ON PLAZA TRACK

Langley Annexes Two Firsts; Willett Again Wins.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY athletes captured four first places in yesterday's weekly meet, the second of the series being staged on the Plaza playgrounds track under the auspices of the Aloysius and Western Canoe club.

Langley was the individual star for the Brooklanders, annexing the 50-yard novice dash and the 250-yard open events. Gardella, in the 100-yard open, and Howell in the 1,000-yard novice run, were the other first place scorers for the C. U. delegation.

Hurd Willett, George Washington cross-country star, again defeated a large field in the distance event—a run of 3 miles. Shipley, his teammate, finished second, with Schaub, of Aloysius, third. Willett

Eagles Beat Wonders, 23-19

Radice Halts All-Star Rally in Closing Minutes.

Moser and Hogarth in Stellar Roles for Holmans.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

THE Anacostia Eagles, carrying the hopes of the community across the river in the District court title race, began a new winning streak yesterday, defeating the Holman Wonders, 23 to 19, despite the fact that the scholastic combination played one of its best games.

A desperate rally in the last two minutes, with the Eagles leading by 2 points, ended in disaster for the Wonders when Radice camped under his basket to take a long throw and clinch the game by twisting in a field goal just before the whistle.

Earl Moser's return to the form he displayed in the last high school series and the defensive play of Hogarth were factors which kept the Allstars in the running from the start.

THE former Central ace accounted for one fo the most sensational distance shots ever made on the Congress Heights court in the closing seconds of the first half, which tied the score.

Moser shot the ball from the jumping circle. The leather arched between a pipe and the ceiling through a space of about a foot and a half and dropped into the basket without touching the rim.

The Wonders played by far the best game to a point within 15 feet of their basket. In the remaining territory, the Eagles excelled wherein lies the story of the Birds' victory.

Radice, Bennie and Madigan made most of the scores for the Eagles while Cardwell's defense work, especially against Moser in the last quarter, was brilliantly done.

The Eagles carried the Wonders virtually off their feet in the first quarter gathering 9 points to 3 for their opponents—all on foul shots.

MOSER put the Wonders ahead at one stage of the second period, but Cardwell reversed the order just before Moser made his sensational shot to bring the score to 12-all at the half.

The third period was a battle royal with the scoring even. Entering the last quarter with the deadlock at 16, the Eagles on two fouls by Radice and Madigan's field goal amassed a 21-16 advantage after which the Wonders made their final bid.

Eagles.	Positions.	Wonders.
Bennie	R.F.	Moser
Radice	L.F.	Werber
Madigan	Center	Banta
Cardwell	R.G.	MacDonald
Thompson	L.G.	Hogarth

Substitutions—Clark for Thompson, Scruggs for Derber. Field goals—Radice (3), Madigan (2), Cardwell, Thompson, Moser (4), Scruggs, MacDonald. Foul goals—Bennie (4), Radice (4), Madigan, Moser (3), Banta, MacDonald (3). Referee—Fitzgerald. Time of periods—10-minute quarters.

Cruickshank-Walker Win Best Ball Match

Pinehurst, N. C., March 28 (By A. P.).—Bobby Cruickshank and Cyril Walker, former champion, defeated Arthur ("Ducky") Yates, holder of the North and South amateur title, and T. Russell Brown, Mallet's Bay, Vt., in an exhibition best ball golf match this afternoon, 3 and 2. The professionals might have won by a wider margin but for the fact that several short putts were missed. Cruikshank had the best ball of 72.

Farrell Sets Record To Win Cuban Open

Havanna, March 28 (By A. P.). Johnny Farrell today won the Cuban open golf championship on the links of Havana Country club. He made 142 for the 36 holes. Gonzales was second with 151, and Arthur Compston third, with 152.

Farrell broke the course record on the last eighteen holes with a 70.

Eastend Jrs. Elect Officers for Year

The Eastend Junior nine, recently organized, elected Wilson Zembreny, captain and William Brown, manager, at a meeting held last night. The Eastends will enter the local title race.

Teams desiring games will call the manager at Franklin 7600.

Ticket Reservations Will Expire Saturday

Tickets for the opening game that have been reserved and not called for by next Saturday will be placed on sale according to an announcement made yesterday by E. B. Eynon, secretary of the Washington Baseball club.

Patrons who have reserved tickets for the raising of the American league carrier may get them by sending their check or calling at the ball park.

In the Press Box with Baxter

THE pessimism that has been expressed by many of the travelers, who stopped off in St. Petersburg to view the corpus delicti of what was once the New York Yankees, does not appear to be shared by the experts, who have come in contact with the minions of John McGraw at Sarasota. According to the press notices McGraw and the Giants are ready for the opening game of the next world's series right now.

There is only one sorrowful note from Sarasota and that because of the surplus of talent cluttering up the payroll of baseball's foremost realtor. The experts are not in agreement as to the point and location of the surplus but judging from their words McGraw has so many good players that he ought to have two teams instead of one in the National league pennant race.

One sad and lachrymose account of the team brings out the horrible state of affairs brought about by an oversupply of good pitchers. The Giants are apparently suffering from so many good pitchers that it will be impossible to work the regulars but once every six days and in consequence the hurlers will not get enough work to keep them in shape. The roster of hurlers who will win more games than they lose, the writers say, includes Ring, Scott, Barnes, Fitzsimmons, Nehf, Greenfield and McQuillan.

Another problem calculated to bring tears to the eyes of the Giants' supporters is that McGraw cannot choose between Groh and Lindstrom at third base. During spring training the veteran has shown so much skill and finesse and the youngster so much dash and spirit that it is reported McGraw may decide to play them both at once.

EVEN the outfield contains its problem, for the rather aged "rookie," Ty Tyson has presented the boss of the Giants with a puzzle. He has not been able to decide yet whether to let the former Louisville player crowd out one of the old timers or not.

Undoubtedly McGraw has cause for congratulation as well as for worry with the "plethora" of material that his war correspondents are writing about, but it is hard to see why he should be so proud of his pitching staff. Nehf, Scott and McQuillan are clearly rather long gambles. They may solve some of the terrific problems that confront the Giant boss by fading from the picture.

There are at least seven other teams in the National league that would be willing to take the load off McGraw's mind.

The experts seem to be in agreement that young Stribling, the Georgia schoolboy, is just that in the heavyweight division.

NOW that Charles Hoff looms as the world's decathlon champion, there is, naturally, considerable speculation as to his ranking as an all-around athlete with the famous men that track and field sports have produced in the past. The Norwegian star still has Osborne's record to surpass in the outdoor decathlon, but there are a few followers of track athletics who think the task is beyond him.

Running back over the years brings out Jim Thorpe as the only man who, at his best, would have been capable of giving Hoff a run for first honors, and the great Indian might, according to the figures, have left the Scandinavian far behind.

Thorpe was the greatest athlete of his day, no one denies that, and it must yet be proven that he can not lay claim to being the best of all time in making use of his physical attributes. Moreover, Thorpe was gifted with the competitive spirit to a greater degree than most men. The marks with which he is credited, fine as they are, might have been surpassed if he had been put to the test by a rival such as Hoff.

In the ten events embraced by the decathlon the records book shows Thorpe's superiority in five. Hoffs in three, a tie in one and no existing mark for either man in the half-mile walk. Thorpe, while an active competitor showed by his works that he could defeat Hoff in the 100, shot put, high jump, hammer throw and 56-pound weight. Hoff's performances in the pole vault, broad jump and mile run are best and the hurdles result in a figurative tie.

ANOTHER factor that veterans, who knew Thorpe at his best believe would have counted in the Indian's favor is stamina. The Carlisle star was possessed of an inexhaustible supply of energy. Hoff seems plentifully endowed, but the old timers can not help but think that Thorpe would have had more left in the final events than the Norse marvel. Their relative ability will remain an open question, but nevertheless an interesting one.

The University of Maryland lacrosse squad has added practice in tea drinking so as not to be under any disadvantage when the Oxford-Cambridge team plays here.

Stanley Harris' boy friends seem to have qualified for the role of Jack, the Giant Killer, in Tampa Saturday.

Tilden Beats Chapin In Exhibition Match

Augusta, Ga., March 28 (By A. P.).—William Tilden 2d, defeated A. H. Chapin, jr., here today, 3—6, 6—2, 6—2, in an exhibition match which was a prelude to the South Atlantic Tennis tournament which opens on the Augusta Country club courts Monday morning.

In a doubles exhibition match Tilden and his protege, Sandy Weiner, lost to Chapin and Sam Hardy, 3—6, 6—0, 6—2.

High Basket Teams Gather for Tourney

Chicago, Ill., March 28 (By A. P.).—Bronzed young athletes from the South and cold seasoned New Englanders detrained together in a mid-West snowstorm here tonight as units in a far flung invasion of State High school basketball champions who will vie this week for the national title.

The eighth annual interscholastic classic gets under way at the University of Chicago Tuesday morning and by tonight a fair share of the 40 entries had checked in.

With more than 30 State champions already on their way, together with nearly a dozen runners-up and sectional title holders, last minute bids were formally wired last night to winners of the New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota State championships, decided yesterday.

Florida Girl Cagers To Invade Washington

The Putnam High school girls' basketball team, of Palatka, Fla., which won 54 games without a single reverse in two years, is making a Northern tour and is trying to book games with local sextets. The team is expected to arrive in Washington next Sunday.

In addition to games here, if any are scheduled, the Floridans will play in New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. The girls on the team are between 16 and 18 years of age and the citizens of Palatka are so proud of their accomplishments that they made up a purse to send them on this Northern trip.

Dutch Ruether To Oppose Giants

Ogden and Marberry Also Are Slated to Take Hill Today.

Nationals' Moundsmen Will Take Longer Turns on Hill.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

TAMPA, Fla., March 28.—The book says that "a little child shall lead them," but it is the venerable Walter Johnson who has shown the way to the Nat pitching staff. Although only slated to pitch three innings against the Giants yesterday, he begged for permission to go five and was the first of the Harrisian flingers to cover this much territory this season.

Barney's stunt marks the beginning of longer shifts for the Washington hurlers. Of course, Manager Harris will not force his men too hard, but they will be expected to fling nine-inning games during the regular season, and he thinks it about time that they gradually extend their sessions on the hill.

An X-ray of Joe Harris' mouth shows that there is nothnig wrong with any of his molars, so that the "bad-teeth" diagonosis of the case for slight attack of stomach trouble has fallen through. The case has been turned over to "Doctor" Mike Martin, who has prescribed a diet which he says will restore Moon's ambition.

As Joe has batted better than .500 in the exhibition games to date, two triples and three doubles being hid in these figures, he should prove to be right handy man to have around when he feels well.

ONE of the most pleasing features of yesteray's win over the Giants—and there were several which tickled Harris considerably—was the

Hatchet Track Team Meets William & Mary

The George Washington university track team has booked an engagement for a dual meet with William and Mary this Saturday. It will be held at William and Mary.

Coach Prebey will take his men to Georgetown each afternoon this week for practice, athletic authorities at the Hilltop having granted the Hatchetites this concession while the Blue and Gray thinly clads are performing in Texas.

Stanton-Aloysius Game Called Off

Last night's scheduled preliminary at the Arcade failed to materialize. The Stantons had but four regular players present and wanted to use "Mickey" MacDonald, former Central player. Aloysius objected, and its players did not don their uniforms.

Many spectators present especially for the independent battle, were refunded their money at the box office.

Gallagher's field goal in the final minute of play clinched the verdict for the Gammas. Abramson starred for the Alphas with a half dozen field goals.

Dumbarton Netmen To Meet Maryland

College Park, Md., March 28.—University of Maryland's varsity tennis team will entertain the Dumbarton club racketers of Washington here Tuesday afternoon in a practice engagement designed to put the Old Line netmen on their mettle for the first game of their regular schedule against Western Maryland here on April 10. It is planned to stage six singles and three doubles matches.

Although there have been no definite selections yet, it appears likely that Capt. Weber, Shelton, Burns, Tan, Tingley, Green and Troth will comprise the list from which Maryland's representatives in the singles will be drawn. All are 1925 letter men except Shelton, who last season played with the freshmen team, and Troth. Shelton played the net game with Washington Central High before coming to Maryland.

Probable Old Line doubles combinations are Weber and Shelton, Burns and Tingley and Green and Tan. Of the three, the Green and Tan combination is the only one used last year.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—Calaris, $4.00, $4.20, $3.20; Roycrofter (G. F. Croissant entry), $7.80, $4.40; Cherry Tree, $3.20.

Carlaris rushed into command shortly after the start and, drawing away into a long lead, made a show of his field all the way, winning eased up. Roycrofter, well ridden, raced far back in the early running, but saved ground in the stretch run and finished courageously. Cherry Tree broke slowly, but responded when called upon and finished strong on the outside. Kentucky Cardinal made some ground in the stretch run. Serenader, fractious at the post, showed high speed in the early running, but weakened in the final drive. Princess Doreen appeared anchored by the weight and was outrun all the way.

Special to The Washington Post.

TIA JUANA, MEXICO, March 28.—Carlaris, wonder English-bred colt from the Chula Vista stable, won the seventh renewal of the Coffroth handicap here this afternoon, defeating some of the leading handicap horses in America in easy style.

Carlaris finished eight lengths in front of his field, eased up, with Roycrofter, hailing from the G. F. Croissant stable, Chicago owned, getting the place, and Cherry Tree, from the stable of Baron Long, of San Diego, third. Kentucky Cardinal, Serenader, Dr. Clark, Princess Doreen, Light Carbine and Osprey followed the leaders home.

The race was worth $70,700 to the winner; $5,500 to the second horse; $3,000 to the third horse and $1,500 to the fourth.

Carlaris ran the mile and one-quarter in 2:02 3-5, two seconds under the track record held by Dr. Clark and within two and three-fifths of a second of the American record for the distance, held by Whisk Broom II.

Dr. Clark was first to break as the barrier went up but Jockey Willie Munden, sensational local apprentice, soon hustled Carlaris into the lead and at the first turn the English-bred youngster, son of Phalaris and Carnival, was a length and a half in the lead. He soon increased his margin, first to seven lengths at the half, and to ten at the three-quarters, with Serenader and Kentucky Cardinal always in closest pursuit.

Roycrofter saved ground turning for home to get up and take the place from the tiring Serenader, with Cherry Tree coming with a great rush on the outside in the stretch to get the show.

Dangerous, Sanford, Elector, Spic and Span were scratched late this morning and during the early races when rain which had threatened during the early part of the day did not follow.

Mutuel prices on the leaders:

Carlaris $4.00, $4.20, $3.20. Roycrofter, Croissant entry, $7.80, $4.40. Cherry Tree $3.20.

The race was witnessed by a crowd of 32,000.

THE combination of Munden, the apprentice, and Carlaris, was absolutely unbeatable today. They made the field of eight of the finest thoroughbreds in America look ridiculous, whipping toward the finish in their wake. Munden brought Carlaris in eased up. It was Carlaris' eleventh race and his eighth first money. It was Munden's 124th winning race this season.

Carlaris was off to the lead almost at the start, and never was headed. Roycrofter, winner of second money, was the only exponent of early speed who was not absolutely run into the ground by the pace with which Carlaris led off. Roycrofter was entered by Owner Croissant, as a last moment hunch, after Croissant announced last night that he would probably not start.

Third money, $3,000, was won by Baron Long's Cherry Tree, of the San Diego millionaire's coast stable. The 7-year-old brown horse swept from fifth place at the last turn and was gaining on Roycrofter with every stride at the finish. Fourth place in the Coffroth is also worth a share in the purse, and this money, $1,500, went to Kentucky Cardinal, Roycrofter's stablemate.

Princess Doreen, famous money winner of many tracks, ridden by Sande, placed seventh. Earl never had a chance with her. Hundreds of thousands of dollars were lost on Princess Doreen, who was backed to 2 to 1 before the race and was a future book favorite for weeks.

W. T. (Fatty) Anderson, who is principal owner of the Chula Vista stable, and as such derives most of the profit off Carlaris' feat today, is said to have collected $100,000 in bets. He bet $500 at 50 to 1 when the Coffroth future book opened and laid another $1,000 at 20 to 1.

Anderson bought Carlaris as a weanling imported from England. He paid $6,500 for the colt at a public sale at Saratoga. Today he announced he had received a provisional offer of $250,000 for Carlaris, in a wire from Col. Phil. T. Chinn, of Kentucky. Anderson said tonight he had not decided whether to sell his horse, or to have Carlaris

$250,000 for Carlaris Refused by Anderson; Colt Cost Him $6,700

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 28.—An offer of $250,000 made through Col. Phil T. Chinn, Fayette county thoroughbred breeder has been declined for Carlaris by his owner, W. T. Anderson.

Col. Chinn said today that Friday night he sent the following telegram to Anderson at San Diego: "Am requested by reliable party to make you an offer of $250,000 for Carlaris to be delivered Monday provided horse comes out of the Coffroth handicap uninjured and in good shape." To this telegram Chinn received the following "thanks for offer. There is one condition which goes with the sale, I to have four seasons per year for five years, therefore the purchaser must be absolutely reliable and a breeder. Will take $250,000 Monday from the right kind 'man with contingencies mentioned."

Chinn intended that, if the sale was made Carlaris should run in Anderson colors in the Coffroth, but any money he might win in the classic be applied to his purchase price, and he sent a telegram to this effect to Anderson today; it was said the offer had been declined for the time being.

Carlaris was purchased as a weanling in England by Chinn, who paid 1,000 guineas for him. At the Saratoga sales in 1924 the colt was sold to Anderson for $6,700. His performances as a 2-year-old included only two starts, but he demonstrated class. His racing at Tia Juana, brought him out as a first class 3-year-old.

Wonders Head Triple Court Bill Tomorrow

A basketball carnival involving some of the best local teams will be staged in the Arcade Auditorium tomorrow night. The main feature will be between the Holman Wonder team and the Stanton club, in a game which is expected to prove every bit as interesting as the exciting clash waged between those clubs several weeks ago.

The game is scheduled to begin at 9 o'clock and has occasioned much interest among local followers of the sport.

A preliminary contest of unusual interest will inaugurate the bill at 7 o'clock, when the Aloysius Seniors and Kanawhas oppose.

The second game on the program will be between the Calvary Collegians, composed of Calvary players who won the Sunday school league, and the Epiphany Big Five.

Aloys Meet Eagles At Arcade Sunday

The third game of the series between the Aloysius and Eagle fives, leaders in the D. C. titular race, will be played next Sunday in the Arcade net. The series is now even.

...n Bowie Inaugural Thursday

By COLIN PORTER

NOMINATIONS for the Inaugural handicap, the seven furlong event carrying an added prize of $5,000, which will feature the opening program at Bowie Thursday, presage a spirited contest with smart company competing. Twenty-one have been named for the classic, and among them are the stars of the winter tracks and the leading members of the thoroughbred colonies who wintered in these parts.

Single Foot, the son of Wrack—Virginia L., who carries the red silks of J. E. Griffith, the Baltimore sportsman, is the class of the party; and while the weights have not been announced, it is certain that he will carry the heaviest impost. Trainer Harry Rites has Single Foot cocked and primed for his best effort, and with his known partiality for Bowie's peculiar going, it is likely the Griffith color bearer will go to the post a favorite.

Rains of the last few days have left Bowie deep in mud and reports have been flying that Rites would postpone Single Foot's 1926 debut until a later date, when conditions are more propitious. Rites, however, has been giving his charge a special prep for the Inaugural and unless the track becomes a quagmire the son of Wrack undoubtedly will be sent after the prize.

WASHINGTON'S colony at Benning will be strongly represented in the race. Matt Brady will send over Reperation and Storm King for J. E. Davis. Both are known as Bowie horses and are sure of a tremendous following.

Freddy Hopkins, who has been conditioning a division of the Harry Payne Whitney stable at the old course of the Washington Jockey club will aim with Noah, and Selby Burch plans to start Sun Pal and Extra Dry for Lee Rosenberg. Benning has been favored by beautiful weather throughout the winter, and training is at an advanced stage. All the horses that will go over the Inaugural will be fit to run the races of their lives.

The railbirds at Bowie already have picked the winner of the Inaugural. Their choice is Chicago O'Brien's Forecaster. This horse has been outworking every horse at the track, and if he is not burdened with too much weight the stopwatch brigade believe he will knock his opposition over the bluff.

Lounger, who developed first-class handicap ability in New Orleans racing, will run coupled with Forecaster, if both start, as J. L. Burtschell, his owner, trains the horses of O'Brien.

Outside of Lounger, the other winter campaigners who are slated to face the barrier are J. H. Butscher's Golden Mac, a 3-year-old, who is just a little better than ordinarily rated; the Greentree stable's Wild Aster and Ferrash, James Arthur's Leonard G., F. Marlow's Anna Marrone II and Walter Salmon's Traveler. Anna Marrone did not show much at Miami, but has been training briskly since her arrival at Bowie, and loves the track. She is the most formidable of the lot.

Guy Bedwell has named three for the Inaugural—Cudgeller, Senator Norris and Opperman—but it is likely that only Senator Norris will start, as the other two seem up against it in such fashionable company. The Senator is another Bowie champion, but he is a horse that comes to form late in the year. It is doubtful, unless his constitution has changed, if he will be much of a factor in the running.

ILLNESS laid a heavy hand on Bedwell during the winter and his turf activities this year will be greatly curtailed. He will not go to Canada at all, as has been his custom for years. He will send up some horses to campaign in the Dominion, but he will keep his best ones at home. Elmer James has been engaged to handle the Canadian division.

James F. O'Hara, who guides the destines of Bowie, is making preparations for a record breaking meeting. Attendance and pari mutuel play at the fall meeting last year establishing a new mark, but O'Hara is hoping that the impending session will eclipse it. With a fair spring day and a fast track prevailing he believes he will pack at least 20,000 into the park on the opening day.

A complete list of the nominations for the Inaugural follows:

Arthur, J.—Leonard G.
Bedwell, H. G.—Cudgeller, Senator Norris, Opperman.
Burtschell, J. L.—Lounger.
Buscher, J. H.—Golden Mac.
Davis, J. E.—Reparation, Storm King.
Farrell, J. J., jr.—Dr. O'Hara.
Greentree Stable—Wild Aster, Ferrah.
Griffith, J. E.—Single Foot.
Keilr, F. M.—Feyeun.
Marlow, F.—Anna Marrone II.
O'Brien, T. W.—Forecaster.
Rosenberg, Lee—Sun Pal, Extra Dry.
Salmon, W. J.—Traveler.
Swenke, Mrs. A.—Mungo, Everglades.
Whitney, H. P.—Noah.

JOHN WHALEN TO RACE 8 AT BOWIE

Dublin Show, 2-Year-Old, Gives Much Promise.

BALTIMORE, March 28.—John Whalen sold eight of the imported horses of the Laurel Park stud he took to Florida at the beginning of the winter—Berkeley Square, Gay Comet, Allis-ton, Cotlogomor, Speculator, Greek Friar, Regal Toy and Mount Beacon—but he has nine back, four of them being his 2-year-olds and two other 2-year-olds that belong to John McEntee Bowman.

The Bowman youngsters are Joy Top and Mastop, sons of Tracery's half-brother, Top Hat. These horses are at Prince Georges park, Bowie, all fit. They should cut some figure in the April racing of the Southern Maryland Agricultural association, that will begin Thursday, to continue a fortnight. Not all of the horses hereabout are as ready for racing as they might be.

One of Whalen's best looking 2-year-olds is Dublin Show, so named because as a weanling he took first prize at the Dublin horse show, about as tough a place to win a prize as a thoroughbred yearling could pick. This colt is a son of Junior and Mella.

HE might have raced at Miami several times if he had not persisted in bucking his shins whenever Whalen thought he had found a spot for him. English 2-year-olds have a way of doing that. Omar Khayyam, one of the greatest horses that ever came overseas, bucked no fewer than eight times in his first season of racing.

Dublin Show hasn't been sore for upward of a fortnight now and Whalen believes he can be got ready for the $2,500 Kindergarten stakes inaugural, a dash of four furlongs that will be run toward the finish of the Bowie meeting. Another Laurel Park candidate for the Kindergarten is Portobello Gold, a trim brown son of Tangiers and Silverlink.

Still another is Queen's Folly, a gray daughter of Grey Fox and Mary Queen of Scots. Queen's Folly is an own sister of Silver Fox, the second biggest 3-year-old money winner of last year. These have good looking juvenile stable companions in Regulation, a bay son of Glenmarion, and Molly Myhille, a bay daughter of Louvois. The older horses of the string are Palm Court, Papa Blinks, Bluemantle and The Puritan III. These started at Miami and showed encouragingly.

run under his colors in the Kentucky derby. Carlaris is scheduled to be shipped to Churchill Downs this week.

Carlaris drew second at the pole. Starter Mars Cassidy had his hands full at the barrier. Serenader kicked Carlaris, made one false break, and Dr. Clark, which was on the post, tried to bite Carlaris. They were delayed four minutes for a start.

Once given the flag, Carlaris flashed to a four-length lead at the quarter in 23 3-5; Serenader, Kentucky Cardinal, Princess Doreen and Light Carbine tried to dispute this early speed, and all but Kentucky Cardinal were run clear into the ruck in their effort.

CARLARIS had a lead of ten lengths at the half. He reeled off the three-quarters with the same lead, his time of 1:10 1-5 being the fastest 6 furlongs ever clocked at this track.

At the mile Carlaris still held his ten-length lead in 1:35 4-5, which also is the fastest mile ever run at Tia Juana.

Serenader hung on in second position until the mile, then the field ran past him. Roycrofter, which had no openings until the last turn, saved ground on the turn and streaked from eighth to second place. Cherry Tree came fastest of all in the stretch, his battle with Roycrofter for second place, pinching off some of Carlaris' huge margin in front.

RUETHER FACES GIANTS TODAY; MORE WORK FOR NATS' HURLERS

fact that the Nationals finally got a few good breaks. While alibis for previous defeats are being made, as a general proposition, if there were any breaks in these contests, the other fellows always seemed to get them.

Yesterday, however, fickle Lady Luck showed a change in heart and smiled on the Harris-led team on several occasions. Bucky is now praying that she sticks with his outfit for a while.

When the Nats arrive in the Capital City next month there is apt to be three or four players disguised as members of the house of David. Jeanes, Archdeacon and McNeely not long ago organized the "three musketeers," all agreeing to let their whiskers grow until they broke into a game. Stewart then was admitted and the name changed to "four horsemen." Now Hank Severeid has been voted in, and the club incorporated as "the seven Sutherland sisters," with provision made for two more members.

The third game in the set with the Giants will be played tomorrow, with the Nats all pepped up and "rarin'" to go as a result of yesterday's victory, which evened the count. Harris has named three pitchers—Ruether, Ogden and Marberry—but may use only two. Jimmy Ring, former Phil, and either Chick Davies or Bill Clarkson are expected to be the flingers for the Giants.

HARRIS originally planned to send Catcher Severeid back to Washington with Walter Johnson next Thursday in order that the old master would have some one to work with while waiting for the team to join him. Stanley now thinks it would be better for Hank to carry on with the Nats, as he may be needed on the Barnstorming tour, and he is trying to arrange with a District semi-pro to give Walter his daily dozen there.

Joe Turner, Washington grappler, will meet Joe Nassur at the Cuban club here Tuesday night and many of the Nats are planning to see the bout.

The use of resin by National league pitchers apparently does not mean much. As a rule the flingers finger it very gently—as if they were trying to take the cheese out of a set mouse trap. Yesterday Virgil Barnes grabbed the little bag too firmly and Umpire McCormick called for the ball and rubbed the resin off.

Manager Harris slightly strained his left wrist while sliding into second base in yesterday's game. He does not believe, however, that the hurt is serious enough to affect his playing, either afield or at bat.

ALBERRY, flying the colors of the Washington Canoe club, garnered the honors in the mile run from a bulky starting group. His time was 4 minutes and 57½ seconds.

Large Knick Squad Engages in Workout

Manager Warren Hilleary, of the Knicks, sent his players through a strenuous workout yesterday afternoon in the Georgetown Hollowfield. The largest number of baseball tossers in recent years answered the call for drill, and before practice was over the players zipped the ball across the field in midseason form.

Freddy Hopkins, who has been conditioning a division of the Harry Payne Whitney stable at the old course of the Washington Jockey club will aim with Noah, and Selby Burch plans to start Sun Pal and Extra Dry for Lee Rosenberg. Cambridge Unfurls Eastern Shore Flag

Cambridge, Md., March 28.—The Eastern Shore league, pennant given by A. G. Spalding to the Cambridge club, winner of last year's series, was unfurled last night at the fashion show given at the Armory for the benefit of the Cambridge baseball team.

Dr. Brice W. Goldsborough, for the past two years president of the club, and Fred F. Stevens, elected for the 1926 season, ran up the flag. Frank Robbins, one of the directors, delivered a short address. James McAllister, secretary, read a set of resolutions adopted by the directors expressing regret at Dr. Goldsborough's resignation. It is said the show will net the club about $1,000.

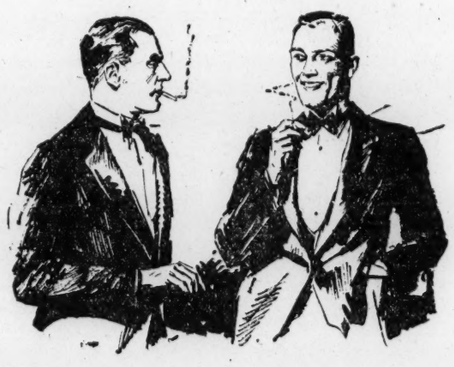
"Have a Camel"

No cigarette satisfies the taste like a Camel



HAVE a Camel, and let your taste be satisfied! Millions of experienced smokers just wouldn't buy or smoke any cigarettes but Camels.

Camels are so different from other cigarettes. So glorious in flavor and fragrance. Because of their choice tobaccos and perfect blending, Camels are all pleasure, pure golden contentment. Nothing is omitted to make Camel quality the biggest sensation in the history of smoking. Camels give you the utmost in cigarette enjoyment.

Right here you have the reason why Camel makes—and keeps—so many friends: Camels satisfy the taste as no other does. They never tire the taste or leave a cigaretty after-taste no matter how freely you smoke them. And what a glowing contentment their goodness brings! Camels are the only cigarettes in the world that have the completely satisfying quality. For your taste's sake, demand them. Their pleasure-bringing goodness is your right. Have a Camel!

COLLEGE NINES TO PLAY 8 GAMES HERE THIS WEEK

G. U. Engages Bucknell Today

Yale, Princeton and Vermont to Invade D. C. Diamonds.

Lehigh and Tigers to Clash at Hilltop on Friday.

By JUNO KINERK.

COLLEGE baseball in and about Washington begins in earnest this week, no less than eight games being scheduled on local diamonds before the sun sets next Saturday. Of these, Georgetown leads with four, while Catholic U. will play three and Maryland one.

Georgetown's opponents will be Bucknell, today; Temple university, tomorrow; Yale, Thursday, and Princeton, Saturday. Catholic U. plays Bucknell tomorrow, Vermont, Thursday, and Lafayette, Saturday. Maryland's lone engagement is against Yale, Friday.

In addition to these games, Princeton and Lehigh will play at Georgetown Friday afternoon. Both are on their Southern trip and were idle that day and scheduled the game to be played here because they otherwise would be unable to meet later in the season.

TODAY'S clash with Bucknell will be Georgetown's first of the season and should furnish its followers a good idea of just how strong the club will be this year.

The Hilltoppers are in good condition and seem well advanced. Practice games between teams A and B have been held practically every day during the last week and these have served to put the team in good shap.

When it takes the field today veterans will appear in seven of the nine positions, all but shortstop Donovan and Burch, who probably will pitch, having been members of the varsity last year or the year before, as is Jack Hagerty's case. Hagerty was ill last spring and unable to play, but will be back in his regular left field berth today.

The inner works will consist of the hard-hitting Ralph Graham at first base, Capt. Richie Ryan at second, Jimmy Quinn at third and Donovan, who played on the yearling team last year, at short. Donovan fits well with this combination and rounds out a strong defensive infield which opposing batters will have trouble punching hits through.

Bucky O'Neil will cover the center field garden, while Goddard, a made-over pitcher-outfielder, will guard the right field pasture. Phil McLean, who has been hitting well in the practice games, will act as reserve outfielder, since Hagerty is stationed in left. George Murtaugh again will don the mask and mitt behind the bat.

St. Peter's Nine Beats Carlisle; Kane Fans 17

St. Peter's midgets scored an easy victory from the Carlisle A. C. team, on the latter's field, yesterday, 17 to 5. P. Kane's curves were a puzzle, sending 17 batters back via the strikeout route and allowing eight hits.

Reed and Peifer led with the stickwork, Reed having a perfect day at bat, obtaining four hits in as many times at the plate, while Peifer gathered two extra base blows and two singles in six trips.

Games with the winners can be arranged by telephoning Manager Kane at Lincoln 6782.

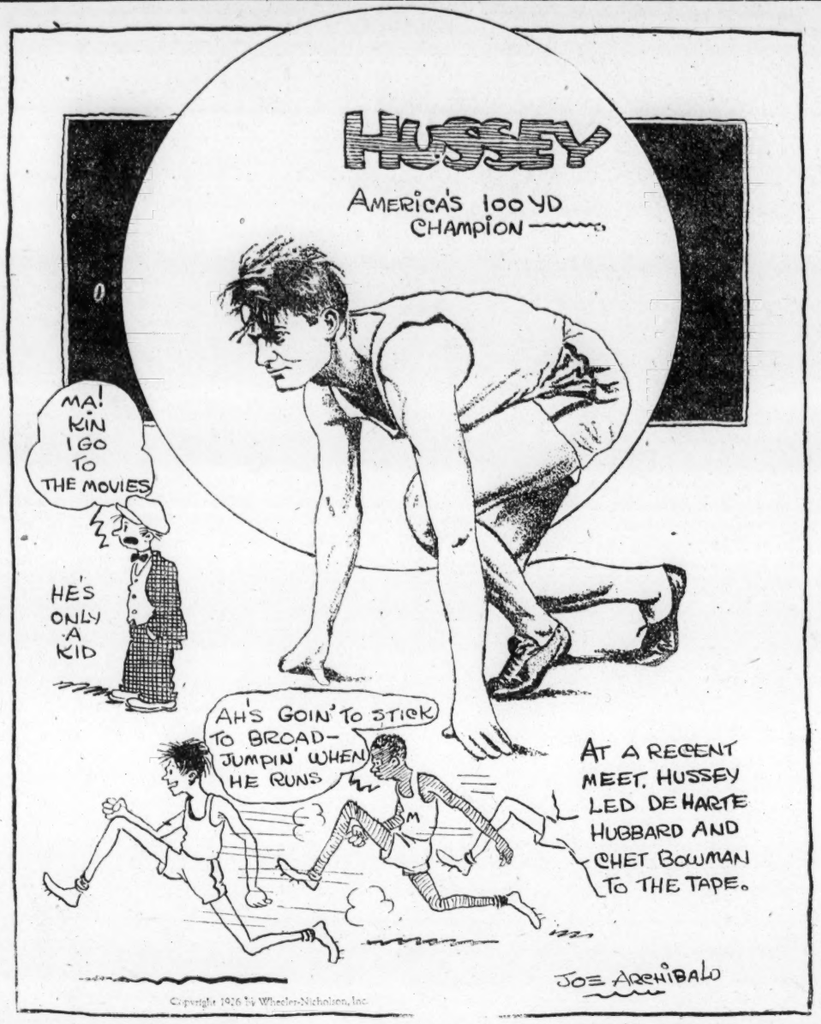
FROM HIGH SCHOOL CHAMPION TO U. S. TITLE HOLDER



FROM schoolboy champion to national sprint king in the span of but a year was the road traveled by Frank Hussey, the New York youth. In the national championships, he led both De Hart Hubbard and Jackson Scholtz to the tape. While in high school, Hussey equaled the world's record for the 100 yards at 9 3-5 seconds, but much controversy resulted as to the validness of the feat.

Hussey seems to have stepped into Paddock's shoes, and it is not unlikely that he will be the man to set a new world mark for the century if such a thing is humanely possible, as his running days have only begun.

It is the concensus of opinion that the mark of 9 3-5, first set by the great Wefers, will never be broken. Such was said of Al Shrubb's 2-mile mark, but Paavo Nurmi showed the world that it could be done. And so goes.

The New York A. C. star should find little or no trouble with foreign competition. Houben, the German flyer, who beat Paddock abroad, proved a bust in his American debut.

MURCHISON, who accompanied Paddock on his European tour, did not hesitate to make certain facts public in regard to the methods used by German officials, which seemed to indicate that Holben's starts were made to order. However, the Teuton's showing here was almost mediocre.

At home, Hussey has some real running to do. Such an array of sprinters as De Hart Hubbard, Murchison, Bowman and Scholtz are liable to kick cinders in the face of a champion on any occasion. The New York boy has beaten them all and if psychology is what it is cracked up to be, his crown will be safe for another year.

The Rialto and Kanawha clubs will play for the championship of the Jewish Community Center Basketball league next Sunday as a result of the games yesterday, in which the former defeated the Auroras, 35 to 24, and the Kanawhas swamped the Mardelles, 73 to 6.

As indicated by the score, the Mardelles offered the Kanawhas only the feeblest opposition, and at the end of the first half had failed to score a point, while the Kanawhas were amassing 19. Povich and Budner led the attack for the Rialtos against the Auroras with 6 and 5 field goals, respectively. At half time Rialto led, 20 to 10.

MD. U. DRILLS FOR BRITISH GAME

Old Line Team Enters Final Week of Practice.

PROF. R. V. TRUITT, coach of the University of Maryland lacrosse team, pleased with the manner in which his charges performed in defeating the L'Hirondelle club, of Baltimore, the past week-end, and now feels confident that the Old Liners will have an even chance to win from the Oxford-Cambridge twelve of England in Central High school stadium next Saturday.

While the L'Hirondelle twelve had not had near so much prepration as Maryland, the squad is made up of experienced stickwielders, most of whom are former college stars, and in this angle had the edge on the College Park outfit. Maryland's stickwork and team play was surprisingly good for so early in the season.

There will be four days of strenuous work for the Old Line "antelopes" this week, with only a tuning up process on Friday. There are several positions on the team that are not definitely filled and some merry battles doubtless will be staged for the privilege of starting against the British aggregation.

THE Oxford-Cambridge players are due to land in New York tomorrow and will be at College Park in time for practice sessions Thursday and Friday. While the names of all the British players making the trip have not been received, the squad is made up of the leading performers from both universities, which practically means the cream of the amateur talent in England.

One of the fraternity houses will be given over to the Britishers during their stay at College Park as the guests of the University of Maryland.

Reserved seats for the game have been placed on sale at Spalding's, 1338 G street.

St. Peter's Will Plan Baseball on Thursday

All members of the St. Peters team are requested to report for practice on their field tomorrow at 4 o'clock. The team will hold a baseball meeting at the home of R. Tappins Thursday, beginning at 8 o'clock, with the following players attending: J. Kane, P. Kane, B. McQuillian, Wilkerson, F. Arendeas, M. Copsey, Edwards, C. Miles, F. Mills, Peifer, Reed, McCullough and Delersee.

Basketball Officials To Banquet Tonight

Members of the District board of basketball officials will banquet tonight at the Occidental hotel, at 6:30 o'clock.

Fred Rice, Catholic university coach, and C. E. Becket, director of physical education in the Y. M. C. A., will be the principal speakers.

SEALED LIPS BLOCK INQUIRY INTO TALES OF PRISON TORTURE

Alabama Inmates Afraid to Talk, County Solicitor Says in Birmingham.

SAVAGE AND INHUMAN TREATMENT REPORTED

Convicts Are Confined in Dog-houses, Then Sent to Hospital, Is Charge.

Birmingham, Ala., March 28 (By A. P.).—Sealed lips in Alabama prison camps have proven "impassible barriers" to investigations of alleged inhuman treatment of convicts, James Davis, Jefferson county solicitor, said in a statement published today.

He announced that he expected to continue the investigation into the death of James W. Knox, former Ravenswood, W. Va., youth who died at Flat Top Mine camp in August, 1924, ten days after he began serving a two-year sentence for forgery.

Davis said the Knox case "is the first concrete example we have been able to uncover, develop and work on." Had Knox survived, he added, "we would not have heard anything of the inhuman punishment."

Not until some of the prison companions of Knox and other witnesses are out from under the mastery of prison management can statements be obtained in the case, Davis said.

The solicitor cited other cases he attempted to investigate at the prison mines and said he was always confronted with the same problem—refusal of the convicts and guards to talk. Davis said he was frankly told by convicts when he sought information about mutinies or other outbreaks that they dared not make statements because if they did they would "suffer untold misery and punishment."

Mr. Davis said some of the forms of punishment still in use in the prison camps were comparable to the "savage and inhuman treatment of ancient days when the thumb screw was used."

Convicts punished in dog houses, where they are pressed and cramped, frequently are sent to hospitals as a result, he declared.

Grand juries of Jefferson county, he charged, have gone to camps for inspection "and were refused admission and prevented from making investigations."

Italy Concentrates Troops on Tyrol Line

(Special Cable Dispatch)

Bucharest, March 28.—Great excitement has been caused here by reports from Innsbruck, Tyrol, that a large number of Italian troops are being concentrated on the frontier. The Italians are building new barracks and transferring troops from the interior of the country to the Tyrolese border. All Italain garisons are being reinforced with heavy artillery and flying units. At present the Italians have 20,000 soldiers on the Austrian frontier, plus considerable fascist formations. It is reported that the Italian war office is planning general maneuvers on the Austrian frontier next summer.

OVER 70 YEARS OF SUCCESS

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action. If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

CHAPMAN IS CALM AS MANY ASK RIGHT TO SEE HIM HANGED

NEW WITNESS IS FOUND TO BACK PLEA IN COURT

Chemistry Student at Lynn, Mass., Makes Affidavit Supporting Alibi.

Wethersfield, Conn., March 28 (By A. P.).—While the morbid curious seek admission to his hanging on April 6, Gerald Chapman, mail robber and convicted murderer, quietly passes his time in his cell in the State prison here reading and writing.

An unusual number of requests have been made by individuals to see the execution which, unless Chapman's lawyers are successful in preventing, will take place a few minutes after midnight April 5. State statutes, however, specify that only representatives of newspapers in the county and a few others may be in the execution chamber when the penalty is paid for murder. What arrangements are necessary in preparing the gallows for Chapman's probable execution have been made.

Appears Unperturbed.

Chapman, whose mask of indifference during his trial and at other times during his career as a bandit has caused wide comment, apparently is unperturbed over the nearness of the day set for his death. Today, when the prison chaplain, while attending to his Sunday duties at the institution, stopped to chat a moment with Chapman, he found the prisoner asleep. The condemned man passes Sunday as he does any other day in the week, reading or writing as the mood strikes him.

Much of his writings are verses. The books he reads are of a serious nature.

When Chapman entered the State prison at Weathersfield more than a year ago he was known to be an agnostic. Several days each week now he is visited by the Rev. M. P. Barry, of the Sacred Heart church, who also is Roman Catholic chaplain at the prison. Chapman looks forward to these visits and seemingly enjoys the conversations with the priest, but whether he has changed his attitude toward religion is not known.

Writ to Be Asked Today.

New Haven, Conn., March 28 (By A. P.).—The scene of the endeavors of the lawyers representing Gerald Chapman, thrice reprieved murderer, in his effort to escape the gallows, shifts to this city tomorrow when Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas will be petitioned for a writ of habeas corpus. The petition will be presented probably by Ray M. Wiley, of Springfield, Mass.

Meantime, other legal moves considered by counsel to keep their client from hanging April 6 are being perfected. Mr. Wiley expects to go before a superior court judge on Tuesday with a writ of coram nobis, maintaining that error occurred in the Federal proceedings before Chapman was tried a year ago in the Hartford county superior court. A third court action intended is a motion for a new trial on grounds of newly discovered evidence.

New Witnesses Reported.

The latter procedure had been strengthened by reports of the finding of witnesses who would give new testimony which counsel claim would support the condemned man's alibi. From Lynn, Mass., came the report that Earl F. Wetmore, a lunch cart waiter and student of chemistry, had made affidavit that he had seen Chapman in the Grand Central station, New York city, on the night preceding the murder of Policeman Kelly in New Britain, Conn., for which crime Chapman was convicted.

The petition for a writ of habeas corpus which will come up tomorrow claims that the bandit while a Federal prisoner did not have a fair trial on the charge of murder in the State courts. It will be the second time that Chapman's case has come before Judge Thomas, who on December 14, 1925, refused to grant Chapman a writ of habeas corpus and to order his return to the Atlanta penitentiary to serve the remainder of a 25-year sentence for a mail robbery.

HUGE FUND ALLEGED TO FIGHT PRICE BILL

Fair Trade League Officer Says $3,000,000 Is Used for Lobby Here.

New York, March 28 (By A. P.). An alleged fund of $3,000,000 to fight the Capper-Kelly resale price bill, now before Congress, was said to have been raised by fake "bargain sale" organizations, in a statement issued today by Edmond A. Whittier, secretary of the American Fair Trade league.

The statement asserted that the organizations interested in defeating the bill were those which advertised well known trademarked goods at cut prices as "bait" for unadvertised and untrademarked merchandise.

"The dealers now engaged in bootlegging the popularity of trademark goods," Mr. Whittier said, "are as much opposed to the Capper-Kelly bill as bootleggers would be opposed to the repeal of the prohibition act, and for similar reasons. The present law provides an opportunity for ill-gotten gains, and they do not want it changed."

PEOPLE'S COUNSEL ONLY CHANGE LIKELY TO UTILITIES BOARD

Recommendation for Entirely New Commission Dropped by House Committee.

SURVEY OF GAS LIGHT PROPERTY HELD NEEDED

If New Valuation Is Denied Increase in Rates May Follow as Result.

Addition of a people's counsel is the only change that is likely to be made in the public utilities commission the present session of Congress. Although the House District committee a few weeks ago had virtually decided to recommend an entirely new commission the proposal seems now to have been dropped.

If such a plan is evolved by the committee at this late date it would have small probability of getting through the House and the Senate.

Although the committee has held exhaustive hearings on the local traction situation it remained for the House appropriations committee to make a definite move. It provided for the people's counsel in the District appropriations bill which has been passed by the House and is now pending before the Senate subcommitte headed by Senator Phipps of Colorado.

Gas Rate Increase Hinted

In the meantime there have come intimations from the District building that some action should be taken toward giving the commission $50,000 to make an adequate survery of the properties of the Washington Gas Light Co. The company seeks a new valuation and an increase in rates is said to be likely unless the commission can make a thorough survey.

There is a bill pending which would authorize the commission to make thorough surveys of public utilities, when requested, and assess costs against them. But there is considerable opposition from the utilities to the proposal, and the committee has not seriously considered it.

Proposal to Study Utilities.

Utilities would be one of many matters to be studied under the resolution of Senator King, of Utah, which would create a joint committee to sit here this summer and give the Capital a general looking over.

It is, or was, looked upon as one, if not the most, important matter affecting the District with which the present session had to deal. The District commissioners submitted a bill early in the session which would add two members and a people's counsel to the commission.

The committee decided, shortly after hearings had got under way, that it wanted a separate commission. The commissioners strongly opposed a distinct body, Engineer Commissioner Bell contending that the police commissioner, at least, should remain a member of the utilities commission. There the situation has remained for the last several weeks.

Shenandoah Park Committee to Meet

The committee interested in the proposed Shenandoah National park will give a dinner tonight at the Hotel Washington to discuss the project and make it more widely known. Robert N. Harper is chairman of this committee which is composed of the heads of many civic organizations.

The proposed park will be in the heart of the Blue Ridge mountains, 75 miles from Washington. The significance of the undertaking and its relation to the interests of Washington will be brought out tonight.

Stephen T. Mather, director of the national park service, will tell how the government develops its national parks. Other speakers will be Senator Claude Swanson, of Virginia; Bishop James E. Freeman, of Washington, and George H. Judd, of Washington and Skyland.

Interest Manifested In New Page School

Widespread interest in the Walter Hines Page School of International Relations is being shown, Frank J. Goodnow, president of Johns Hopkins University, stated in announcing that more than 400 requests for information have been received from people who wish to become connected with the school as staff members, investigators, or research assistants.

The Page school, according to the announcement, will not emphasize formal instruction, but will endeavor to assemble existing information on world affairs and pursue those lines that will add to the total of existing knowledge. White House Lawn Littering Protested

An attempt to put an end to the annual littering of the White House lawn with papers, boxes and bottles at the Easter Monday "egg rolling" will be made by the Motor, Camper and Tourist Magazine. An article in protest is in the April issue, and the magazine has filed a memorandum with Senator Bert M. Fernald, of Maine, chairman of the Senate committee on public buildings and grounds, asking that he take steps to insure proper respect for the grounds of the Executive Mansion on next Monday.

This littering of the White House grounds is the national bad example set each year to people who at all times are only too prone to ruin the beauty of a countryside by failing to clean up after outings, the article states.

DRIVEN BY DENSE SMOKE, TENANTS FLEE TO ROOF

Blaze in Basement Gives Midday Scare to Franklin Apartments.

FIRE ESCAPES ARE FUTILE

Nearly a score of tenants in the Franklin apartments, 1915 Fourteenth street northwest, were forced to seek safety on the roof of a shed in the rear of the apartment when dense smoke from a midday fire in the basement of the apartment made escape impossible through the street exits.

The thick black smoke spread rapidly through the halls of the five-story building. Tenants of the upper floors climbed through a rear third floor window to the adjoining roof where they were rescued by firemen.

The apartment of Mrs. Frederic Selinger, in the rear on the first floor, which was directly over the fire, was badly damaged. Mrs. Selinger, an elderly woman, was assisted from the building by her son. Damage to the building was estimated to be $500.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. M. A. Brooks, who called Mrs. M. B. Rouzee, living in an adjoining room, who ran to the different apartments and warned the other occupants of the building. She called Dr. G. G. Morris, a physician with offices on the first floor, who turned in the fire call. Dr. Morris' hand was slightly cut when he broke the glass in the alarm box.

SPECIAL SERVICES MARK PALM SUNDAY IN CITY'S CHURCHES

President Attends First Congregational, Where the Rev. Charles Stelzle Speaks.

CATHOLIC CEREMONIES ESPECIALLY COLORFUL

St. John's Rector Sees Spirit of Intolerance Making Democracy Impossible.

Special services were held yesterday in local churches in celebration of Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem on the first Palm Sunday.

President Coolidge attended services at the First Congregational church, where the Rev. Charles Stelzle, of New York, told of what would happen "if Christ came to Washington today." A large crowd waited outside the church to see the President as he left.

The Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, bishop of Washington, preached at the services in the Epiphany Episcopal church. The bishop took the words of Pontius Pilate, "What shall I do with Jesus, which is called Christ?" as the subject of his sermon. He said there was a necessity of knowing Christ personally.

Confirmation Given.

The rite of confirmation was administered to 45 persons by the bishop. Although amplifiers had been installed in the parish hall, a crowd of approximately 500 persons was unable to get inside and had to stay in the churchyard.

The solemn ceremonies of the Catholic Church were celebrated in all of the churches of that denomination. Palms were blessed and a procession from the altar to the front vestibules of the churches took place. As the procession left the churches blessed palms were distributed to the worshipers. The deacon knocked thrice on the church door and the procession then reentered and marched slowly back to the altar, symbolizing the entry of Christ into Jerusalem and into the hearts of Christians.

The services at the Franciscan monastery were especially picturesque, wth choirs of monks and friars in the procession. The Passion, telling of the events of the last week of Christ's life, was chanted. Three priests sang the story, one singing the words of Christ, another the words of Pilate and another miscellaneous parts. The choirs answered with the shouts and demands of the people.

Says Democracy Impossible.

The reading of the Passion lasted more than half an hour, during which time the congregations stood.

The Rev. Robert Johnston, pastor of St. John's Episcopal church, compared the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem with his denial on Good Friday, and said that the uncivilized, unthinking mob spirit shown then still prevails and must be guarded against. Real democracy is impossible now, because of this spirit of intolerance, but may and probably will be realized many, many years hence, the Rev. Mr. Johnston said.
